U.S. and British Warships Hit Honshu from 6 Mile Range

2 FLEETS JOIN IN BLOW 80 MI. FROM TOKYO

Bombard Wide Area Around Hitachi

GUAM, July 18 [Wednesday]—(AP)—American and British warships joined in a great bombardment force early today to shell Japanese war plants at Hitachi on Honshu Island, only 80 miles from Tokyo.

It was the first time that the British men o' war, led by the battleship King George V., had fired shells into the Japanese homeland. The 45,000 ton dreadnaught Iowa led the powerful American fleet.

The bombardment followed by only a few hours a 1,500 carrier plane attack on the Tokyo region, extending northeast to Hitachi.

Close Within Six Miles

Correspondents watching the thrilling show from aboard Adm. Halsey's warships reported the dreadnaughts closed to within about six miles of shore.

The attack began about midnight Tuesday, Japanese time, and continued two hours.

Overhead, British and American carrier planes flew a protective escort but their defensive cover proved unnecessary. The Japanese still declined to attack the naval force by sea or air.

Low, thick clouds prevented aerial observers from immediately estimating damage of the attack, Fleet Adm. Nimitz said. In a broadcast to the United States yesterday, Nimitz termed this bombing and bombardment phase the "pre-invasion stage."

Planes Blast Area 8 Hours

Battleships and their accompanying cruisers and destroyers started to run in toward Hitachi, at the north end of the Kanto plain, late yesterday after the Tokyo area had been swept for more than eight hours by fighter and bomber flights from both United States carrier task force 38 and carriers of the British Pacific fleet.

Halsey, in over-all command of the combined American-British fleet, has not yet reported any results of the strikes over the Tokyo area.

The British task force, which Nimitz said also included the carrier Formidable, the cruisers Newfoundland and Black Prince and screening destroyers, was commanded by Vice Adm. Bernard Rawlings. Vice Adm. Philip Vian commanded the carriers.

Tell of Bombardment

Casting radio silence aside, the warships permitted broadcasts telling of the attack—an event unprecedented in American naval history.

One broadcast by Jack Mahon, Mutual correspondent, said not only industrial targets but 20 miles of the crowded seaboard area were pounded and in flaming ruins. He estimated a half million Japanese live in that section.

Another warship broadcast, made by NBC Correspondent Joe Hainline, reported the guns of the force were hurling shells into their targets at the rate of 50,000 pounds of steel a minute.

Two Other Targets

The target area included the town of Sukegawa, adjoining Hitachi. An eyewitness report from Associated Press Correspondent James Lindsley also named Takahagi.

[The Japanese Domei agency, acknowledging the bombardment of the Hitachi area hours later, said it extended as far southward as Mito, only 55 miles northeast of Tokyo.]

Adm. Nimitz also announced that carrier plane sweeps last Saturday and Sunday over northern Honshu and Hokkaido destroyed or damaged 374 Japanese ships and small craft, 129 railroad locomotives and a variety of factories.

American losses in action were 24 aircraft, 10 pilots, and six air crewmen.

Spain on Way to Monarchy, Franco Says

MADRID, July 17 (AP)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco said tonight that Spain was entering the preparatory period for return of the monarchy, which he said must guarantee the "essentials" of the Falangist [government party] movement.

Generalissimo Franco

He told cheering members of the Falange National council that when the time came to make the change the Spanish cortes [parliament] would be handed a law establishing the royal regime. The monarchy, he emphasized, was his only possible successor.

In a 35 minute speech, Franco reaffirmed his faith in the Falange, asserted that his regime was misunderstood abroad, and attacked communism. While discussing monarchy he made no direct reference to Prince Juan, heir presumptive to the now non-existent Spanish throne, who has said he would not reign over a Falangist regime.

[The 32 year old prince, third son of the late King Alfonso XIII., said at Lausanne, Switzerland, last March 22 that Franco's regime was modeled on the axis totalitarian system and was contrary to the "character and tradition" of the Spanish people.]

Must Be Strong

Franco, in asserting that the nation was heading toward the traditional form of Spanish political government, said: "The institution we are to forge must prove stronger than the mistakes which may be made by individual rulers. The best law will be of no avail if the falangist spirit weakens."

Franco said, "We must fix my succession in accord with the majority of Spaniards. I must declare that there is no room for option in the regime to be chosen, which is the traditional regime and which I defended repeatedly.

"I always said that we were going by steps toward it. I am not ignorant of the dangers of this step, but I am certain that this monarchy must have all the guarantees to incarnate our greatest monarchs."

The generalissimo, discussing outside attacks on Spain, said they stemmed from the so-called "liberal democracy of France and communism generally."

"Negation of Everything"

"Communism is the negation of everything in Spain's national life, which is Catholic, proud, intelligent, and based on individual liberty," he said.

Franco said Spain wants "her independence coupled with dignified cooperation with other countries" in the post-war world. He said altho Spain remained neutral during the European war there "were moments when intervention would have brought great material advantages." He added that Spain's neutrality had aided the allies during the North African invasion.

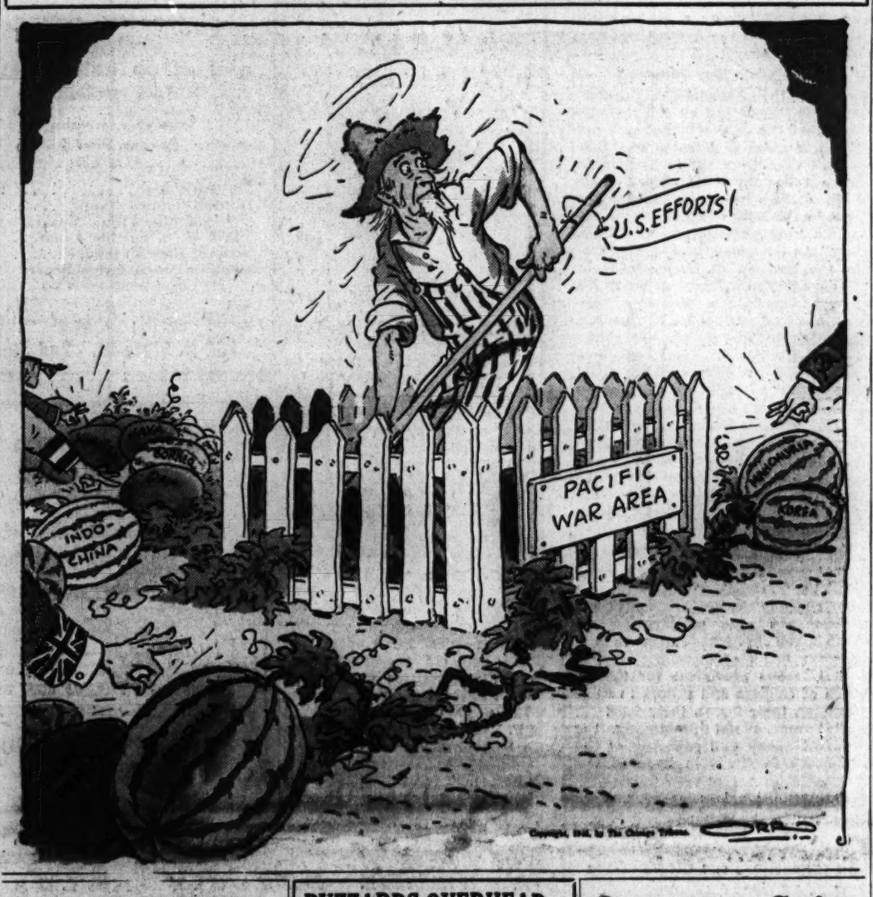
THE VICTORY GARDENER



Pool All Rail Coaches for Use of Army

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP)—All railway passenger coaches today were placed in a pool to be available for use by the army and navy.

In announcing the action, the office of defense transportation said the result probably would be considerably less space on passenger trains for civilians.

The order in itself does not curtail civilian passenger service, but it establishes the machinery for the withdrawal of cars as required by the armed services.

The order affecting more than 30,000 cars of various types, provides that all railway passenger, baggage, and express cars, exclusive of Pullman sleeping cars, may be used for such purposes as ODT may direct.

Demands to Increase

The announcement predicted that military demands for passenger equipment under the army redeployment plan will reach such proportions that some regularly scheduled passenger trains will have to be suspended in order to provide requisitioned cars.

"The military requirements must and will be met," declared ODT Director J. Monroe Johnson.

Asserting that travel "will become more uncomfortable than ever before," Johnson again took occasion to urge the public to avoid all unnecessary trips. He predicted that persons leaving home on unnecessary rail trips "may find themselves unable to return."

Effective at Once

The order, effective immediately, will remain in effect until the end of the war unless terminated earlier.

The pooling of passenger coaches for use by military forces followed Sunday's curtailment of sleeping car service, and indications were that additional Pullmans soon will be diverted to troop carrying.

Vice President C. H. Buford of the Association of American Railroads said, "An effort will be made to select equipment in a way that will avoid the need for discontinuing regular trains outright."

"This order," said Buford in a statement, "makes it mandatory for the railroads to do the things they have been doing on a voluntary basis."

BUZZARDS OVERHEAD AS 1,700 MEN FIGHT OREGON FOREST FIRE

Portland, Ore., July 17 (AP)—Nearly 1,700 men fought today amid flying embers to halt the largest forest fire in northwest Oregon since 1939.

While buzzards hung over the bodies of burned deer and rabbits, more than 1,200 soldiers and sailors helped civilians battle flames in the rugged Wilson river area, ablaze for the third time in 12 years.

The still spreading fire has covered 22,000 acres in six days, field charts showed. Other foresters' estimates ran as high as 28,000.

Soldiers and civilians have built nearly 100 miles of fire trail. With fires started by wind carried embers in bypassed spots, foresters said it might be months before the danger is over.

SURPLUS ARMY TRUCKS STILL RUST IN FIELD

Bloomington, Ind., July 17 [Special]—Still exposed to the weather here while civilian users go without needed trucks are 148 three ton International trucks owned by the treasury department which permitted them to remain out all winter. The trucks are on a field of the Woolery Stone Co.

Rep. Landis [R., Ind.] who introduced a bill in congress providing for a congressional investigation of the number and location of trucks now held by the treasury after they were declared surplus by the army, recently viewed the trucks with Mayor Jack Bruner of Bloomington.

"While our garages make every effort to repair our 'junk trucks,' this administration allows new trucks to rot and rust in open fields," Landis said. "In the '30s the New Deal tried to plow everything under, in 1943 they dumped our potatoes, last year they dumped our eggs, and this year they allow our trucks to rot and rust. No wonder the war effort will cost the American tax payers 300 billion dollars."

Gunmen Seize Rider in Auto; Let Driver Go

A heavy, bespectacled man was kidnaped last night by three masked motorists armed with shotguns and revolvers at the busy intersection of Roosevelt rd. and Blue Island av. Police assumed he was a victim of some gangland vengeance or ransom plot.

The victim was riding with another man, who was driving, in a gray Chevrolet sedan. It bore no license plates. As their eastbound motor car stopped for a red light, a black Mercury sedan pulled around at the right, then swerved in front, and cut off the Chevrolet.

Three men leaped from the Mercury. Two carried shotguns, the other a revolver. One covered three occupants of a third car, which also had pulled up for the stoplight, while his two pals pulled the heavy man from the Chevrolet. They pushed him into their Mercury, ordered his driver companion to "get going," then sped northeast in Blue Island av.

License Plate Gives Clew

The three witnesses in the third auto were L. Jacobs, 5943 N. Drake av., a jewelry salesman at 946 Roosevelt rd., who was driving; Clarence Carlson, 3332 Palmer st., and Jesse Jones, Negro, 2342 Dearborn st.

The trio gave police their only clew, the first three numbers—169—of the kidnap car. No automobile having a license beginning with that number has been reported stolen. However, four licenses beginning with 169 have been stolen or lost.

Victim's Betrayal Suspected

The probability that the victim was put on the spot by his driver companion was suggested by police after the failure of the driver to report the man missing. The additional probability of a plotted abduction was also seen in the lack of a license plate on the victim's car.

WOMAN, BOUND AND GAGGED, IS FOUND HANGED

Gagged and her hand tied behind her back, Mrs. Leone Houlehan was found hanged late last night in the garage behind her home at 10623 S. Fairfield av. She was 45 and wife of Dr. A. R. Houlehan, dentist.

Five minutes before midnight a man telephoned Morgan Park police and cried, "My wife has just committed suicide." Then he hung up. He appeared to be crying, police said.

A squad hurried to the scene and found Mrs. Houlehan dead. She was hanging from a rafter, a rope noose around her throat, a cloth stuffed into her mouth, and her hands tied behind her.

Riddle Plans to Put Billions in World Bank

BY WILLIAM MOORE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 17—Senate debate raged today over the plan to turn American billions over to a 12 man board, on which 11 members will be foreigners, under the Bretton Woods global finance plan.

Sen. Hart

Sen. Taft [R., O.] led the fight against the foreign domination he said is inevitable under a world bank and monetary stabilization fund system which he estimated will cost American tax payers 16 billion dollars.

And Sen. Hart [R., Conn.], former commander in chief of the American Asiatic fleet, riddled the internationalists' contention that the Bretton Woods plan is essential to the new international security charter.

All Want Loans

Asserting the plan would commit the United States to an initial outlay of 2¾ billion dollars for global lending based not upon need but upon the demand of 43 other nations for loans, Taft said:

"On the board will be 12 men, only one of them an American. You know the difficulties when you have 11 arguing against you. There might even be only seven against you, but they could sway the others.

"Other countries want American dollars. They want loans. Their representatives will think, 'My time to borrow is coming pretty soon, and I'd better not be too strict about loans for other countries.'

Russia Wants Factories

"If the representative of Great Britain knows his country is going to ask a loan next month, he won't be too strict about a loan being asked by France."

Taft told the senate Russia does not need her borrowing power for the express purpose of the stabilization fund—stabilizing currency—but wants to borrow so she can rebuild her factories. He quoted Edward Eagle Brown, Chicago banker and delegate to the conference at which the Bretton Woods agreement was drawn, as authority for the statement.

Hart said he has no opposition to the international security charter, but said the younger generation, now at the fighting fronts, has had little opportunity to express itself about either the charter or the Bretton Woods plan. Speaking for the younger generation, he said:

Resources Depleted

"We have been fair and often altruistic. Incidentally, the world may and probably does overestimate our physical capacity for future altruism. We are seriously depleted in our normal financial resources.

"In rebuilding ourselves, we must do what we can toward rebuilding a stricken world. . . . We can't do it all. We are only 140 millions of the 2,000 millions of people on this earth. We hope and trust that with the current one, war will be ended. But in all other fields of human endeavor, the law of the survival of the fit still holds. . . . We must keep America strong, strong for our own purposes, hope of the world or not.

"We who make decisions must now say 'No!' when necessary."

Brewster Backs Taft

Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] supported Taft when Taft urged adoption of the Bretton Woods plan be deferred, in order that American billions might be used as a bargaining power at the peace conference. Brewster said the state department complained when the senate war

TRUMAN CARRIES DRAFT OF PROPOSALS TO BERLIN

Rumors of a Tokyo Peace Overture Fill Capital

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 17—With rumors of peace overtures by Japan flooding Washington, it was learned tonight that President Truman took to the Potsdam conference a draft of proposed surrender terms to the enemy. These terms were drafted by the state, war and navy departments for submission to British Prime Minister Churchill and also to Russian Generalissimo Stalin if he manifests a disposition to aid the allies in the Far Eastern war.

[Prices of stocks broke severely yesterday as a result of traders' belief that the war with Japan may be nearing the end. The break emphasized the unexpectedly slow progress in getting industry back to civilian goods production. Stories are on page 23.]

The proposed peace terms include:

1. The surrender of all warships and aircraft in the possession of the Japanese government.
2. Surrender of all arms and equipment of the Japanese army in the Japanese home islands, on the Asiatic continent and in the East Indies.

Surrender of Territories

3. Disbandment of all Japanese naval and military forces wherever they may be stationed.
4. Evacuation and surrender of Manchuria, Korea, Formosa and all other territories outside of the Japanese homeland.
5. Destruction of factories and equipment for the manufacture of implements of war.
6. Supervision by an allied commission of merchant ship building, industry and import facilities.
7. Surrender of designated individuals for trial as war criminals by the allies fighting Japan.

No Mention of Hirohito

There was no mention, so far as could be learned, of the disposition of Emperor Hirohito and the future form of government in Japan. This is a highly controversial question on which President Truman had not taken a position up to the time he departed for the Big Three conference.

On the one hand are those who contend that the execution of the emperor as a war criminal and the destruction of the military dictatorship are essential to the safeguarding of the future security of the United States. Most vocal of the advocates of this policy are the communists and extreme New Dealers whose views are trumpetted in the Daily Worker and other radical publications.

View Vigorously Opposed

On the other hand are those who hold that the security of the United States from future attack can be effectively safeguarded by destruction of Japan's capacity to make war, without interfering with Japan's political and religious institutions headed by a god-emperor. The Japs, it is contended by those of this persuasion, will surrender the more easily if assured of non-interference with their emperor worship but will fight to the last ditch if their religion be subjected to dictation.

In the draft of the peace terms there was implied, if not specifically provided for, an allied occupation force to carry out the terms of the surrender and particularly to en-

POTSDAM, Germany, July 17 (AP)—The Big Three held the first full dress session of their great victory conference at 5 p. m. today, and President Truman was invited to preside during the conference.

A joint bulletin issued by Mr. Truman, Premier Stalin, and Prime Minister Churchill also said that during the meeting, which lasted 1½ hours, "the preliminary exchange of views took place on the matters requiring decision by the heads of the three governments."

The war against Japan unquestionably ranked high on the agenda of the three governmental chieftains, their foreign secretaries, and military advisers.

Text of Official Bulletin

The bulletin text:

"The Berlin conference of the heads of the governments of the United Kingdom, the United States of America, and the soviet union met this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

"By invitation of his two colleagues, the President of the United States of America will preside at the meetings of the conference.

"The preliminary exchange of views took place on the matters requiring decision by the heads of the three governments.

"It was decided that the three foreign secretaries should hold regular meetings with a view to preparing the work of the conference."

No Hint on Specific Issues

There was no indication as to what specific "matters requiring decision" had been touched upon, or how strongly, at this first parley in which the Missouri-born President occupied the chair once reserved for the late President Roosevelt.

It was generally considered by observers, however, that out of more than a score of major problems varying from occupation policy to setting the date of the peace conference, the most importance was attached to whether Stalin will change Russia's role in the Pacific war from a passive to an active ally against Japan.

The bulletin was issued to correspondents shortly after 11 p. m.

[The official bulletin apparently was at least two hours behind the release of the same news on the Moscow radio as recorded by Reuters in London.]

Other than the bulletin's brief wordage the only comment from the American officer who read it aloud was to stress that it was a joint bulletin from the heads of all three governments.

Truman Confers with Staff

"Please don't assume that it's strictly an American announcement," he said.

Whether the opening session devoted much attention to the Pacific war problem was not known, but as soon as it ended, Mr. Truman conferred during the dinner hour with Secretary of War Stimson, Adm. King, Gen. Marshall, United States chief of staff, and Gen. Arnold, chief of the United States army air forces.

There was a minimum of formality as Truman, Stalin, and Churchill opened their discussions which may secure the peace of Europe, speed victory over Japan, and settle the basis of the German peace treaty.

Strict Secrecy Maintained

Strict official secrecy was maintained around the meeting site—the Kaiser Wilhelm palace, bordered by flowers, a lake, and miniature park, all in striking contrast to the ruins of Berlin itself.

Stalin met President Truman for the first time at noon in an hour long conference at the "Little White House" and shared a simple, mid western style luncheon with him.

Churchill entertained Stimson at luncheon and was believed to have discussed the Pacific war with him.

Truman Faces Test of Stalin Banquet

POTSDAM, Germany, July 17 (AP)—President Truman, the freshman of the Big Three, has yet to run the toast making gantlet of a Stalin "zavtrakh." But the time is nearly at hand. "Zaxtrakh" is a Russian word used variously for "tomorrow morning" and "breakfast."

But when the soviet premier invites Truman to a "zavtrakh," as he will assuredly do in return for the President's hospitality today of baked ham and fried liver, it will mean a state banquet with the food ranging from Caspian caviar to Louis XVI. pastries—and toasts in everything from hunter's vodka with the power of liquid fire to the rarest of old Caucasian wines.

Truman's friends are betting the President will make a competent zavtrakh debut. He has, they say, stamina of many sorts.

A soviet toast is not idly thought up or dully expressed. Stalin is not a loquacious man, but Americans and British who have heard him at zavtrakhs call him truly eloquent.

Marshall of a planned review of American troops, had been early indications that the first session of the great conference was about to begin.

Stalin, whose absence yesterday caused a postponement of the opening, arrived in Berlin Monday afternoon with Foreign Commissar Molotov, it was learned. His whereabouts was one of the best kept secrets of the momentous parley.

Riding in a glistening black limousine and preceded by half an hour by special green capped soviet guards, Stalin arrived at the "Little White House" at 11:50 a. m. with Molotov and two high Russian officers. He was greeted by Mr. Truman's military and naval aides, and then was taken to the President's second floor office.

The two leaders, Molotov and Secretary of State Byrnes, talked for an hour there thru the aid of interpreters—V. N. Pavlov, who has assisted Stalin at every Big Three conference, and Charles E. Bohlen, veteran of the United States department of state.

Liver and Bacon for Lunch

What they discussed remained an official secret. Afterward Mr. Truman, attired in a brown business suit, presided at luncheon which included fried liver and bacon with onions, baked ham, creamed spinach, string beans, Julienne potatoes, pumpernickel bread, jam, sliced fruit, cookies, mint, candies, and cigars.

Blasts Rock Berlin

All day long, explosions rocked the entire Berlin-Potsdam sector, emanating apparently from the Russian zone of occupation.

The blasts, occurring about hourly thruout the day, still were unexplained tonight, but possibly were only supervised demolition work. They added a darkly foreboding touch to a day already dismal from storm clouds and dashes of cold, hard rain.

While the weather was inclement, the feeling prevailed that the conference preliminaries had sounded an optimistic note. This was true especially in the way Stalin and Churchill disregarded protocol for their personal visits to the President today and yesterday.

Further, there was the fact that the Russians—altho Potsdam is in their zone of occupation—avoided making any claim of being the "host" power, but rather insisted the conference was one among three co-equal hosts.

Inside Berlin, German communist circles hailed the meeting as assuring tripartite collaboration in European reconstruction, in suppression of the remains of fascism, which the Communists declare still exists in Spain and Portugal, and in efforts to restore the recovery of France and Belgium.

BIG 3 COMPOUND CLOSED TO EYES OF WORLD PRESS

Potsdam Reservation Is Walled in Secrecy

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, July 17—A wall of secrecy surrounds the Big Three compound at Potsdam. At first, efforts were made by officers of the press camp to help correspondents obtain color and details and see as much as possible so long as this did not conflict with the rule that correspondents are not to report on the conference itself. It was hoped that Charles G. Ross, Presidential press officer, or British Officer Peck, or possibly a Russian official, would address the press every day.

Today Ross and Peck stated that this would be impossible and that correspondents are to be given only an occasional handout.

Charge Political Censorship

British correspondents charge that political censorship also has been imposed since they were not allowed to quote remarks made by Prime Minister Churchill during his tour of Berlin. This ban was imposed at the special request of the prime minister.

The representatives of three news agencies and a radio company who traveled with President Truman are not allowed to report on the conference, it is said. They file news only about the President's movements. Secret service men notify them when the President leaves the compound and then they travel after him wherever he goes.

Whether the office of war information has its own representative in the compound who can get at the delegates to obtain information is not known at this press camp.

Photogs Fare Better

Photographers fared better than reporters since they were allowed to enter the buildings in which the conference is to be held. They also were allowed in the residences of the participants to take pictures a few days before the conference started.

Russian photographers fared even better than their American, English, and French colleagues. They were allowed to take pictures of the air field on which Mr. Truman and Churchill landed with their parties, but Russian reporters are outside the compound just like the Americans and British.

RUSSIAN SECRET POLICE CARRY ON IN U. S. SECTOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, July 17—Tho we have officially taken over the American sector in Berlin, the Russian N. K. V. D., better known as the G. P. U. secret police, has a big headquarters right in the American district from which it issues orders to the local population. The headquarters is in Nikolassee, which is part of the Zehlendorf borough assigned to the sole control of the United States.

Green capped N. K. V. D. soldiers mount guard with bayonets fixed and there is a steady stream of G. P. U. officers and soldiers. The population says the Russians still are carrying out arrests. G. P. U. men in uniform and civilian clothes enter private homes, ordering the civilians to report to their offices.

The Russian police carry on activities in the same streets which are being patroled by the Americans. A number of N. K. V. D. patrols also travel the area in cars and jeeps.

Planes Bring Fresh Water to Big Three Each Day

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, July 17—To spare the Big Three the ordeal of drinking chlorinated water, planes are flying in fresh drinking water daily. Each delegation feeds its own members. American delegates pay for their own food at the rate of two marks for breakfast and four marks each for lunch and dinner. This is 20 and 40 cents, respectively, at the official rate of exchange.

REPORT TRUMAN HAS TERMS FOR JAP SURRENDER

Peace Bid Unconfirmed.

There was no official confirmation of any of the flying peace rumors in the capital tonight. The state department denied receipt of any overtures for peace from Tokyo, while admitting that any communication of that character could have been dispatched directly to Mr. Truman at Potsdam.

Any move toward surrender on the part of the Japs, it was pointed out, undoubtedly would be made thru a neutral nation. For this reason, unusual interest attached to the report that Tokyo had confided a peace offer to Stalin for submission to Mr. Truman and Mr. Churchill.

At the war and navy departments the peace rumors were discounted, altho the belief was prevalent that the current devastating naval and air bombardment of the Jap homeland has produced an enemy crisis of great moment. Significant straws in the wind were the Tokyo broadcast warning that the Japs "would fall into irretrievable confusion compelling surrender if they pinned hopes of victory on a split among the allies" and the hurried meeting of the Jap cabinet.

"Anything May Happen"

While the American high command is proceeding on the assumption that the Japs will not quit until their army is defeated and that it will take from six to 12 months more to attain their object, some high officers were saying tonight that in the light of current developments "almost anything may happen." As they view it, Japan is now in the position of Germany about 30 days before collapse, so far as air power is concerned. The Japs, they say, are evidently short of gasoline, spare parts for plane repair and competent pilots. This combination of deficiencies might easily precipitate the collapse of the Jap war machine.

American air forces are now raining 1 million leaflets a day on Japan urging the Japanese people to surrender and save their land from destruction. The leaflets contain President Truman's definition of "unconditional surrender."

Means End of War

"It means the end of the war," said the President.

"It means the termination of the influence of the military leaders who have brought Japan to the present brink of disaster.

"It means provisions for the return of soldiers and sailors to their families, their farms, their jobs.

"It means not prolonging the present agony and suffering of the Japanese in the vain hope of victory.

CATHERINE GORCEY

Santa Monica, Cal., July 17 (AP)—Groucho Marx, 54, screen and radio comedian, and Catherine Marie Gorcey, 24, today applied for a marriage license. Marx signed his true name, Julius Marx.

It will be the second marriage for both. Marx was divorced by his first wife, Ruth, July 15, 1942, after 22 years of marriage. The bride-to-be was divorced from Actor Leo Gorcey, one of the original Dead End Kids, in June, 1944, after five years of marriage

While the pair was noncommital regarding wedding plans, the actress anxiously asked the clerk if the license "is good until Saturday."

LIBERAL PARTY PICKS KING FOR SEAT IN HOUSE

ALEXANDRIA, Ont., July 17 (AP)—Prime Minister King, leader of the Canadian government without himself having a seat in parliament since his defeat in the dominion election June 11, was nominated tonight as the Liberal party's candidate for a by-election in Glengarry county.

A vacancy for King was opened in the house of commons by the resignation of Dr. W. B. MacDiarmid, Liberal.

King's supporters predicted tonight he would be elected by acclamation thru the failure of opposition parties to nominate a rival candidate on July 30, the official day for nominations.

They will pick up the guests there at or before 9 a. m. and at the park about 3:30 p. m.

PARIS, July 17 [Reuters]—The life of the French provisional consultative assembly is to be extended for a fortnight until Aug. 3, it was announced after a cabinet meeting today.

JAPS WORRIED ABOUT WHAT PARLEY HOLDS IN STORE FOR THEM

San Francisco, Cal., July 17 (AP)—In an obvious effort to continue the Japanese propaganda line that Anglo-Russo-American coöperation is largely imaginary, the Japanese Domei news agency today broadcast a long speculative account of the Big Three meeting in Potsdam. It insisted that "divergencies of interest" were appearing which would split the Big Three and mark the end of their collaboration.

Japanese concern that the Big Three meeting might turn Russian eyes eastward became evident, however, in a Tokyo broadcast of a commentary in the important newspaper Asahi Shimbun.

"By taking up the East Asia issues in the meeting," the broadcast said, "the Anglo-American nations will try to turn the Russian eye to East Asia in an attempt to avoid friction with the soviet union which is now in a most favorable position with her hands entirely free from the war."

JUDGE JOHNSON MAY ESCAPE U.S. IMPEACHMENT

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP)—Chairman Sumners [D., Tex.] of the house judiciary committee said today that "no practical purpose" would be served in impeachment of former Federal Judge Albert W. Johnson.

Sumners told a reporter he was giving his own views but that "we all know the subcommittee is composed of men of common sense."

A judiciary subcommittee for more than a year has been investigating to determine whether impeachment of the former Pennsylvania middle district federal judge is warranted.

Sumners said that under the Constitution, the only penalties provided in impeachment proceedings are removal from office and a permanent bar to future federal office. Johnson recently resigned and waived rights to a $10,000 a year pension.

The subcommittee, however, has reached no decision on what its recommendations will be,

BUS WAGE HIKE WON BY AURORA, ELGIN DRIVERS

The national labor relations board has recommended an increase of 3 cents an hour for Aurora and Elgin bus drivers, Thomas Kavanaugh of Wheaton, president of local 215, Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employers, was advised yesterday by telegram.

The message said the board is remanding the case to the regional WLB. The drivers were granted an increase of 6 cents an hour last year by their employer, the National City Lines, but the increase was set aside by the regional board.

The recommended increase would be retroactive to March, 1944. The present pay scale for drivers is 82 cents an hour on city lines and 84 cents an hour on interurban lines.

URGE 20 YR. PACT FOR CHINA, REDS, BRITAIN, FRANCE

CHUNGKING, China, July 17 (AP)—The Chinese people's political council today passed a resolution urging the government to initiate negotiation for a 20-year military alliance with Russia, Britain and France. The United States was not included in the resolution on the ground that it was against America's traditional policy to enter such an alliance.

Another resolution called on the government to name Emperor Hirohito of Japan as a war criminal, while a third urged China's immediate ratification of the united nations charter.

The peoples' political council is an advisory body whose recommendations are brought before the central executive committee of the Kuomintang for final decision. It has been in session since July 7.

DE GAULLE WILL VISIT U. S. AFTER BIG 3 MEETING

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP)—Agreement has been reached between the United States and France that Gen. De Gaulle will visit this country shortly after the Big Three meeting ends, American officials said today.

An official statement was still withheld because an exact date for the French leader's trip remains to be fixed.

De Gaulle announced several weeks ago that he had accepted an invitation for the visit from President Truman, but United States confirmation was lacking until today.

Goebbels' Foot Deformed by Bungler, Brother Says

WIESBADEN, Germany, July 17 (AP)—Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels' elder brother, Hans, said today the former nazi propaganda minister did not have a clubfoot as the world supposed, but was victimized in childhood by a bungling doctor who deformed his foot in a needless operation. Hans Goebbels is a prisoner in allied hands.

TELL CHICAGO MAN'S ROLE IN ELLIOTT CHAIN

An Executive in Texas Radio Enterprise

New York, N. Y., July 17 [Special]—Gerald L. Stanley, former vice president and treasurer of Elliott Roosevelt's Texas State Network of radio stations and now a clerk in a Chicago loop clothing store, was the third man in the network's New York office with Elliott Roosevelt when John M. Kantor, ex-Chicago politician and confidence man, signed a release from the $10,500 contract Roosevelt had signed with him as president of the net work.

Associates said it was Stanley, not a federal bureau of investigation representative, who negotiated with Kantor on the release from his contract shortly after it had been signed by Roosevelt. Since disclosure of John Hartford's $200,000 loan to Roosevelt, Stanley has refused to make any statement regarding his association with Roosevelt and the net work.

Instructed to Find Capital

Kantor's contract, running from June 1, 1939, to June 1, 1940, stipulated he was "to devote your full time and energy to making financial contracts in the matter of raising capital for the various enterprises that I am interested in."

Kantor claimed the agreement signed by Roosevelt included a provision that it was "contingent upon and is subject to your being successful in obtaining an additional loan for me at this time of $100,000 to be used in the promotion and operation of the Texas State Network."

Kantor, who spent 20 months in a prison as a swindler and is now on parole, said he was induced to sign a release from the contract with young Roosevelt after it had been in effect only a short time.

"Realty Expert" in Chicago

Kantor is remembered in Chicago as a real estate expert appointed by Mayor William Hale Thompson in June, 1915, and charged in November with accepting $1,000 for special services in the attempted sale of property for school purposes.

Leaving Chicago for Montreal, Kantor was a frequent host to former associates during the prohibition era. A number of Chicago aldermen accepted one invitation to a banquet to which Kantor had invited friends from all over Canada. Appreciative of his efforts, the aldermen made speech after speech eulogizing Kantor and never learned until weeks later that the other guests at the banquet were mostly prospective customers of the promoter.

A Check Bounces

Kantor returned to Chicago in 1931 for the wedding of his daughter, Thelma, in a downtown hotel. The wedding cost $4,300 and Kantor tendered as part payment a $1,100 check on a Montreal bank. The check was returned with a "stop payment" stamp on the back.

He was arrested several times on confidence game charges but was never convicted until 1938, when he was charged with fraud in a Connecticut stock deal.

54 MORE FROM CONGRESS PLAN TOURS ABROAD

Junkets Voted Over Hot Protests

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 17—Fifty-four members of the house secured free around-the-world passes and expenses for junkets today amid warnings from three representatives that additional foreign tours by congressmen may stir up trouble.

The house will adjourn this week until Oct. 1. The foreign affairs and interstate and foreign commerce committees, with a membership of 50 men and four women, hastened to obtain approval of resolutions permitting them to go abroad at public expense during the holiday and investigate practically anything into which they may wish to inquire. Under the resolutions members are authorized to go any place they choose.

Exodus to Homes Starts

There was heated opposition from Representatives Cochran [D., Mo.], chairman of the accounts committee which must finance the junkets; Rankin [D., Miss.], and Cox [D., Ga.]. But Majority Leader McCormack [R., Mass.] said he saw no harm in the proposed tours and approval was voted, 91 to 7. More than 300 lawmakers, the vote indicated, were already on the way home.

Cochran said there wasn't much money left in the contingent fund for the expenses of the new junkets, estimated at $100,000. The house will have to appropriate more taxpayers' money, he warned, and added:

"This is a better way of getting ourselves into more trouble than any other. These committees propose to go into countries where our diplomatic representatives have not yet been allowed to enter."

"Let's concentrate on our own country for a change," agreed Rankin.

'Fraught with Danger'

"We have great problems needing investigation here. If you want to find out about troubles overseas, you can get more by interviewing some of the uniformed soldiers in the galleries than by going abroad."

"This proposition is fraught with great danger," assented Cox. "Members of the foreign affairs committee will be regarded as our diplomatic representatives. Any of their actions or statements are liable to misinterpretation. The only reason for these two committees wanting to go abroad is injured vanity. Members feel they have lost standing because they haven't joined in these foreign tours. What are they going to investigate?

Inquiry indicated that practically all members of the two committees will take advantage of the legislation to visit abroad in the next two months.

Minor Injuries

Dunlap, Ia., July 17 [Special]—Eleven cars of the eastbound Union Pacific streamliner City of Los Angeles jumped the tracks four miles east of here at 5:30 a. m. today after a cloudburst had washed out dirt beneath a rail.

Only minor injuries were caused among the 275 persons aboard, none of whom was hospitalized. Justice Frank Murphy of the United States Supreme court, en route to Bennington, Vt., was shaken up but unhurt, as was his brother, Harold.

One car, a diner, struck an abutment of the Boyer river bridge and plunged into the stream. The three persons aboard it—two conductors and a waiter—escaped as one end of the car sank into the river and the other end lodged on the bank.

"It was a miracle that many were not killed," Conductor J. C. Bowes, Boone, Ia., said.

The clan ranges from Dolores, 25, down to Jimmy, 4. Three of the boys followed their father into the navy and are serving overseas. Two of the girls are married.

TEACHER FIRED IN F.D.R. SLUR CASE FILES SUIT

Miss Nellie Mills, a teacher in Washington High school, East Chicago, Ind., who was ordered to resign by the school board of the suburb on a charge of insubordination arising from her alleged disparagement of the late President Roosevelt, filed suit yesterday in the Superior court at Hammond, Ind., seeking reinstatement with full rights, reimbursement for salary lost during suspension, and costs of litigation. Her suit, filed by Atty. Allen P. Twyman, said the board lacked grounds for voting to cancel her contract. Judge Harold L. Strickland gave the board until July 30 to answer.

The charge was based on a report that Miss Mills, on the occasion of the President's death, said, "For the first time in 12 years I can pledge allegiance to the flag."

Twyman said the insubordination charge could not be supported. "It was proved at her trial that she did not make the remark attributed to her," he said. Twyman added that "it never has been proved that she did not conduct the memorial service" for the late President, which had been ordered by the school board April 13.

JAPS WAITING TO STRIKE, SAYS TOKYO'S RADIO

Will Move When Time Is Ripe, It Reports

San Francisco, Cal., July 17 (AP)—The Tokyo radio tonight broadcast that Premier Kantaro Suzuki saw Emperor Hirohito at the unusual hour of 5 p. m. today to report on "general administration" after a cabinet meeting lasting more than two hours.

This step attracted attention despite Suzuki's announced determination not to resign, because of military setbacks, in the manner followed by his two war time predecessors, Hideki Tojo and Kuniaki Koiso.

The radio also claimed that Japanese arms have a "counter-strategy" for the American fleet and aerial bombardment.

Must Preserve Strength

"It is vitally necessary that we preserve our strength and strike with lightning effect," the Domei news agency said. "We must not move until the time is ripe. We must not play into the enemy's hands."

Domei recalled that in 1904 Adm. Kamimura had waited to catch the Russian fleet and knock it out, and concluded: "As in 1904, the Japanese must also wait the right moment."

Admitting that Kyushu Island is within reach of land based American planes from Okinawa and Iwo and that B-29s repeatedly rake the empire as far north as the Kanto district, Domei said: "This bluntly reveals the seriousness of the war situation."

A Domei dispatch reported that Japanese defenders now have "wiped out" unidentified allied forces which it claims two weeks ago invaded Ternate Island west of Halmahera in the Indies. It listed 18 allied ships sunk or heavily damaged. No confirmation of this alleged action has come from any allied source.

Fear Celebes Invasion

It also expressed fear that allied troops on Borneo might soon cross the Makassar straits to invade the important Dutch island of Celebes to the east.

Faced with an acute transportation problem, the Japanese army has taken over control of all automobile production and existing motor cars, the Japanese war ministry disclosed in a domestic broadcast. The new control measure includes horse and ox carts, handcars, bicycle trailers, and even carrying poles.

DE VALERA CALLS EIRE FREE WITH LINK TO BRITISH

BY HUGH CURRAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

DUBLIN, Eire, July 17—"The state is what it is and not what I say it is," Prime Minister De Valera told the dail [parliament] tonight in reply to a question by Deputy James Dillon whether Eire is a republic or still a member of the British commonwealth of nations.

"The position as I conceive it to be is this," De Valera said. "We are an independent republic associated as a matter of external policy with the British commonwealth. To mark this association we avail ourselves of the procedure of the external relations act by which the king, recognized by the states of the British commonwealth, acts for us under advice in certain specified matters in the field of external relations.

"As to whether we are a member of the British commonwealth, that is a question for which the material necessary for a conclusive answer is not yet fully available. It depends on what is the essential element in the constitution of the British commonwealth."

OKINAWA JAPS' GUERRILLA CHIEF SLAIN BY YANKS

Trailed to Hideout in Mountains

OKINAWA, July 17 (AP)—The Japanese commander of all guerrilla forces on Okinawa has been killed by Yanks who trailed him to a masterfully camouflaged hideout in the northern mountains, Gen. Stilwell disclosed tonight.

The enemy officer, Lt. Col. Tokiharu Aoyagi, was shot and killed as he attempted to flee from an American patrol organized by Maj. Silas W. Bass of Los Angeles, 27th division headquarters commandant.

When Americans captured Yontan and Kadena air fields the first day of the Okinawa invasion, Aoyagi, retreated northward, fighting desperately from hill to hill. Aoyagi, former commander of the Japanese air sector of Okinawa, disappeared during the battle which broke the last organized Japanese resistance on the island.

Organize Manhunt

Then the Yanks learned the enemy officer had assumed command of all guerrillas, and Maj. Bass organized a 60 man patrol to capture him and remnants of a Japanese battalion. Commanding the patrol was Capt. Andrew B. Campbell, West Hartford, Conn.

The patrol climbed almost perpendicular cliffs thru brush so thick it had to be cut away and in sweltering heat.

Hawaiian Finds Jap

Moving in stealthily, Lt. Wallace S. Amioka of Honolulu, got within five feet of a gray haired, gray goateed Japanese sitting in the shade reading. It was Aoyagi. He was dressed in a striped kimona.

When Aoyagi heard Amioka he jumped up and ran toward the hills but riflemen dropped him and he died 20 minutes later.

Aoyagi's hideout contained enough food, ammunition and weapons to last a large group of fighters for a year. A large part of the food and arms had been stolen from the Americans.

DOCTOR DECIDES CHICAGO GANG ISSUES ON SHIP

ABOARD A U. S. DESTROYER, Western Pacific (AP)—When an argument about Chicago's gangs develops on this tough little ship they leave it to Mrazek to settle.

He is Lt. Charles Mrazek, the ship's doctor, 1057 S. Austin blvd. Chicago, who used to do a lot of practice in Chicago's bridewell prison. If a moving picture has to do with Chicago's gangdom of the prohibition era, Mrazek is called on to verify scenes as "an old Chicago man who knew all those guys."

The men say this ship will always be lucky. An albatross once landed on her and remained all night.

GENERAL SAVES CHICAGO GIRL AT HAWAII BEACH

HONOLULU, T. H., July 17 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Wayne C. Smith, St. Joseph, Mo., chief of staff of the Central Pacific base command, rescued two persons from drowning at Waimanalo beach yesterday.

Sgt. Fred Siceloff, Lexington, N. C., who cannot swim, and Miss Kathryn Behrens, Chicago, had been floating on an inflated raft offshore. Siceloff tumbled into the water and dragged Miss Behrens with him.

Miss Kathryn Behrens

Gen. Smith heard the couple's cries for help, dashed out, loosened Siceloff's grip on the girl, and towed the soldier to safety. Miss Behrens, a civilian secretary in the general's office, swam in.

IN HAWAII A YEAR

Miss Behrens, 28, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene T. Behrens, 2334 Farragut av. She has been in Hawaii for the last year. She was employed for two years in the Chicago office of the army ordnance department.

24 MARINES TELL OF A HARD TRAIN TRIP; 23 ARE ILL

Miami, Fla., July 17 (AP)—Twenty-four marines—23 of them ill with dysentery apparently caused by bad food—arrived in Miami today to tell another chapter in the controversial issue of railroad transportation furnished to America's fighting men.

The marines, all air crewmen with an average of 50 missions in seven Pacific campaigns, were sent here by troop sleeper from El Centro, Cal., to attend operational training school at Opa Locka naval air base.

Pvt. Ed Linebarger of Batesville, Ark., wearer of four battle stars and the Presidential unit citation, acted as spokesman for the group.

Tells of Hardships

In an interview with the Miami Daily news he cited the following instances of hardship on the journey:

1. Meals of "mouldy green stuff they told us was chicken liver."

2. Having to pass thru air conditioned coaches occupied by German prisoners of war en route to the dining car.

3. Traveling in an unventilated car.

4. A water supply that sometimes worked, but generally didn't.

Their 3,000 mile trek started five days ago in El Centro, Linebarger said, and the marines "sweated, cussed, and carried on" thru the discomforts of the regulation troop sleeper with their ordeal made more difficult by the dubious quality of the food.

"The chow they served us for the first two days they wouldn't have dared offer a civilian," Linebarger said. "We noticed the chow improved considerably when the car was thrown open to civilians."

Oversize Chicken Livers

Linebarger said the purported chicken livers "weren't like any chicken livers I ever saw—they were as big as your hand."

"Yeah, and they were mouldy and green," another veteran said.

"We had some other stuff called beets a la king, split hot dogs—and that's what they charged the government $1 a meal for," said Linebarger. "It's no wonder 23 of us came down with dysentery this morning."

"It was rugged," said Corp. G. F. Ansell of Pittsburgh, Pa., who was wounded at Bougainville, "especially when we passed thru air conditioned coaches in which POWs were riding."

BRITAIN NAMES AMBASSADOR TO WARSAW REGIME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 17—Difficulties regarding the exchange of diplomatic representatives between Britain and the new Polish government appeared at least partially solved tonight when the foreign office announced that Victor Frederick Cavendish-Bentinck had been appointed British ambassador to Warsaw.

Robert Hankey, recently named British charge d'affaires in Warsaw, has left England to take up his post, it was said.

Bentinck served as third secretary to the British legation at Warsaw in 1919. Later he held appointments in Paris, The Hague, and Santiago, Chile. During the war he acted as chairman of the joint intelligence subcommittee of the allied chiefs of staff and as foreign office representative on the joint planning staff.

WITH THE U. S. 7TH FLEET SUBMARINES, July 17—Everything might have been all right if the sub had been content with sinking one of two Jap cruisers and damaging the second. But if there is anything submariners hate it's to leave a cripple. The Japs tow them in, repair them, and then you have to fight them all over again.

Lt. Comdr. Johnny Hyde is no exception. He came in out of the night for a second attack on a damaged surviving cruiser. She opened fire. The first salvo shook the sub.

"Guess they missed us," Hyde said.

"The hell they did," the exec said. "I can see light from the forward torpedo room."

He could, too. One eight-inch shell had knocked off the forward hatch used to load torpedoes and then had taken a nick out of the hull before bouncing off into the sea.

A piece of shrapnel whizzed between the legs of a sailor sitting below the hatch and more flew over him, setting fire to some curtains. But no one was injured and the fire lasted only a few seconds. Unable to dive because of its injuries the sub slipped out into the night on the surface.

Hyde radioed a report of his damage. In time another sub drew alongside. Hyde was advised to transfer his men and to scuttle the ship.

In one of those quotations for which submarine men are famous, Hyde said:

He asked for volunteers. The whole crew responded. He picked 27 men and a couple of officers and sent the rest of the men onto the rescue sub.

The skeleton crew welded patches over the torn hatch and the hole in the hull. The patches were strong enough to keep out the water washing across the deck but they would never withstand the pressure from a dive. The sub would have to make the entire trip back on the surface. And that was thousands of miles.

Hyde and his men accepted the risk. They brought the sub in. Now she is back in the fight.

BISHOP MAGEE ASSAILS DRAFT IN PEACE TIME

Bishop J. Ralph Magee of the Methodist area of Chicago yesterday told lay leaders of the church that, the United States being "the greatest nation on earth, has no right to follow down the path of peace time conscription." The 32 members of the general board of lay activities representing the six jurisdictional conferences of American Methodism opened a three days' parley in the Stevens hotel.

The Chicago bishop asserted that the San Francisco charter, when ratified by the nations, will wipe out the necessity of a peace time draft.

The laymen distributed in the last year more than a million books, pamphlets, and other printed matter supporting the wide range of their organized activities. Among these activities are pomotion of Chistian stewardship, lay speaking and preaching, development of larger support of the ministry, the training of local church officials, and personal and community evangelism.

JAPS BUTCHER 2,000 FILIPINOS AND BURN HOMES

INFANTA, Luzon, July 17 (AP)—Filipinos in this isolated east Luzon coastal town told today of a Japanese massacre of 2,000 natives in slaughter and looting that rivaled the Japs' infamy in Manila.

The Japanese raided scattered outlying districts, stabbing and slashing Filipinos in their beds, said Lt. Col. Jaime Manzano. Most of the persons who sought to escape were shot as they fled.

Mayor Faustino P. Juntereal said the Japanese massacred the Filipinos after finding American canned goods and learning of guerrillas in the villages. He asserted the death toll possibly was higher than the estimated 2,000.

SENATORS BACK STORY OF MASS RAPE IN GERMANY

Eastland Demands Truth on Stuttgart Report

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 17—Four more senators today joined Sen. Eastland [D., Miss.] in his charge that French Senegalese troops, wearing American uniforms, conducted a mass attack on German women in Stuttgart, Germany, this spring.

Eastland originally made the charge in a senate speech June 29 during debate on an appropriation for the fair employment practices committee.

Last week, Sen. Mead [D., N. Y.] in a senate speech said Eastland's account had been denied by high officers of the American 6th army group. Eastland had said the alleged attacks occurred in a subway in Stuttgart and Mead retorted there was no subway in that city.

He Reiterates Story

Eastland took the floor today to reiterate his story of the Stuttgart incident, saying the matter was "a matter of common knowledge" in Europe and that other senators who were in Europe on various missions in the last two months had been told the same story by "high officials."

Senators Wheeler [D., Mont.], Revercomb [R., W. Va.], McClellan [D., Ark.], and Maybank [D., S. C.] took the floor in turn today and told the senate they had received the same information as Eastland.

"When I was in Europe," Wheeler said, "I not only heard this story, but heard it from two American generals. One report said 2,000 girls were attacked, another that 5,000 were involved. It was also reliably reported that a Stuttgart doctor was forced to stand by and watch his two daughters be attacked. I understand the same thing has occurred in Italy."

Revercomb Trusts Source

Revercomb said the figure on the number of girls attacked had been reported to him as 5,000. "I consider the source from which I obtained the account of the affair as highly reliable," he told the senate.

McClellan and Maybank said they had heard substantially the same account as that given by Eastland.

Speaking to the senate today, Eastland said, "It was a horrible occurrence and the United States army should not resort to deception to hide the facts from the American people. As far as there being no subway in Stuttgart, any underground tunnel or shelter is called a subway in Europe."

PIN-CUSHION BRUNO PEPS UP OKINAWA YANKS

OKINAWA, July 17 (AP)—With a Seabee outfit here is Coxswain James H. Upton, who was an attraction at the Chicago World Fair. He is known as Bruno, the human pin cushion.

"When we want to play darts, we just use Bruno," said his friend, Navy Lt. Edward Mackin. "We paint a mercurochrome target on his back, and then he lets us stand off and toss darts into it. He bleeds a little now and then, but when he's in condition he doesn't bleed a bit.

"He eats double-edge razor blades, chews glass bulbs, and every now and then wins a bottle of whisky by offering to eat the bottle's neck. He also will let us sew buttons onto his skin. Doctors say he does it by rigid self-hypnosis. When he cuts himself as he shaves he bleeds as easily as you or I."

Chinese Council Praises Work of Gen. Chennault

M'ARTHUR PILOTS HIT AIR FIELDS AND JAP SHIPS

MANILA, July 18 [Wednesday] (AP)—Heavy aerial strikes from Okinawa against Kyushu, southernmost of Japan's home islands, were reported today by Gen. MacArthur. Bombers and fighters of the 5th and 7th air forces struck air fields, rail and water transport and military centers. They also blasted islands south of Kyushu.

Other planes of the MacArthur command again swept Formosa in neutralization raids while heavy bombers roared across the China sea to bomb an arsenal, an air field and shipping. More than 100 river boats were wrecked when the Yank flyers rained bombs in the Amoy, Swatow and Hong Kong areas.

In the coördinated aerial attacks on Kyushu, the flyers hit the Usa-Tomitaka airdrome on the northeast coast as well as other air fields on the heavily blasted island. Fires raged thru the target areas with smoke pillars rising 7,500 feet in the air.

The Japanese offered no air opposition.

[Japan's Domei agency last night reported American Liberator bombers and Black Widow night fighters attacked Mito and Tsuchiura, 55 miles northeast of Tokyo, shortly before United States and British battleship forces bombarded the Mito and Hitashi areas Tuesday night, Japanese time.]

CHICAGOLAND WACS ON WAY HOME FROM WAR

Corp. Paula D. Gammer, 911 Thatcher av., River Forest, Ill., is going home for reassignment because her husband had returned there from the Panama Canal Zone also for reassignment.

Among 8th air force WACs homebound for demobilization due to length of service are Corp. Bonislawa M. Cieslinski, 8372 Baker av., Chicago; Sgt. Elinor L. Frederick, Endeavor, Wis.; and Corp. Jean M. Bishop, Hillsdale, Mich.

OPA Suspends Dealer in Shoes for 15 Days

An order suspending S. Katzen, operator of a shoe store at 414 W. Chicago av., from dealing in rationed shoes for 15 days, effective after Saturday, was issued yesterday by Thomas E. Fairchild, office of price administration hearing commissioner. Katzen was charged with a discrepancy of 313 pairs of shoes in his ration inventory.

Japs Repulsed

CHUNGKING, July 17 [Reuters]—Chinese forces have captured Tunghing in the southwest corner of Kwangtung province, China, close to the Indo-China border, the Chinese war bulletin stated today. Tunghing is near the town of Moncay, in Indo-China, already captured by Chinese forces.

Japanese troops from the border town of Chungkingfu who attempted to cross into Kwangsi province, were repulsed.

Other Chinese units have penetrated the outer defenses of Kweilin, capital of the south Chinese province of Kwangsi and site of one of Japan's principal air bases in the south. They have also cut Japanese escape routes to the northeast and occupied Yining, 12 miles northwest, moving closer to Yungfu, 43 miles to the southwest of Kweilin.

AUSSIES PUSH AHEAD BY YARDS IN BORNEO DRIVE

MANILA, July 18 [Wednesday]—(AP)—Australian ground forces on Borneo, measuring their advance in yards, continued today to meet stubborn Japanese resistance as they pushed northeast from Balikpapan.

They were on the main highway to the oil center of Samarinda, 60 miles ahead, Gen. MacArthur reported.

Stiffening resistance also appeared to have stalled an Australian column Monday on the outskirts of the Sambodja oil fields. For the second day, sharp patrol activity marked the campaign to win control of Borneo's most productive oil lands.

First Coal from U. S. Arrives in Denmark

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, July 17—The first consignment of American coal has arrived in Denmark, it was announced today. Fears that the Virginia coal would be unsuitable for the production of illuminating gas were groundless. An analysis proved its gas content was beyond that of the best Ruhr coal. Six thousand tons have so far been received, insuring a fortnight's further supply of gas in Copenhagen.

DEPUTIES VOTE TO KEEP KING OUT OF BELGIUM

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 7—The Belgian chamber of deputies voted 98 to 6 today against the repatriation of King Leopold III. The vote prevents the king from reassuming the throne without parliamentary consent.

The senate will vote tomorrow on a bill which would deny the throne to the king on a left wing charge that he collaborated with Hitler while a prisoner of war for five years.

The issue split the cabinet of Socialist Prime Minister Achille van Acker. Six ministers of the conservative Catholic party, who supported the king, resigned in protest against the government stand. They will be replaced presumably by Socialists and Liberals and probably by adding a third Communist to the government.

Reject King's Plea

The vote in the chamber rejected the dramatic appeal from Leopold opposing Red agitation for his abdication. His letter, addressed to his brother, Charles, who is the regent, was read to the lawmakers by the prime minister before packed galleries.

Leopold argued that the majority of his subjects favor his return from the exile to which the pending legislation would condemn him. He pointed out that the present parliament was elected in 1939 and can not be recognized as representative of today's electorate. He asked that the decision as to his fate be postponed until after a new election can be held.

Awaits New Election

The king said that he will remain outside Belgium until the electorate names a new parliament which, he believes, will support a cabinet of his appointment. However, the bill passed by the lower chamber and going before the upper chamber today would continue the rule of the regent, Charles, until Leopold's son, Baudouin, dons the crown in 1948 at the age of 18.

Arguments on charges that Leopold collaborated with Hitler were scheduled for Friday.

British Royal Family Flies to Northern Ireland

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 17—Britain's king and queen today rode in a royal air force Dakota, which is a modified DC-3 plane of American fame, to Northern Ireland. Princess Elizabeth, 19, took her first plane ride in the craft, which was piloted by an RAF crew. Two squadrons of United States built Mustang fighters of the Polish wing of the RAF escorted the party.

4,275 GIs SENT FROM EUROPE REACH MANILA

MANILA, P. I., July 17 (AP)—The first American service troops shipped directly to the Pacific war zone from Europe without a trip home arrived here today. They got a wet, sloshy welcome after a month's journey from Italy.

The 4,275 veterans of Africa, Sicily, and Italy landed on a muddy Manila dock at dawn. Two bands played as the men moved from LCMS to freight cars, which carried them to a camp 35 miles south of here.

The troops came from about every service branch of the 5th army, ranging from railway construction to bridge repair and ordinance. There were four companies of white troops and the remainder were Negroes. None is considered a combat man but all have been thru considerable action.

Lt. Egan Driggott, Chicago, led a detachment of medium automotive maintenance troops.

BRITISH CLEAR BURMA HIGHWAY OF FLEEING JAPS

CALCUTTA, India, July 17 (AP)—British forces have cleared Japanese troops from the Heho-Taunggyi road—along which some Japanese were fleeing toward Thailand—up to a point two miles northwest of Taunggyi, 100 miles southeast of Mandalay, Southeast Asia command headquarters said today.

About 210 miles to the south, enemy forces held firmly to positions near the junction of the Pegu-Sittang canal and the Sittang river near Myitkyo, 29 miles northeast of Pegu. The Japanese have fortified a railway bridge at near-by Nyaungkashe and have established various forward strongpoints which are being probed.

HUNT TWO SUBS REPORTED SEEN OFF ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 17 (AP)—Cesar Ameghino, foreign minister of Argentina, told a press conference today that a report that one or possibly two submarines had been sighted off San Clemente del Tuyu was "being investigated."

He said that the government's only information regarding the reports of submarines off the Argentine coast came from Ismael Mendez, telephone station manager at San Clemente del Tuyu.

Denies Hitler Arrival

Ameghino also denied there was any truth to reports that Adolph Hitler and Eva Braun had disembarked from the German submarine U-530 on the Argentine coast. He said that for two months before the U-530 surrendered several days ago at Mar del Plata, Argentine police and naval patrol planes had kept a constant watch along the coastline and that "an investigation of the course U-530 followed to our shores does not indicate it approached the coast until the day it showed up at the Mar del Plata base. However, the vigilance of the federal police was intensified and extended into the interior of Patagonia, even to estates owned by Germans."

The Argentine government said it had decided to deliver the U-530 to the United States and Great Britain.

Regarding the newest submarine reports, the editor of the Dolores El Tribuno told the Associated Press that more than 100 persons saw two submarines off San Clemente del Tuyu shortly before 11 a. m. today. The vessels surfaced near the mouth of the River Platte about three miles off shore, the editor said.

[Two more U-boats have been captured near the Argentine coast between Mar del Plata and Buenos Aires, a Reuters dispatch quoted El Tribuno as saying. The newspaper says that the submarines are being escorted by Argentine naval planes, Reuters added.]

Couldn't Be Argentine

The police station in General la Valle, 120 miles south of Buenos Aires on the Atlantic coast, told the Associated Press that what seemed to be a submarine had been seen navigating off San Clemente point, 15 miles from General la Valle.

The navy ministry said the submarines could not possibly be Argentine as all were at their bases.

MRS. EDNA VEGELAHN

Mrs. Edna Vegelahn, 32, of 8805 Muskegon av., yesterday was awarded a divorce by Judge Harry M. Fisher in Circuit court from her husband, Otto, 36, a machinist. Her attorney, Sol R. Friedman, told the court that Vegelahn had given his wife 26 black eyes during their four years of married life. Since July, 1943, Friedman said, she had been getting one black eye a month. During the first year they were married she received only two, the attorney said. Mrs. Vegelahn waived alimony after her husband made a cash settlement of $2,240.

JAPS IMPROVISE GUNS BUT LOSE THEM ON LUZON

MANILA, July 18 [Wednesday]—(AP)—Improvising makeshift weapons, remnants of Japanese troops on northern Luzon attempted today to carry on their fight in the shattered Kiangan pocket, under attack by the American 6th infantry division.

A mortar hastily built from a length of three inch galvanized water pipe was found in one Nipponese position. Its base was part of the frame of a wrecked truck.

In Kiangan defile, other Red Star division doughboys found land mines made of 75 millimeter shell cases filled with picric acid explosive. Hand grenades filled with picric acid and sections of Japanese 37 millimeter shell cases—evidently also intended for makeshift mines—were also found.

U. S. BULLDOZES FORGOTTEN ROAD THRU JUNGLES

1,000 Scarce Machines Used on Project

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 17—When farm machinery was scarce and war plant construction was behind schedule in 1942, the army diverted more than 1,000 pieces of construction equipment including light tractors, to its nonessential Pan American highway project, a senate war investigating subcommittee learned today.

The information was given by Lt. Gen. Eugene Reybold, chief of army engineers, at a hearing called to determine whether the now abandoned highway project caused a waste of materials, equipment, and money, as charged recently in a senate debate.

Reybold disclosed that 12 "standard construction units" were used on the 600 miles of road built by the army in Guatemala, San Salvador, Honduras, Costa Rica, and Nicaragua. Rudolph Halley, committee counsel, then submitted documents showing there were 89 pieces of equipment in each unit.

Variety of Implements

The equipment included 80 horsepower tractors, bulldozers, power shovels, winches, rollers, compressors, trucks, graders, stone crushers, and other essential equipment.

The army's portion of the Pan American highway was approved early in 1942 on the understanding that it would not require the use of materials, equipment, and man power needed on essential war work, the committee was told last week.

"At the time the project was started," Halley said, "farm equipment was scarce as well as general construction equipment and war plant construction was behind schedule. And much of the time this machinery on the highway project was lying idle because of the rainy season. Wouldn't you call that a waste of essential equipment?"

Not Cognizant of Details

"The general staff was not cognizant of the details of the construction program," Hertford replied.

The committee continued its efforts, begun last week, to determine why the highway construction was not stopped until Oct. 31, 1943, despite a recommendation by the army operations division more than two months earlier that the work be stopped.

Today it developed that Reybold himself, on April 9, four months before the operation division had acted, had reported that the work already done had interfered with the war effort and that the project could not be continued without further interference.

PROBE 'INJUSTICE' TO CHENNAULT, SENATE URGED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 17—A stirring defense of army and navy reserve officers was made in the senate today by Sen. Ellender [D., La.], who asserted that "proportionately more medals and more praise will be found among our reserve officers and those promoted from the ranks than among the brass hats."

Sen. Ellender

Ellender's praise of officers who are not graduates of West Point or Annapolis came in a speech demanding a senate military committee investigation of the facts surrounding the resignation of Maj. Gen. Chennault as commander of the 14th air force in China. He introduced a resolution proposing the investigation.

"Gen. Chennault came up the hard way," Ellender declared. "He is not a graduate of the Point. It might be that a grave injustice has been done to a great general and I am asking that a thoro investigation be made by the military affairs committee of the senate so as to ascertain the facts in the [Chennault] case."

OWI Told to Prepare U. S. for Saddest News on Food

Europe's Needs Cited

BY ROBERT YOUNG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 17—The office of war information has received orders from the White House to launch a high pressure propaganda campaign to prepare the American public for continued food shortages so that supplies can be shipped to liberated European countries, it was disclosed today. The announcement came amid warnings in congress that America cannot feed the world.

The campaign will undertake to explain Europe's enormous relief needs. The domestic branch of the OWI has been instructed to give the drive precedence over even the "Defeat Japan" program and other publicity projects such as surplus property, veterans' and economic stabilization.

Bosenman Urges Propaganda

John Herrick, executive director of the OWI domestic branch, who revealed the impending propaganda drive, said the agency's new assignment was the result of Samuel I. Rosenman's mission to study liberated Europe's needs early this year. Rosenman, special adviser and legal counsel to the late President, made the survey at Mr. Roosevelt's request and on April 30 submitted his report to President Truman.

In his report, Rosenman declared America will have to provide most of the civilian supplies for Europe and urged a propaganda drive to convince Americans they should tighten their belts to help feed other nations.

The OWI plans to issue periodic reports on the progress of the relief job, including reports on what Great Britain, Russia, Canada, and other nations besides the United States are contributing, it was learned.

Sees Hatred for U. S.

Commenting upon the disclosure of the White House sponsored propaganda campaign, Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] said in an interview today that altho he favored relief for the destitute in Europe, he feared the United States has made promises of supplies and aid to European nations far larger than the American public is able to furnish. He added that Europeans expect these promises to be kept.

"When they find that the United States cannot comply with their demands, we will be the most hated of nations," Wheeler predicted. "Already in Europe, people are saying that they were treated better before they were liberated."

Rep. Springer [R., Ind.], in another house speech, denounced shipping of soap to European countries in the face of what he called a "critical" domestic shortage. The department of agriculture confirmed the report that 10 to 15 million pounds of American soap will be sent abroad for civilian use between now and the end of the year.

It was recalled that the shortage of soap has been intensified by a consumer run caused by the recent statement of UNRRA Director Lehman suggesting that Americans be subjected to soap rationing if such action were needed to supply European civilians.

Today's food and European relief developments followed last night's statement by Agriculture Secretary Anderson that for many months there will be "difficult" shortages of many important food items. In some instances, he said, shortages will persist well into 1946.

UNRRA Probe Asked

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP)—Rep. Dirksen [R., Ill.] called today for a congressional investigation of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration to answer a series of questions about the agency's operations.

One of the questions, he said in a statement, is: "Why is UNRRA being investigated by British intelligence?"

The others include:

Why does UNRRA need more than 200 persons in Washington headquarters at salaries ranging from $5,000 to $15,000?

Bonded by British

Why are UNRRA employes bonded in a British rather than in an American firm?

Why is it reported that the accounts of UNRRA are so "messy" that they cannot be audited?

Tractors to Balkans

Why are other tractors being flown to Balkan countries in American planes by American pilots at great expense?

Why have so many capable men resigned from UNRRA?

Why is the UNRRA and the military effort so uncoördinated that 1,500 UNRRA employes should be wasting time at Granville, France, doing nothing and awaiting assignment?

PUSH ELECTIONS TO PLACE ITALY BACK ON ITS FEET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, July 16—Fifty tons of election instructions were carried from Rome to northern Italy in the last few days by allied military trucks while Italy was suffering from a food shortage blamed on lack of transportation, said the Milan newspaper Corriere Informazione.

This shows, the paper asserted, the importance the allies attach to the early functioning of democratic government in Italy. It added that they "want to facilitate all possible steps to lead the country out of its political uncertainty."

Premier Ferruccio Parri has made the first move toward convening consultative and constituent assemblies. The first of these bodies, to be called consulta, is planned to serve as a parliament in lieu of an elected assembly until the constituent assembly can be organized. Municipal elections should take place in October. The constituent assembly is expected to be called next spring.

3 U. S. Newspapermen Visit Gen. Richardson

HONOLULU, T. H., July 17 (AP)—Three American newspaper men today conferred with Lt. Gen. Richardson, commander of army forces in the central Pacific. They were Joseph M. Patterson, publisher of the New York Daily News; Peter L. Jackson, president and publisher of the Portland, Ore., Journal, and John O'Donnell, Washington correspondent of the News. The three plan to visit Gen. MacArthur later.

FOUND SUFFOCATED IN FREIGHT CAR

The unclothed body of a Negro man about 20 years old, who apparently died of suffocation, was found yesterday in an air tight Santa Fe railroad freight car which arrived in the yards at 47th st. and Central Park av. from Los Angeles, Cal.

HERO CAPTAIN, RELEASED, NOW FACING DRAFT

Newport, R. I., July 17 (AP)—A former army captain who rose from the ranks, was decorated for heroism, and medically discharged after 10 years' service, including three in this war, now faces induction as a private within the next two or three months.

Paul F. Solecki, 29, native of Wheeling, W. Va., and resident of Newport, heard today that he had passed a physical examination in Boston ordered last week by selective service at Wheeling and was informed he would be inducted within the next two or three months.

A Hero at Cassino

A veteran of the invasions of North Africa and Sicily, and the actions at Anzio beach and Cassino, Solecki—an artillery man—is the possessor of a bronze star medal for heroism at Cassino Dec. 26, 1943. A subsequent victim of malaria, he was medically discharged three months ago.

At Wheeling, Bernard Kaiser, a member of the board, said the board had been ordered by the adjutant general's office in Washington to place Solecki's name on the list of registrants eligible for induction. Kaiser said Washington authorities gave the board no details on the case.

The citation accompanying Solecki's medal declares that "during an intense shelling of the battery area an ammunition bay of a 90 millimeter gun pit received a direct hit, setting fire to the ammunition, causing damage to the gun, and endangering the lives of members of the battery.

Quells Fire Single Handed

"Capt. Solecki obtained a fire extinguisher, entered the blazing pit, and extinguished the fire.

"His heroic action reflects great credit upon himself and the military service."

Solecki, now married to a Newport girl, enlisted in the coast artillery in 1935 and served in Hawaii as a member of the 207th regiment, coast artillery. He was transferred to Newport in July, 1941, and, in the fall of 1941, after attending officers' training school, was commissioned a second lieutenant.

"Now, keep that buttoned and remember, we're out in public."

BOY, 5, IS FOUND HURT ON TRACKS; LOSES LEG, FOOT

A boy about 5 years old was found critically injured last night on the elevated right of way of the Burlington railroad near Marshall blvd. and 19th st. He evidently had fallen under the wheels of a train. He gave his name as Melvin Anderson to a passerby who found him, then lapsed into a coma. The stranger ran to St. Anthony's hospital about two blocks away and called for help. Doctors Stanley Molesky and Ollie Fischer responded, and took the youngster to the hospital. Surgeons later announced it was necessary to amputate his right leg at the hip and also to amputate his left foot.

● Franklin County Distilling Company will always recommend — drink less — enjoy it more:

The man who bolts his drink and nervously awaits the next is not the customer we seek: If all he requires is a hiccup and a hangover—straight grain alcohol will serve.

Friends of Old Poindexter are a different breed. They understand a fine whisky—its nuances of fragrance, its overtones of flavor: They take a highball, a cocktail, an old-fashioned or sour easily, casually. They don't believe in drinking to the point of diminishing returns in enjoyment. They favor moderation:

Such men seek out Old Poindexter. We appreciate their patronage. We are doing everything possible to hasten the day when Old Poindexter will always be available:

160 MILES OF WORDS
by Warner Olivier

PERHAPS the world's most influential factual work, the Encyclopaedia Britannica is written by 3,700 experts, and is edited by one man who will never find time to read all it contains. Very few metropolitan newspapers have as many as ten deadlines a day. But the Britannica meets thousands of closings a year, as many as twenty a day.

Gene Tunney, Lord Macaulay, Henry Ford are contributors. Only three people are known to have read it through. Yet this giant of information shapes history, guides comic strips, helps frame constitutions.

This is the fascinating story of a fabulous fact factory whose product is sold and studied all over the world.

An editor who will never be able to read everything in the publication he edits—because there is too much of it—is Walter Yust, of the Encyclopaedia Britannica. He pays only two cents a word in cash, but plenty of prestige.

ENGINEERS O. K. 237 MILLION HIGHWAY PLAN

Chicago Program Covers Ten Year Record

A comprehensive program for the expenditure by 1955 of $237,701,000 for the construction of super-highways and improvement of arterial streets in Chicago was recommended yesterday by the engineering board of review, a group of city, county, sanitary district, and park district officials.

The Illinois and Michigan canal super-highway southwest across the city was one of the major projects approved. Other super-highways were recommended on the northwest, west, and south sides. Improvement and extension of Wacker dr. from Congress st. to Lake st. also won approval. The drive now ends at Madison st.

Program Is Coördinated

The program for Chicago was coordinated with plans made earlier by the Cook county highway department for the modernization of traffic arteries.

Sent to the city council for approval, the board's report recommended that the state and county pay major portions of the cost thru allocations of gasoline tax allotments. The costs would be divided as follows: state, $75,052,000; county, $78,964,000, and city, $83,685,000.

In addition to 32 miles of expressways, the plan contemplates the widening, paving, or other improvement of 221 miles of major thorofares and the erection of 21 new bridges, 61 grade separations, and 12 viaducts by 1955.

The Illinois and Michigan canal route, which has been widely backed by officials who urge its early completion as a connection with the airport and with main routes to downstate Illinois, was listed in the report as a $21,600,000 project. It would run from a contemplated south side expressway to Cicero av. The state would pay $7,200,000 for the super-highway from the expressway to Ashland av. and the county would put up $14,400,000 for the Ashland to Cicero portion.

A City Responsibility

Connection of the canal route with the central business district would be a city responsibility, with $20,667,000 estimated as the cost of the Van Buren st. to 29th st. portion of the south side expressway. Extension of the south side expressway at a cost of $12,333,000 to be paid by the state, also was recommended. This part of the expressway would run from 29th st. to Garfield blvd.

Other super-highways recommended and their estimated costs follow:

Congress st.: Field dr. to west bank of Chicago river, $15,100,000, assigned to state; Canal st. to Western av., $16,000,000, city; Western av. to Austin blvd., $14,500,000, county.

Wacker dr.: Congress st. to Lake st., $10,000,000, state financing.

Northwest hwy.: Van Buren st. to Division st., including a branch along Erie and Orleans sts., $18,333,000, state; Division st. to Devon av., $30,667,000, county.

WFA BARS REBEL PLUMBERS FROM THE UNION HALL

A rebel group of the United Association of Journeyman Plumbers [AFL], local 130, met last night to demand the ouster of the local's officers but found themselves barred from the union's hall at 1340 Washington blvd.

The door was locked and on it was a sign reading: "Keep Out—United States Department of Agriculture—War Food Administration."

Impressed by the government's sudden interest in their building, the 250 union members moved to a vacant lot across the street where they heard one of their number, Raymond Petersen, 6122 N. Keeler av., assail the local's officials and demand that they be "chased out" at the next regular union meeting next Tuesday night.

Frank Bent, president of the local, said the government had been using storage space in the building for more than a year.

"The sign was put up Monday to keep out people when there isn't proper protection," Bent said. "But it won't interfere with our regular meeting next Tuesday."

PAPERS EAGERLY SNAPPED UP AS N.Y. STRIKE ENDS

New York, July 17 (AP)—News-starved New Yorkers grabbed their favorite newspapers today and—as a strike of delivery workers ended—got them for the first time since June 30.

"Papers!" people exclaimed as newsstands filled and quickly were emptied.

Housewives missed bargains, night club attendance dropped, mail and telephone orders fell off at department stores, jobs and apartments went begging while the strike, affecting 14 newspapers and three racing publications, was in progress.

Members of the independent union voted to end the walkout—longest in New York newspaper history—after receiving from Robert K. Burns, chairman of the war labor board's newspaper commission, a telegram saying, in part:

"After the men return to work the commission will hold an immediate hearing on the issues in the dispute."

Gets 2 Years for Taking Fees to Find Apartments

Abram Cooper, 23, of 3538 Ellis av., Negro, yesterday was sentenced to two years in the Bridewell by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in Jury court where Cooper was arraigned on 23 charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. Cooper was accused of accepting fees ranging from $5 to $80 from Negro apartment seekers to find apartments for them. Twenty-three of his alleged victims were in court.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

July 18—The Aisne-Marne Offensive

At 4:35 a. m. on July 18, 1918, toward the close of a night of wind and rain, thru which dog-weary soldiers had been moving by the thousands up to the Aisne-Marne line, the front erupted with a flash and roar that painted the sky the color of flame and made the earth shake.

This was H-hour of the great Foch offensive which was to turn the tide of the first World war. American and French artillery men, their watches synchronized, had been standing by for the instant when their guns were to begin blasting out a path for infantry and tanks thru the elaborate and well manned German defenses.

As the inferno was loosed Americans of the 1st and 2d divisions rose from the muddy earth where they had been snatching a brief rest and, with a rolling barrage preceding them, walked out into the hostile darkness to a secure and glorious place in history.

The going was heartbreakingly hard. Despite the curtain of friendly fire and the assistance of tanks, the attackers began suffering casualties. Dogged enemy riflemen, machine gunners, and artillery units struck them down.

But the Americans, with the French Moroccan division which also constituted a part of this critical 20th corps of Gen. Mangin's French 10th army, marched grimly ahead. In 55 minutes the 1st division reached its initial objective, the Dommiers road. Prisoners were taken in large numbers, for the Germans had not been prepared for the sustained fury of the allied attack.

But the battle became even more nightmarish as it proceeded. The attackers found desperately resisting Germans in ravines, behind trees, even in a cave. Casualties mounted as each yard of ground was traversed. At the end of the day there were fearful gaps in the American lines but the objectives had been won.

That was only the first day of the offensive. The 1st division was in the battle five days [some of its elements even longer]. It suffered 7,000 casualties and took 3,800 prisoners. The 2d had suffered 5,000 casualties and had taken 3,000 prisoners by the time it was relieved the night of the 19th. It had succeeded in cutting the vital Soissons highway.

The importance of the part these two American divisions played in the Aisne-Marne operation lay in the fact that the French army to which they belonged had been selected to deliver the principal blow against the western side of the huge bulge which Von Ludendorff had sunk in the allied lines between Compiegne and Reims.

Other American divisions—the 3d, 4th, 26th, 28th, and 32d—also took part in the Aisne-Marne operation and some were in action the first day. Many others were to be thrown into the battles which constituted a continuation or expansion of this offensive and which terminated only with the armistice Nov. 11, 1918.

The significance of the opening day of the Aisne-Marne operation was best expressed by the German chancellor, Von Hertling, when he said: "On the 18th even the most optimistic among us understood that all was lost."

Gen. Mangin warmly praised his American divisions. "You rushed into the fight as to a fete," he told them. "Your magnificent courage completely routed a surprised enemy and your indomitable tenacity checked the counter-attacks of his fresh divisions."

An air freight record for commercial products was claimed yesterday by officials of the Fresh'nd Aire company, 325 N. Wells st., in the delivery of electric fans to a war plant in Boston, Mass., 31 hours after receipt of the order.

J. D. Allen, general manager of the fan company, said a heat wave in Boston was hampering production at the Stevens Arnold Co.

A rush order was received by Allen at 3:30 p. m. Monday. The shipment of eight commercial fans was placed aboard an American Airlines plane at noon and delivered in Boston at 10:30 p. m.

New refresher and special postgraduate training courses for physicians and surgeons returning from the army and navy to civilian practice will be offered by the University of Illinois college of medicine. The university announced yesterday that the program will be launched with a $90,000 three year grant from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation.

Dr. Raymond B. Allen, executive dean of the university's colleges in Chicago, said the first three month refresher course in general medicine will be started as soon as at least 15 students register. Short courses also will be offered for a limited number of specialists in pediatrics, obstetrics, internal medicine, surgical diagnosis, psychiatry, orthopedics and ophthalmology.

In addition, the university will make 46 appointments for doctors to live and work in university connected hospitals for long term courses in 15 fields of specialist training. Dr. Allen said the program was undertaken after a survey of 21,000 doctors in the armed forces. It showed that 60 per cent plan to take long term courses leading to specialization while more than one-fifth wish to take short refresher courses before returning to civilian practice.

Held as Baby Dies

[Acme Telephoto]

MISS MARY GRASSI

Cleveland, O., July 17 [Special]—Closely shielding the identity of the father of the new born baby she is accused of burning to death in a furnace, Miss Mary Grassi, 21 year old unmarried mother, today was held in the prison ward of City hospital.

Miss Grassi described how she stuffed the 7½ pound girl in a furnace late yesterday shortly after its unattended birth in the bathroom of her home. Coroner Samuel R. Gerber ruled today that the baby was alive when it was put into the furnace.

Miss Grassi said she couldn't remember lighting the fire or papers and rubbish that detectives say caused the baby's death a few minutes after its birth. Eyes swollen and red from long hours of crying, Miss Grassi said the father is a soldier now serving overseas.

DEMANDS HOUSE PROBE 'HOARDING' OF MEN BY ARMY

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 17—President Truman was called upon in the house today to appoint an investigating commission which would determine whether the army is needlessly maintaining 11 million men in uniform.

Rep. Hollifield

Introducing a resolution for the Presidential appointment of seven qualified civilian experts to conduct the inquiry, Rep. Hollifield [D., Cal.] asked for a report to congress within 30 days.

The army has been proved to be a hoarder of man power and surplus war materials, as evidenced by congressional investigations, Hollifield said.

A "Delayed Time Bomb"

"I have been bombarded by letters and requests from service men and their families asking how we can possibly employ 11 million men in the one front war against Japan when we required less than 13 million men to fight a two front war against Japan, Germany, and Italy," he told members. "The holding in idleness or shifting from camp to camp of hundreds of thousands of military personnel is but a delayed time bomb for our civilian economy.

"Congress needs an unbiased report and wants it soon on the necessity for maintaining the present number of persons in the armed forces. The committee called for in my resolution would also report on the possibility of immediately releasing from duty all personnel over the age of 35; all with three or more dependent children, and all those who have served four continuous years."

Germans Volunteer

On a recent tour thru German prisoner of war camps in France and Italy, Holifield said, the commanding officer of one camp told him that more than 60 per cent of the German prisoners had volunteered for labor service in the Pacific theater.

"We should utilize every German prisoner available to do the hard labor which millions of American boys are doing," he declared.

"The army was willing a short time ago to release a man over 38 providing he would take a war job. Now I understand they have upped the age to 40—with only a one front war to fight. Why?"

OPA HIKES PRICE OF EGGS; LOWERS WHITE ONIONS

An advance of 1 cent a dozen in the price of eggs, effective tomorrow, was announced yesterday by James F. Riley, acting director of the metropolitan area office of price administration. The increase will make the price range of eggs from 46 to 56 cents a dozen, depending upon grade and the type of store in which they are sold.

Price reductions ranging from 4 to 6 cents a pound for dry white onions will become effective tomorrow, the OPA announced. Price controls on cucumbers and cabbage will be suspended for August and September, and for the remainder of the year on peppers and eggplant.

Other decreases included: Cantaloupes and honeyballs, down 1 cent to 9½ cents a pound; sweet cherries, down 1 cent to 39 cents a pound; peaches, down 2 cents to 14 cents a pound; yellow and red onions, three inches and over, down 1 cent to 31 cents for three pounds.

Increases included: strawberries, 2 cents to 59 cents a quart; dry yellow and red onions, one to three inches, 2 cents to 31 cents for three pounds; spinach, 1½ cent to 13 cents a pound; tomatoes, originals, 5 cents to 29 cents a pound; tomatoes, all repacked, 2 cents to 33 cents a pound. Added to the list were red raspberries, 34 cents a pint, and black raspberries, 31 cents a pint.

Surrenders

Bert K. Naster signing his bond in the federal building yesterday.

Bert K. Naster, president of the Superior Electrical Industries, 1259 S. Campbell av., walked jauntily into the federal building yesterday and surrendered to United States Marshal William McDonnell on charges of evading payment of $221,575.05 in income taxes for the years 1940 thru 1943.

Naster, who was indicted Monday by the federal grand jury, spent half an hour being finger printed and chatting with newspaper reporters. He posted bond of $25,000, which was approved by Federal Judge Walter J. La Buy, and the case was assigned to Federal Judge Elwyn R. Shaw, who will be on the bench from July 30 to Aug. 11 during the summer court recess. The government charged that Naster sold electrical equipment for cash and did not enter the income on his books.

"I dealt in cash with the smaller firms, but I've always dealt in checks with big firms," Naster said. "They can't show that I ever had a bank account in any name but my own."

VINSON GIVEN SENATE O. K. AS TREASURY HEAD

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP)—Fred M. Vinson was confirmed unanimously today by the senate as secretary of the treasury.

The voice vote came shortly after the senate finance committee had approved, without hearings, the appointment of Vinson and that of John W. Snyder to succeed him as director of war mobilization and reconversion.

Both nominations were submitted only yesterday by Mr. Truman. Quick confirmation for Snyder also is indicated.

Vinson, 55 year old Kentuckian who also has served as director of economic stabilization and preceded Snyder as federal loan administrator, will take over from Henry Morgenthau Jr., who is the sixth cabinet officer serving under President Roosevelt to step out.

The jurors sworn yesterday were: John Henderson, 27, of 219 S. Lavergne av., a tool and die maker; Arthur J. Metke, 45, of 2748 Greenview av.; Mrs. Bea A. Murray, 46, of 9821 S. California av., Evergreen Park, and Edmund R. Ocwieja, 33, of 2022 Rice st., a maintenance man. The first four jurors were selected Monday.

The defendants, charged with robbery and burglary, are Patrick [Patsy] Flaherty, arrested in Belleville, St. Clair county; Willie Niemoth, 6951 S. Campbell av., and Llewellyn Morgan, 12036 Stewart av.

FORMER NURSE TO FACE KIDNAP CHARGE TODAY

Mrs. Mary McDowell, 26, a former nurse, who took 17 month old William Arnold from his home July 6, yesterday was charged with kidnaping and was scheduled to appear today in Felony court. The complaint was signed by the baby's mother, Mrs. Velma Arnold, 21, a dice girl, of 1246 N. Bell av. The charge of kidnaping was placed against her instead of the charge of contributing to the dependency of a minor, despite contrary advice by Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney.

$178,000 IS VOTED FOR ROOSEVELT RD. REPAIR JOB

The city council yesterday approved an appropriation of $178,000 in motor fuel tax funds for work Public Works Commissioner Hewitt said was necessary to rehabilitate that section of Roosevelt rd. viaduct between Wabash av. and the river.

This section, completed in 1922, is of reinforced concrete that has deteriorated from heavy truck travel, freezes, and acids in the smoke of five railroads' locomotives passing beneath it.

The work, which will not be started before late fall, will take from four to six months, but will not interrupt traffic for more than a few days. The railroads will be asked to pay the city approximately $126,000 after the job is completed, in accordance with an existing maintenance contract covering the 3,500 foot span.

BRITONS WANT JEEPS

LONDON, July 17 [Reuters]—Dozens of letters are being received by the United States army and navy liquidation commission from British drivers who want to own jeeps. They are being told, however, that no jeeps have yet been declared surplus—they are all needed by the occupation forces.

150 HURT AS FIRE SWEEPS SHIP AT DOCK IN ONTARIO

350 Flee Burning Vessel After Gasoline Blast

SARNIA, Ont., July 17 (AP)—Fire swept the cruise ship Hamonic at a dock here today, forcing 350 passengers and crew members to scramble over her sides to safety.

The list of those injured in falls, sliding down ropes, or suffering from burns was expected to exceed 150. Nearly 10 hours after the fire broke out, no loss of life had been reported.

Tonight the Hamonic lay a smoking hulk, her superstructure burned away and her bow jammed into the St. Clair river bank.

The flames razed 1,000 feet of two story Canadian National railway storage sheds and destroyed 12 loaded and 21 empty freight cars.

Damage of 2 Million

George Andrew, harbor master at Point Edward, where the Hamonic had docked this morning to take on cargo, estimated the damage from the fire would reach 2 million dollars.

The 5,265 ton Hamonic, 360 feet long and one of the larger Great Lakes passenger-freight ships operated by the Canada Steamship Lines, left Windsor, Ont., and Detroit, Mich., last night en route to Duluth, Minn. Aboard were 220 passengers and 130 crew members.

Shortly after the Hamonic docked at Point Edward an explosion occurred in a gasoline engine on the dock. Flames "spread terrifically fast," a loading crew foreman said, shooting to the roof of the sheds and then leaping to the Hamonic's upper deck

Rams Ship Into Bank

Aboard the Hamonic, Capt. Horace Beaton, in command of the 37 year old craft, ordered mooring lines severed and the liner backed downstream about 100 yards. Staying on the bridge with flames leaping about him, Capt. Beaton rammed the Hamonic into the river bank.

The liner's whistle shrieked a fire alarm and her crew directed passengers to remain aboard until the craft was beached.

Perhaps 100 on the boat were taken off by the operator of a crane with a clam bucket shovel. He swung the crane's boom up to the bow of the Hamonic, where some passengers crawled down the boom while others clung to the shovel and were lowered to the ground.

Chicagoans Injured

Among those treated at Sarnia General hospital for burns and injuries were:

Mrs. Stella Bortman, 1616 S. 47th ct., Cicero; Mrs. Marguerite Brankin and Miss Marie Brankin, 4316 W. End av., Chicago; Mrs. G. H. Elzell, 10437 Eberhart av., Chicago; Miss Anne Preuender, 1604 50th ct., Cicero, and Doris Hartnell, 2711 W. 61st pl., Chicago.

STATE OUTLINES ALLEGED PLOT TO KILL HOOPER

Battle Creek, Mich., July 17 [Special]—The murder conspiracy which allegedly preceded the mysterious slaying of State Sen. Warren G. Hooper last Jan. 11 was outlined by Special Prosecutor Kim Sigler today to a jury of 14 which will hear evidence against four Detroit men accused as the plotters.

Two offers to pay $15,000 for Hooper's slaying to silence his testimony about plots to bribe legislators, were made in a Detroit bar a few weeks before the slaying, Sigler told the jury.

Sigler said the conspirators discussed whether it would be best to dispose of the senator by dynamiting him, strangling him with his belt or necktie, bludgeoning him or shooting him, and finally decided on the latter method.

The defendants are Harry Fleisher and his brother Sam, Mike Selik, and Pete Mahoney.

The four are charged with plotting to kill the senator—no one has been charged with the actual slaying. Conviction on the conspiracy charge would carry a maximum penalty of five years of imprisonment.

The 14 member jury was seated to forestall possible interruption of the trial by the absence of any jurors. Under Michigan law, the 14 will hear the case before deciding by lot which 12 will return the verdict.

GUNMAN ROBS FINANCE FIRM OF $556

A man with a pistol stole $556 from the cash drawer in the Personal Finance company, 4005 North av., yesterday after forcing the cashier, Miss Ann Miller, to step into a back room. Bernard J. Walinski, office manager, reported to police.

BOOST RATIONS OF 9,700 MINERS ON MEAT STRIKE

1,500 Foundrymen Join in Walkout

Springfield, Ill., July 17 [Special]—The "no meat-no work" strike of coal miners and foundry workers in Illinois spread to include more than 11,000 men late today shortly before the district OPA office here announced extra meat rations will be granted to coal miners thruout the nation after Aug. 6.

The announcement apparently started a back to work movement. Hugh White, president of the United Miner Workers and a spokesman for the AFL Progressive Mine Workers, tonight said they were asking the men to return.

Exact amounts of extra meat has not been determined. Applications will be taken by local ration boards, the district office said. Details of the plan are being worked out by the OPA, war food administration, and solid fuels administration in Washington, D. C.

No workers in strenuous labor occupations other than coal miners will be eligible and it has not been decided whether all miners or only underground diggers will be affected.

A National Policy

An OPA spokesman in Washington however, said the plan now being perfected was in line with the policy of providing extra meat and other foods for those engaged in hard physical labor.

Miners who left their jobs after their leaders protested they "can't dig coal on lettuce sandwiches," had demanded 50 extra red points per man a month and District OPA Director Carter Jenkins had said the OPA would permit the allotment and issuance of a pound of sugar a month to each man if the WFA would give approval.

Announcement of the additional rations came soon after 4,000 more miners and about 1,500 foundry workers joined the meat strike that began last Friday. The new walkouts swelled the number of miners idle to 7,500 AFL Progressive Mine Workers and 2,200 independent United Mine Workers.

Walkout in 40 More Pits

Miners in 40 pits in St. Clair and Madison counties joined the walkout that has been sweeping the area of Gillespie, Mount Olive, and Benld and the mines around Springfield and Tovey.

Foundry workers in Belleville protested the same meat shortage that has aroused miners. It was estimated 1,500 men in nine Belleville foundries were idle.

BILL PROPOSES WIDER AND MORE JOBLESS GRANTS

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP)—Many employes not now protected by unemployment compensation laws would be brought within their coverage under a bill offered today by Sen. Kilgore [D., W. Va.].

Further, the bill would supplement state unemployment funds with federal money to bring payments to the jobless up to a maximum of $25 a week. It would extend the time of payments up to 26 weeks a year.

The bill would increase veterans' unemployment benefits from a flat $20 a week to $25 for single persons and $30 for those with dependents with a maximum of 52 weeks' payments; provide for the government to pay travel allowances to workers referred to new jobs in another city; extend benefits to federal workers, maritime workers, agricultural processing workers, and those employed in small firms not now covered by state laws, and apply the federal unemployment tax to employers of one or more, instead of eight or more, as is now the law.

TAVERN OWNER HELD FOR HAVING FAKE RED POINTS

Anthony De Angelo, 38, of 1113 S. Troy st., owner of the tavern at 1393 Lake st., was ordered held to the federal grand jury on $3,500 bond by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday when De Angelo pleaded guilty to illegal possession and transfer of 5,000 counterfeit ration coupons worth 50,000 red points.

Assistant United States Atty. William J. McCormack said De Angelo admitted selling another 100,000 points. He was arrested by office of price administration agents. McCormack said the defendant was convicted of armed robbery in 1935 and served seven years in the Pontiac penitentiary.

The C A also arrested another man on charges of illegal possession of ration coupons, but his name was withheld.

Indict Jehovah Witness Member on Draft Charge

Joel Cameron Adams, 18, of 815 Berkeley rd., Highland Park, who lost an appeal for a draft deferment on the ground that he was an ordained minister of the Jehovah's Witnesses religious sect, was indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury for failure to report to his draft board for induction May 21. His father, William K. Adams, 559 S. York st., Elmhurst, is a public accountant.

U. S. TO HIRE 500 TAX AGENTS IN DRIVE ON FRAUD

Five hundred additional internal revenue deputy collectors, agents, and special agents will be hired in the first Illinois district for the investigation of income tax evaders, Nigel D. Campbell, collector, said yesterday.

An intensified drive for the prosecution of tax frauds has been started in the Chicago area and will be expanded as rapidly as new personnel can be obtained, Campbell said. The treasury department's effort to collect a fair share of the war costs from black market operators and other tax evaders will require the addition of more than 10,000 new qualified employes to the internal revenue service in the nation.

Salaries range from $1,704 for clerical employes to $5,180 for technical and administrative positions, with overtime. Applicants should be experienced in business, accounting, legal, or investigative work. They may apply at the civil service office in the postoffice.

HE HAS TO PROVE HE'S A ROBBER TO CONVINCE POLICE

Detectives Walter Sprenger and Lawrence Smalley were inclined to smile yesterday when they asked a young man at Polk and State sts. what he was doing with a pistol stuck in his belt and he told them he just had attempted a holdup outside the Federal Reserve bank, La Salle st. and Jackson blvd.

The detectives rode over to the bank with the suspect, James E. Mescall, 17, who lives in the Wabash avenue Y. M. C. A. at 826 S. Wabash av., and he helped them find three witnesses to prove this tale.

Miss Viole Sonaty, 1121 W. 144th st., East Chicago, Ind.; Miss LaVerne Nelsen, 1733 N. Lawndale av., and Chester Witt, 3019 S. Tripp av., bank employes, said they were returning to work from a restaurant when they were stopped in front of the bank itself by Mescall, who threatened them with an automatic. He ran, they said, when some more pedestrians approached.

JEWELER'S WINDOW SMASHED BY BRICK

A brick was thrown thru the display window at the Charles Jewelry company store yesterday at 324 S. State st. and set off a burglar alarm.

Packard dealer about to make "Mirror Test" on engine valve chamber for evidence of excessive SLUDGE.

This simple "mirror test" may save you

Many a motorist who thought his car was running "all right" has recently been faced with the choice of junking that car or paying several hundred dollars for major repairs.

The reason is sludge, the gummy deposit that chokes oil lines, gums up valves, fouls piston rings, and ruins bearings.

Under wartime driving conditions, no car can avoid engine sludge. And now that more gas is being made available, permitting more normal driving, sludge will become doubly damaging.

The important thing is to find out if the accumulation of sludge in YOUR engine right now is enough to cause serious trouble.

Your Packard dealer can tell you . . . with the simple "Mirror Test" shown above. And if there is evidence of excessive sludge, he knows how to eliminate this costly danger before it can damage vital engine parts.

So drive in today. Take a few minutes for the "Mirror Test" . . . and for a check-up of those two other hidden danger spots—brakes and steering gear.

For your peace of mind—and your pocketbook—you'll be glad you did!

Ask the man who owns one . . . When new cars come back again, keep this fact in mind: A wartime car-owner survey shows that Packard cars, among all those studied, have stood up better—required less frequent repairs—and Packard owners have spent less on service.

SEN. VANDENBERG AND MR. VANDENBERG

Mr. L. T. Merrill of Beloit, Wis., has called our attention to some recent statements by Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg in support of the united nations charter, and to some wholly dissimilar views on the virtues of international engagements expressed in a book called "The Trail of a Tradition," written by Mr. Vandenberg in 1926, two years before he went to the senate.

Sen. Vandenberg assisted in drafting the new league charter at San Francisco and has defended it in the hearings before the senate foreign relations committee. When another senator suggested that it would be unconstitutional for the American delegate on the world security council to commit American forces to military action without consent of congress, Sen. Vandenberg hotly asserted, "I think that if we were to require the consent of congress to every use of force, we would not only violate the spirit of the charter but we would violate the spirit of the Constitution as well."

Mr. Merrill makes the point that the senator's position is totally inconsistent with that expressed in his book, the motif of which, as expressed on the title page, is "Nationalism—not internationalism—is the indispensable bulwark of American independence." Certainly in 1926 Mr. Vandenberg was far from occupying his present position. As editor of a newspaper in Grand Rapids, Mich., he was capable then of expressing his views articulately and forcibly. He manifests the same ability now, but in the opposite direction. It is this that puzzles Mr. Merrill.

In 1926 Mr. Vandenberg wrote that the entire tradition of the nation "set us apart from alien contagions." He said that in rejecting the league of nations following the World war, "We refused to lose the sequent peace." He spoke approvingly of serving civilization "by serving America first." Discussing nationalism, he quoted Timothy, that "if any provide not for his own, and especially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith and is worse than an infidel."

He declared his trust in this Republic, "which declines to yield its own freedoms of decision and of action to any precarious partnerships, no matter how nobly meditated, with other governments and other lands." Now he says that under the charter "we sacrifice none of our essential sovereignty," and he advocates the use of our forces in wars undeclared by congress.

"There have been those, at home," he said in 1926, "who have envisioned a beautiful world-wide brotherhood of man—a vast polyglot brought out of Babel and to the promised land—to which their zealotry has been willing to offer up our independence as an experimental sacrifice." Now he says, having had a hand in devising just such as an organization, that "we have not created a super-state. We have not organized a world government. We have not hauled down the Stars and Stripes. We have simply agreed to coöperate effectively with 49 other states."

In 1926 he indorsed Bulwer-Lytton's statement, "Sancho Panza administering his island is a better model than Don Quixote sallying forth to right the wrongs of the universe." To this observation Mr. Vandenberg added the gloss: "He [the nationalist] is not willing to toss his national idols, his national ideals, his legitimate national aspirations into one common melting pot, there to be fused into a colorless, shapeless, puerile, futile 'internationalism' that shall undertake the impossible task of being all things to all men. He demands the preservation of his national identity. He respectfully declines to trade his independent citizenship for the doubtful status of a cosmopolite.

"Furthermore," continued Mr. Vandenberg, still describing the American nationalist, "he believes that just as no man can neglect his own house and home and compensate society by taking a benevolent interest in his neighbors, so America cannot forsake her nationalism and yet retain those elements of peculiar and righteous eminence which make for greatest service not only to herself, but to the general human weal. This isn't truculent vanity. It is faith."

Now Sen. Vandenberg returns from San Francisco to tell his colleagues, "History is writing with a rushing pen and we, Mr. President, must accommodate its pace. If America is to assume the moral leadership of a better world in which we have fought our way to glorious eminence, we can scarcely be content to be among the last who care or dare to speak when this united nations roll is called."

Mr. Vandenberg and Sen. Vandenberg both possess a sense of the urgency of history. It now is writing "with a rushing pen." In 1926 Mr. Vandenberg's foreword to his chronicle of the American tradition of nationalism modestly described his work as "this swift moving book." History is rushing, all right, but, with Mr. Merrill, we are left in some confusion as to whether the rush is coming or going. The wave of the future in 1926 doesn't seem to be quite the same thing to the senator as it is in 1945.

We confess our mystification. If Sen. Vandenberg, as a former newspaper editor and a skilled writer, cares to offer us illumination, our columns are open to him.

CAN THE DEMOCRATS RUN THE COUNTRY?

With Mr. Vinson's appointment to the treasury the Democrats have almost taken over the cabinet. President Truman has replaced six of its ten members since he took office. Only two deep-dyed New Dealers remain. There may be some political advantage in keeping a leash on Henry Wallace, and perhaps there is a disposition to give Honest Harold the same protection that he affords the grizzly bears in Yellowstone park.

It appears that the Democrats will try at least to run the country, something that they failed to do during the last 12 years. The Democrats got the jobs under the Roosevelt administration, but they got them only by consenting to be errand boys for the New Deal.

The traditional principles of the party were abandoned before July of 1933 and have not reappeared. The founders of the party have been heard of only when it was expedient to tap the payrollers for the campaign fund. Jefferson held many views on many topics, but none that accorded with anything done by the New Dealers. Andrew Jackson could have recognized his asserted heirs only by their adherence to the principle that to the victors belong the spoils. The man whose only regret on leaving the White House was that he had not hanged John Calhoun would hardly have been comfortable at a banquet table among those who for more than a decade used governmental office in an attempt to destroy the Republic.

But whether the Democrats, having gained control of the administration, will dare to put into effect the principles for which their party has always stood is still a doubtful question. Barring some monumental blunder, Mr. Truman is almost certain of renomination in 1948, and unless the Republican politicians shake off their present bankruptcy of both ideas and principles he is almost a certainty for reëlection. Therein lies the dilemma of the Democrats.

The traditional Democrats of the solid south and the northern metropolitan machines are a minority in the country. Mr. Roosevelt got into office in 1932 because of the depression. He stayed in office because he was able to harness the southerners and the machine Democrats to the service of radical groups whose philosophy is no more tolerable to an honest Democrat than it is to an honest Republican.

The New Deal radicals are a minority within the Democratic party, but they will make every effort to blackmail the party into following their ideas because, without them, the party is a minority in the nation. They need not turn to the Republican standard to punish recalcitrant Democrats. They can merely abstain or waste their votes on a third party candidate, as they did in New York in 1942, when Gov. Dewey was elected because the New Dealers in the American Labor party put up their own man after Jim Farley wrested control of the party machinery from them in the Democratic convention.

Mr. Truman is a practical politician. He, like his predecessor, will attempt to drive the discordant elements of the party as a team. That may prove the principal barrier to the old-line Democrats in their endeavor to take over the administration, as they have already taken over the cabinet.

UNDER THE BIG GUNS

Our battleships have been knocking to pieces some of Japan's steel mills and other munitions plants located in seaboard cities. The ease with which these important military targets have been destroyed is another reminder that for purposes of national defense, the place to locate a war industry is the interior of a country. The interior of Japan may be almost as vulnerable to air attack as the port cities, but it has the marked advantage of being safe from naval bombardment.

The Japanese were probably aware of the risk they were running but were obliged to locate certain industries on the seaboard because the costs of moving coal, ore, and other heavy and bulky raw materials to the interior were prohibitive. Fortunately for us, our situation is wholly different. We can even build ships in the interior. We can protect our munitions industries behind mountain barriers, in locations which will impose an overland flight of a thousand miles or more on bombers approaching from either the east or the west. During the war, Germany moved many of her war plants into her eastern provinces to escape the bombers based in England. This meant a great deal of uneconomic hauling. In our case, most of our basic industry and a large share of our fabricating plants are already situated in the interior, precisely for reasons of economy.

The Japanese islands are of no great length or width, with the result that we have been able to knock out a good deal of Japan's airplane building capacity from the air. The Japanese at one time might have done the same to us if they had been able to send their battleships or their bombers against our airplane plants in the vicinity of Seattle, Los Angeles, and Baltimore. We now have substantial airplane producing facilities in the interior. Unless there is so great an improvement in the flying art that the width of an ocean and half a continent becomes no considerable obstacle, we ought always to be able to build planes in safety and keep a supply of them moving toward the point of danger.

We have been able to send battleships within big gun range of Japan because Japan didn't have the planes with which to destroy our fleet. With reasonable prudence in the location of our munitions industries, we need never find ourselves equally vulnerable.

A BENEFIT TO RADIO

The radio industry will be helped by the libel bill which Gov. Green has just signed. The industry has been brought into disrepute by the element within its ranks which has been willing to rent time to purveyors of malicious untruth, who have been unbridled in their abuses because of the knowledge that existing statutes were inadequate to punish them. As finally enacted by the Illinois legislature, the radio libel bill imposes somewhat softer penalties on radio stations than newspapers in this country have always faced in matters of criminal libel. Such statutes have not harmed newspapers, and they will not harm responsible and decently conducted radio stations. Other states, it may be expected, will pass similar bills, in spite of the use of slush funds by those anxious to retain the profits to be made by traducing people over the air.

HOPE IS ETERNAL

A disappointing report from our advisory council in the composing room makes it necessary this morning for us in turn to disappoint a client whose signature, no matter what her name may be, is Clementina.

"Think how pleasant it would be for your poets," she writes, "if you simply printed all their poems instead of letting them wither in the bin."

* * *

We can reassure Clementina on one point. The poems are not withering. They are thriving. Every morning we sprinkle a little water on them, a little insecticide every evening.

You should see how the happy couplets flutter in the fresh breeze when we lift the lid, how daintily the rhymes arise and dance in pairs—the glove with the dove, the moon with the spoon, the cat with the brat, the dishes with the wishes, the serenade with the hand grenade, and this year's poor retarded roses with 'B. L. T.'s old "quelquechoses."

* * *

We did [briefly] entertain the hope that something could be done with Clementina's suggestion, altho we knew the difficulties. We knew that any proposal to "print 'em all" would meet the printer's classic sneer, "Type ain't made o' rubber." But we hoped that war time discoveries made in the nation's billion dollar research laboratories would reduce that venerable slogan to obsolescence.

Now we are told by our technical man, a Mr. Williams, that no such thing has been, or is likely to be, accomplished.

"When it comes to type," he tells us, "these new synthetic rubbers are no better than the old."

It is a bitter experience to learn that our faith in American genius for applied science has been misplaced.

We have not ceased, however, to hope.

BEAU GESTE

To try or not to try, that is my problem—
Whether 'tis better in the mind to suffer
The thought that if I'd tried, I might have won;
Or to take pen against a host of entries
And by composing, join them: To write, to mail—
No more; and by the deed to say we start
Forever the thousand natural shocks
That I'd be heir to—'tis a consummation
I certainly would dodge. To write, to mail—
To mail! perchance to find—ay there's the rub—
The many so much worthier than mine!
For who could bear the thought of having lost?
But wait! These days we win, e'en tho we lose;
For if our tries be cast upon the "scrap"
Waste paper goes to war and beats the Jap!

Poet-Apprentice

A Protest

What is a column? A pillar, you say, pointing to the sky. And whether it be Doric, Ionic, Gothic, or Linotypic it is always arresting, sometimes beautiful. But when some malefactor attempts to hew it with a hatchet it is apt to crack up and totter at its base.

Take the Duke, for instance, [yes, you take him, I'd much rather] landing in the middle of our column with a POEM! What a cleft, what a crack, what a fish-ure! What are we coming to. Is the fluted symphony of the column to be marred by a duke-box? All we need now is Rivetena to finish off the damage with a poem about Ptolemy.

MADAME O'FLANAHAN, POETESS

I know I don't write well, she blushed,
But when my room is dim and hushed,
It is such fun the muse to woo
And whittle out a poem or two.

The consequences of my labors
I read to all my friends and neighbors;
And each one, to my satisfaction,
Has had a most benign reaction.

They tell me, tho I disagree,
That Shakespeare never writ like me;
They say that if I do my best,
I may be ranked with Edgar Guest.

She writes for fun and not for fame
Or lustrous polish on her name;
Some day, for fun, I have no doubt,
She'll take a friend's appendix out.

Minnie who mouses for Pete the Printer says what this country needs is a good 5-sense proofreader. First the newspapers got it wrong about that Dumbarton Hoax, then they muffed the Crimes conference at Yalta, and look at them now, still making the same typographical error about the piece-loving nations!

By the way, I interrupted, did the papers ever tell us who got the gold and who the gate at that Gold 'n Gate meeting? Minnie picked off two type lice and examined them carefully. Russia, she murmured a bit cryptically I thought, is always stallin'.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

M. M. asks: "If a service man who has named his wife principal beneficiary of his insurance is divorced and later killed in action without having changed the beneficiary, can the divorced wife collect? Can a service man name his divorced wife beneficiary of his national service life insurance?"

The national service life insurance act specifically limits payment of insurance to a widow, widower, child [stepchild or illegitimate if designated by the insured], parent, brother, or sister of the insured. The act further says the insured "shall have the right to designate the beneficiary or beneficiaries, but only within the permitted classes, and shall at all times have the right to change the beneficiary or beneficiaries without the consent of such beneficiary or beneficiaries, but only within the permitted classes." If the insured does not leave a widow, payment is made the child or children and, if neither widow nor child, then to a parent or parents [including persons who stood in loco parentis]. A divorced wife does not come within the permitted class even tho she was in this class at the time insurance was obtained and the beneficiary named.

T. R. writes: "I was discharged from service last fall and did not file claim for pension. If I file now will I be paid from date of discharge or date of application?"

If claim for disability pension is filed within one year from discharge, payment will be made from date of discharge; otherwise from date of application.

NAIL POINTERS

THE NAILS are no longer used for clawing tools in civilized society. Like the eyebrows, they serve largely as adornments. But they are composed of living tissue and as such may be damaged by infection, injury or poor nutrition.

In any type of defect, three underlying factors must be considered: irritation, heredity, and systemic disease. By far the most common causes are local. As every housewife knows, the nails are a mess after a cleaning orgy. She may well look with dismay on the cosmetic ravages wrought by harsh cleansing powders, hot water, furniture polish, not to mention the dirt itself. Splitting, breaking, and brittleness are frequent complaints. The wise woman will wear protective gloves in every possible chore. Mechanics and other workers in greasy jobs may suffer in a similar manner.

We have all had the experience of hitting the thumb instead of the tack, having a finger caught in a door, or catching a baseball with the tips of the fingers instead of the palm. If the nail is injured, many physicians advocate the establishment of drainage by puncturing the structure near the base. This will prevent the accumulation of blood, with marked discoloration. Of course, the resultant open area may prove equally unsightly; and the hole affords an opening for infection to enter.

Certain disorders, such as spoon nails and shedding, may be on a hereditary basis. In general, we inherit the size, shape, and texture of these horny appendages just as a family tendency dominates facial contours and body build.

Nutritional failures and metabolic disturbances are bound to affect the nails. Thus, transverse ridges may be observed in gout and arthritis; shedding in diabetes, and curvatures in anemia.

Like the palmist who prognosticates the future after gazing at the lines in the palms, the physician often studies the nail markings for diagnostic purposes. Changes in length, breadth, shape, texture, or color may be indicative of chronic disease. In some types of lung and heart conditions the patient exhibits thickening, with clubbing of the finger ends.

Beau's lines, which run crosswise, may appear following a severe illness or nervous shock. In fact, the onset of the trouble may be judged by the position of the corrugation, which starts at the half-moon and progresses toward the top. These grooves have even followed an attack of seasickness. In scarlet fever, the structures may be shed along with the skin of the palms and soles, and this symptom may also accompany generalized loss of hair [alopecia areata].

White dots [gift spots] usually indicate minor injuries such as too vigorous manicuring, but they may mean low resistance due to lack of rest, worry, or recent sickness. In the blood disorders—hemophilia and purpura—hemorrhages under the plate are not unusual. Marked longitudinal lines may be observed in elderly persons.

We can well understand why the nails are included in a general examination. The procedure is in line with "Let's see your tongue."

TYPES OF ARTHRITIS

H. B. writes: How does the hypertrophic form differ from ordinary arthritis?

REPLY

It is caused by an overgrowth of bone and is secondary to wear and tear. In other types, the lining membrane of the joint may be involved, leaving the bony structure intact.

LOOK ELSEWHERE

F. H. writes: If only one ankle is swollen, could heart disease be responsible?

REPLY

The answer would be "no" in most cases. It is conceivable that one structure could enlarge if the sufferer rested on that side for a long period of time.

THE "WANDERING" NERVE

R. P. writes: Can anything happen to the vagus nerve?

REPLY

Yes, as it is not immune to the disorders common to any nerve. In addition, it travels near vital organs. Should these structures become swollen for any reason, they may press upon the vagus.

EARLY O. J.

Mrs. R. writes: When is orange juice started?

[Letter from one American in Germany to another:]

"Dear Jack,

"There's an insane woman living in my cellar.

"She's very big and blonde and Teutonic thru and thru. People say she's harmless, tho, so I call her simply the nuts woman.

"And there's a big black fowl, with wings ominously spread, mounted directly over my bed. I call this Ernest, the eager eagle. I live in Niederfeld. That's in Germany.

"Yesterday the nuts woman came upstairs. Apparently she was searching for some one on her general conversational level and selected me from the gathered group of two. I was sitting near the window intensely preoccupied with a great deal of not much.

"'It snows mostly in the winter time,' she said, 'and planes fly like birds only they don't flap their wings.'

"I pondered this declaration studiously, carefully considered the weight of those words, and found them to be filled with infinite wisdom. I refrained from making any comment or further observation, however, because some one might possibly classify that as fraternizing and attach to me a large fine. If I am to be fined for fraternizing, I wish to be guilty of something far more complex than conversing with a nuts woman. I am not rich.

"'Do you see that little stream running thru the meadow?' she continued. I saw the stream because it was just outside the window and was the only thing running thru the meadow.

"'That,' she said, 'is the Ruhr river. It is little here and you can wade across it. But as it runs on and on, it gets bigger and bigger. I remember when the war was little.'

"Then she turned and went back to her cellar. The cellar of my house is located just beneath the ground floor. I think this is about the only manner in which my house resembles the others of the neighborhood. Our attic is on top, too.

"Up until yesterday I had a huge table in my room. It was so big I couldn't move it. It looked as tho it were too large to get either in or out the door. But I don't think it was built in my room, and the house doesn't appear to have been constructed around it. Anyway, my table disappeared yesterday and nobody has seen a sign of it. We've looked everywhere except in the cellar. We don't go to the cellar very often.

"I've been engaged in lots of meditation as regards the nuts woman. As far as I know, why, hell, it does snow mostly in the winter time.

"Who lives in your cellar?

"Lindsey."

Inflation at the 5 & 10

Forgive us if we differ with our Fanny Butcher. In her Sunday book column Miss Butcher told of a 10 cent store in Boston which experimented with the wants of the book public. Four types of books were offered—Edna Ferber's "Great Son" at $2.50, a $1.49 reprint, and two cheaper reprints. The sales of "Great Son" led by 30 per cent. "Doesn't that prove," Miss Butcher asked, "that the book buying public is growing like a ball of sagebrush on a windy desert?"

Not to us. Just shows what the war has done to the 5 & 10.

STATIC FIGURES IN A DYNAMIC WORLD

Chicago, July 14—Offhand I cannot remember where I heard or read a saying something like this: "You have to keep running like heck to stay where you are in this place."

It was probably uttered in a jocular way. On reflection does it not, however, contain a great truth? I refer to the inexorable law of change. Change not only in the physical world, but in the economic, political, and social world? Why do decadent and useless monarchies try to hold on in Europe? Why does a social caste system try to continue in Europe? Why does Churchill apparently think he is indispensable to the survival of the British empire? Why does Stalin hold on so tenaciously to the tenet of one-man [unelected] rule? Why does Gen. de Gaulle delude himself with the idea that France is still a great power—colonially and imperially? Why does imperialism still have an infatuation for certain European countries?

In a dynamic world there cannot be anything like absolute security for an individual or a nation. A practicable security can be based only on: A recognition of the law of change; adaptability; openmindedness; the realization that life, not to speak of liberty, is a constant and inescapable challenge to the individual and the nation; the realization that eternal vigilance is mandatory. If there is any other basis, I would like to know what it is.

OPA SNEERS

Chicago, June 12—So the OPA wants to enlist the help of the newspapers to help them out of the fix they are in on account of red points.

I, along with hundreds of housewives who do the buying for families, ask the press first to clean up the ration board offices before doing any cleaning on people who are forced to buy black market. We have been insulted, sneered at and high-hatted for years and at last they admit meat rationing is out of control. Let me cite my experience, or I should say, one of my experiences.

My brother who is blind, 76 years old, and suffering from anemia and cancer, thru our physician, asked for 130 extra red points for three months to get strength for an operation, was turned down, and I have the card here to prove it. I therefore had to take him to the hospital that he might get sufficient and proper food to give him the strength he had to have.

I burn up when I remember how this ration clerk phoned our doctor because he had nerve enough to ask for extra stamps to save a life.

POKEY TROOP TRAINS

Chicago, July 14—I suppose it never occurred to the ODT that the answer to the transportation problem is not Pullmans but the giving of troop trains the right of way and making civilians wait. My son flew a bomber from Italy to Oran, Dakar, Natal, British Guiana, Puerto Rico, and Charleston, S. C., in less time than he took in a troop train from Savannah to Rockford—56 hours—and had stopovers in the various countries. They were 8 or 10 hours in Chicago, being transferred from Dearborn station to the Illinois Central station. Trips that fast trains make in 17 hours they do in 50.

OCCUPATION BLUES

KRAMSACH, Austria, June 9—Much has been said and written about what the nation owes to its occupation troops in Europe and what is going to be done for them, such as educational programs, movies, U. S. O. shows, and plenty of equipment for playing baseball, etc. As is usually the case, the educational program is taking a long time to get started, the movies are almost a myth [we've seen one in the last month], and even baseballs are as scarce as hen's teeth. All these U. S. O. shows must be in France, because we never see one in the occupied countries, and the result is that we spend our evenings talking to each other, as we aren't allowed to speak to civilians. Since the war ended, our ration of cigarets has become a memory and only our reserve, saved from better days, has made it possible for us to smoke at all. Frankly, it looks as if the war in Europe is over, so now the soldiers can go to blazes.

Even if the government can't make good on its promises, do you think it's asking too much to get mail from home? Just what do these boats carry on their return trip to Europe? Why has the mail service gone to pieces as soon as the war ended? All these promises make swell reading, but if they wouldn't talk so much and see to it that we get our mail, the one thing we really need to keep us from going mad, we'd all be better off.

POISON PENMAN

New Castle, Ind., July 12—Whenever THE TRIBUNE publishes one of my little gems of thought I receive on the second day an anonymous card from some tax-ridden, meatless, butterless, cigaretless, etcless, gent who, ignoring the plain facts of life, thinks any one a heel who doesn't stand up and cheer each time a radiant New Dealer passes. Today was no exception. And thinking to have a bit of fun with old Joe Mephitis Mephitica who has two rooms and a bath just south of the berry patch, I spoke to him: "Hey, Joe, I just got an anonymous card from one of your Chicago cousins, heh, heh." "No, bud," said old Joe solemnly and a hurt look came into his eyes, "We do have relatives in Chicago and some of them are pretty ornery, but none of them would do that. I warrant you."

TARRED AND HEELED

Chicago, July 12—For a long time Sheridan rd. has been a thing to avoid, when we really must cross it to do our shopping. Is Chicago so poor that it cannot put a little sand over that vicious tar so that people can safely cross it without either losing their shoes or heels? We never know whether we shall reach the other side of the street with our shoes on or off or without losing a heel or two. Yesterday I counted six heels in an area of less than three feet sticking in the tar.

I. C.'S IDEA MAN THINKS UP SOME FOR MR. FALLON

Gives North Shore Tips on Collecting Fares

Bernard J. Fallon, executive head of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad, got a few tips from a veteran Illinois Central railroad engineer in a laughter swept courtroom yesterday on how to frustrate chiseling passengers.

Herbert A. Wisch, 52, who has won $500 in additional pay from the I. C. for valuable suggestions this year, told Fallon in homey fashion that one ride on the North Shore had convinced him the ticket collection system was no good.

Wisch, a witness for the operating unions who are seeking to convince a three man federal board that train crews are entitled to more pay on the North Shore, and the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin lines, told Fallon if he'd collect all the ticket money he had coming he could afford to give his employes a raise.

Ride Free Inside City

Skirmishing verbally with the North Shore executive to the delight of spectators, Wisch told Fallon that passengers easily can ride to and fro between Howard st. and the loop without paying a cent in fare. When Fallon consistently mispronounced Wisch's name—calling him Gish and Swish—Wisch gestured with a cigar as big as Fallon's own and stuck to his point.

"You fellers don't collect the tickets till you're north of Howard st.," Wisch said. "Lots of people from the loop just hop out the open door at Howard st. Coming back, they change a white hat check [fare receipts] for a red one showing they've paid to the loop. You've lost thousands of dollars that way and you could—."

Lose 22 Cents a Trip

"Mr. Fish," Fallon interrupted, "were you ever a collector?"

"My name is Wisch," the engineer corrected, "and let me tell you, brother, we had that same trouble on the I. C. suburban, but we've got 'em cold now."

"We can't collect south of Howard st. because elevated crews operate our trains to that point and their unions won't let them collect fares," Fallon said.

"You're losing about 22 cents a trip on those chiselers," said Wisch. "And you can multiply it by thousands."

"The collectors aren't doing their duty if what you say is true," Fallon said. "But let me tell you, Mr. Dish, it's a lot easier to buy a short ride ticket and get away with it on the Illinois Central."

DAY by DAY on the FARM & GAIL COMPTON

In this area are feedlots that extend for acres over rolling hills. The observer, in normal times, gets a spectacle of thousands of steers standing about long rows of wooden feed bunks. The feedlots are bare of vegetation and when not eating the animals usually lie down and doze. The less activity they indulge in, the faster they gain weight.

The commercial operators usually feed shelled corn, alfalfa hay, and molasses. The two feeds are ground together and a 10 to 15 per cent mixture of molasses is added. A vitally important factor, the cattle men say, is to get the animals fed at exactly the same hour each day.

Regular Hours for Meals

Animals accustomed to regular feeding hours tend to be more complacent and gain better, the stockmen say. Thus, whereas the normal farm feeder may delay an hour or so in getting feed to his steers because some field job takes up his time, the commercial feeder has a crew of men charged mainly with getting the feed into the bunks at the same hour each day.

When an Illinois farmer starts a bunch of steers in drylot he generally plans on taking three weeks or a month to get the steers up to full feed. The commercial operator can do this in a week or 10 days. This makes a great difference in the length of time needed to get the desired weight. Most farmers attempting this would make their animals sick or cause them to founder.

It's a Gamble!

The commercial operator feeds with an eye on the market. All of his feed is purchased, so he must cut every corner possible. The farmer, depending to a great extent on home grown roughages and pastures, is not an exacting feeder.

Commercial feeders like to buy cattle weighing 700 to 1,000 pounds. They will feed the cattle from 60 to 120 days, or just enough to firm their flesh and turn them from a B grade carcass to A grade. They can determine pretty well when a steer has made the next grade and will not feed a day longer. The farmer doesn't always have this ability to judge grades. The commercial feeder makes his animals gain almost three pounds a day in present times.

Commercial feeders still operating are doing so because they have a sizable capital, achieve a rapid turnover in cattle numbers, and are willing to risk much to gain little. One feeder remarked, "We are taking a chance of losing $2,000 to make $100." They have contracts thruout the range country that enable them to make the best possible cattle buys.

The business of feeding thousands of steers each year has developed into an exacting industry. It retains one element, however, that is familiar to all farm feeders, whether they handle 20 or 100 steers in a year: Cattle feeding is a gamble.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

GARDENERS who want to get the largest quantity and highest quality snap beans should survey their rows often to make sure they harvest the pods at the right time. All varieties of snap beans should be picked before the pods reach maximum size and before the beans mature inside the pods.

If the plants are allowed to go to seed, the quality is lowered and the total yield is reduced. The pods should be picked at least once a week after the plants come into production.

The yield from snap beans usually is highest in early summer. When the weather becomes hot the number of pods is reduced. Many gardeners destroy their bean plants in late summer. This is not advisable, however, because late summer rains can reactivate the plants and produce new pods.

STRIKE OF 3,000 HALTS REPAIRS ON 23 VESSELS

Alameda, Cal., July 17 [Special]—As more than 3,000 AFL shipyard workers walked out today at the General Engineering and Drydock company's shipyard here, tying up work on 23 ships, a CIO union leader promised to help the strikers resist the navy and the war labor board.

The WLB has ordered the strikers back to work, but A. F. Bartholomew, president of the AFL Bay Cities' Metal Trades council, said the order would be ignored until the dispute betwen the union and the company is settled. The AFL men walked out when subcontractors hired CIO ship scalers.

The strike started Friday as a jurisdictional dispute between the AFL and the CIO, but James Smith, business agent of the CIO machinists' local 1504, said at today's mass meeting of the strikers: "We don't like the navy or the WLB. Whatever you people do we'll coöperate. If you set up a picket line we'll tie up the yard."

The walkout halted repairs on 19 ships and construction work on four minesweepers, a company official said. Ships under repair include four LST's, a hospital ship, a navy cargo assault ship, a navy cargo barge, Victory and Liberty ships, a small tanker, a coastal steamer, and a sub chaser. Work on eight of the ships was stopped last Friday when 874 AFL workers quit their jobs.

HELD FOR LIQUOR SALE TO MINORS WHO ROBBED HIM

Mario Bondona, 47, owner of a tavern at 4750 Chicago av., was charged yesterday with selling liquor to minors after three young men charged with burglary testified before Judge J. M. Braude in Boys' court that they had been drinking in Bondona's tavern.

They are Thomas Sullivan, 18, of 4622 Erie st.; his brother, Joseph, 17; and Albert Dodds, 18, of 4712 Ohio st. They were arrested emerging from Bondona's tavern at 5 a. m., July 13, with $10.95 stolen from the till. They also admitted taking 38 bottles of wine and a table radio from a tavern at 735 N. Cicero av., and 15 billfolds, three boxes of cigars, and 15 cartons of cigarets from a candy store at 651 N. Cicero av. the same night.

Bondona asked for a jury trial and his case was set for July 31. Charges against the three boys were continued to Aug. 1.

SAILOR CHARGED WITH MURDER IN HOTEL DEATH

Miami, Fla., July 17 [Special]—Seaman William Wells Parker, 19, of Toledo, O., was charged with first degree murder today in the beer bottle death of Mrs. Ella Mae Flynn Eames, 42, estranged wife of a former New England pastor and army chaplain.

Justice of the Peace Thomas S. Ferguson issued a first degree murder warrant but said he didn't know when it would be served on the sailor, who has been held a navy prisoner without charge since the death was discovered early yesterday morning.

Mrs. Eames' nude body was found in an alley back of a downtown hotel where Parker said he had dumped it from a 15 foot fire escape after he discovered the woman was dead.

Parker said he had picked the woman up in a bar Sunday night and that they went to his hotel room, quarreled and exchanged beer bottle blows.

He served 38 months overseas, participated in five major battles in the Mediterranean theater, and accumulated 112 points. Ranieri was kidnaped when he was 10 and held prisoner for 10 days for $50,000 ransom, but released unharmed and without payment of ransom. His father is Alex Ranieri, 4901 Altgeld st., wealthy contractor.

GREEN VETOES PENSIONS FOR COOK BAILIFFS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., July 17.—Gov. Green today approved 141 legislative bills and vetoed nine others including one to include Cook county court clerks and bailiffs under the generous provisions of the judges' pension system.

Analysis shows, said Green, that the pension bill would affect six officials receiving salaries of from $9,000 to $10,000 a year. The bill also would have made it possible for judges who have waived membership in the pension system to become participants. Cost to the taxpayers would be increased, he noted.

Other bills vetoed were turned down because they duplicated provisions of bills already approved or for technical reasons. None was of general importance.

Approved in accordance with his previous indication was a bill increasing salaries of the 204 legislators to $3,000 a year. It has been $5,000 for a two year period. This makes Illinois assemblymen the highest paid in the nation.

EXPECT STRIKE AT DONNELLEY'S TO END TODAY

The six week old strike at the R. R. Donnelley and Sons printing company, 300 E. Cermak rd., appeared ended last night. Early in the day 50 striking pressmen returned to work, and last night other departmental strikers indicated that they would return to their jobs today.

The strike began June 3 when pressmen walked out in a move to force a closed shop. Subsequently mailers, bookbinders, photoengravers, machinists, electricians, plumbers, and teamsters joined them. At no time, however, said Herbert P. Zimmerman, president, did the strikers total more than 23 per cent of the employe rolls.

Pressmen returned to work first, acting on orders of George L. Berry, international president of their union. Last night remaining strikers met, and, it was understood, were urged to return to their jobs. It is believed that negotiations between company and unions will be resumed at the point interrupted six weeks ago.

Boasts Murder Knowledge, Gets Four Month Sentence

Mrs. Virginia Bland, 24, of Dubuque, Ia., who told police last month that she had information on two gang murders, was sentenced to four months in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in Jury court. She was found guilty of defrauding the Morrison hotel.

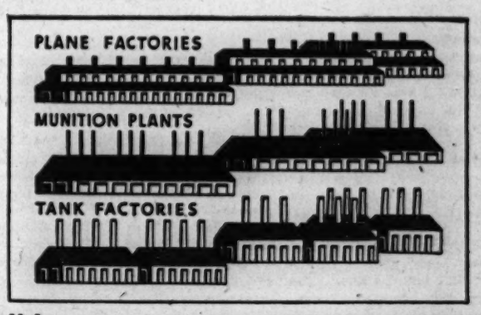
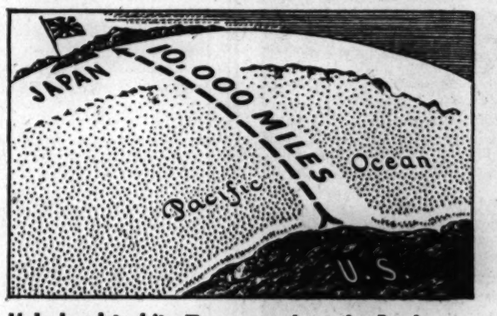
DOUBLY FRESH!—FRESH when you buy it—FRESH when you eat it

This is the Jap we haven't yet tackled

He's big—The Jap now controls one of the largest empires in the world. He has 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 war-hardened soldiers—twice as many as the Germans had to defend the Reich in the West. He is intrenched in China, Korea, Manchuria and the homeland—we have yet to meet these major forces.



He's strong—for 20 years the Jap has feverishly worked to make Manchuria an immense war arsenal. Here, out of bombing range, he has huge war plants. He has ample resources—in many cases greater than ours. He can build ships, tanks, guns in great numbers. And thousands of swift planes.



He's hard to hit—Every punch at the Jap has to travel thousands of miles. It takes three times as long to carry men, guns and food to our rear bases in the Pacific as it did to our front lines in Europe. Three times as many ships for the same amount of material—and more men in our supply lines.

He's a hustler—The Jap war worker works like a beaver—he is 35,000,000 strong, working 12 to 16 hours a day, 7 days a week, taking only 2 days off per month. He isn't quitting. He isn't wilting. He isn't easing up—he's hustling every muscle he's got—building ships, planes, guns to beat us.

Says Lieutenant General Holland M. Smith, U. S. Marine Corps:

"The Japanese fighting man may sometimes fight foolishly but he always fights furiously, savagely, ruthlessly. Any notion that such a people will wilt morally, psychologically or economically is quite certainly wrong. Our battles with the Jap will go into Marine Corps history as the toughest of all our time. Beating him will take the best we've got."

'The Wicked Mrs. Steel'

By Roy Vickers

(Copyright; 1945; By Roy Vickers)

SYNOPSIS: Gillian Beynon comes to Tenstable as companion to Mrs. Steel, widow of Andrew Steel. By the terms of his will she must leave his vast wealth to one of his relatives, otherwise the estate passes to the township of Tenstable. Ralph Hanshew, business manager for the Steel interests, and upon whom Mrs. Steel has designs, advises Gillian not to accept the position. When Ruth, the housekeeper, finds Mrs. Steel has killed another canary—knowing it is because Gillian has crossed her path—she urges Gillian not to stay. Mrs. Steel delights in her power over her husband's relatives and in making them grovel. She shows each a will in his favor—even Gillian— suggesting, should she marry Ralph, the money would be wisely managed. On Gillian's arrival Ralph was about to fall in love with Mrs. Steel. Cunningly, she makes plans to break up his new romance. Gillian does not mention the will when Ralph proposes. He is anxious to pull away from the whole sordid atmosphere. Mrs. Steel tells him of the will in Gillian's favor and he quarrels with Gillian. Ruth, who had promised Andrew Steel to watch over Margaret, finds she is getting too hard to manage. She forces Valerie to choose between her fiance and the Steel fortune, then secretly watches Valerie add extra tablets to her sleeping draught which she pretends to drink. Gillian promises Ralph she will destroy the will, but falls asleep before doing so. Next morning Mrs. Steel is found dead. Valerie is agitated. Gillian tells Ralph she didn't destroy the will. He fears the money will cause trouble between them. The will, naming Gillian as heir, is read before the family. Five sleeping tablets are missing. Gillian is accused of poisoning Margaret Steel, but if she will divide the inheritance the family will forego an investigation. Gillian refuses. She wants the horrible business settled now. Agnes goes to the police. Valerie believes she is guilty. The funeral is postponed. Gillian realizes she must stand alone until the tablets are accounted for.

INSTALMENT XXVII

TRICKED AGAIN

Valerie Weston had not gone to Babbinger's that morning. In time her restlessness drove her out. From acquaintances she picked up the latest news and rumors. The story of the five wills was on everybody's lips. The mayor was intervening, in the hope of claiming the fortune on behalf of the town. It was taken for granted that murder had been done.

"It would be better to give myself up at once. People will think worse of me for letting Gillian be suspected," Valerie thought.

She had actually turned in the direction of the police station before she pulled up, in the grip of sheer demoralizing fear. Back in the flat, she stifled a scream at a heavy, unfamiliar footstep on the landing and a heavy thump on the door. It was only a messenger from the bank who deposited a note from Charles Ludlow.

Those few words, which she interpreted in their full meaning, cut off hope, revealed her own utter futility.

Fear took hold of her. Fear made her unable to keep silent, equally unable to confess her guilt. One fear drove her to seek refuge in another. She had always been afraid of water, could never learn to swim.

Charles would be at the bank until five. This comforted her, because she knew he would interfere with her plan if he guessed it. He would stand by her, whatever she had done, would do anything for her—except tell her again that he wanted her for his wife.

By three o'clock she was in the woods where he had first kissed her, where they had built their castles in the air. Here she had confessed her dread of water. She remembered that overhanging rocky ledge.

On her way to the ledge she heard footsteps. She stopped dead, paralyzed with fear of the police, breathed again when she saw two laborers passing on the track 50 feet below. She waited.

"I must do it quickly." She reached the ledge. Another six paces and she would see the water beneath her. To prevent her nerves from reacting, she closed her eyes—then screamed as a hand gripped her.

"No, Val darling! We can do better than that!"

She would have shrunk away from him, but he was holding her in his arms, as if he still loved her.

"How did you find out?" she sobbed.

"I didn't. I just knew that you used to be clean and brave and beautiful, and that you suddenly became afraid and ashamed."

"What are you going to do?" she whispered.

"What are we going to do?" he corrected. His resolution wavered. "I thought I was big enough to advise you to give yourself up, but I'm not. I love you too much."

"How could I possibly drag you into it! Life would be wretched for us both—but it can be grand for you, when you get over this. You must forget me."

It was she who urged him back thru the wood—it was he who persuaded her to go first to Gillian. On the way she told him everything.

He held her hand while she told Gillian.

"It's great of you to tell me, Valerie!" cried Gillian. "But you're safe, Valerie—yes, you! Aunt Margaret didn't drink that milk."

"But I saw her!" gasped Valerie.

"You couldn't have! I know what she did—she tricked you—tricked you again by pretending the drug was making her sleepy." She saw that neither dared believe her. "I can prove it—in law and everything." She rang the bell. "Now don't say anything at all. Just listen and stop worrying."

The lovers waited for Ruth.

"Ruth, you will please tell Miss Weston what happened to the glass of milk that was in this room when she was sitting with Mrs. Steel."

"She poured it into that vase—in one of her tantrums, I daresay. And I emptied it down the sink. You saw me, Miss."

"Thank you, Ruth," said Gillian. "That tells us what we wanted to know."

"Those tablets, I expect!" Ruth was no longer scornful. "I've held my peace because it was best for you I should, Miss Beynon. Margaret told me about Mr. Hanshew and how he'd take care of the money, and I wouldn't want to harm him any more than you, Miss. But now those tablets have spoiled everything."

"How could it harm Mr. Hanshew?" demanded Gillian.

"I saw Margaret die. I told you it was her own wickedness. And so it was. But it wasn't her own hand that ended her life—any more than it was tablets. And now I shall speak."

"Then do speak!" cried Charles Ludlow.

"Not to you, sir," returned Ruth. "Nor to Miss Beynon neither. I shall say my say to the police. And I'd best go and say it now."

When Ruth left the drawing room, Valerie was lolling back, relaxed in a vast relief. Charles Ludlow was able to give a thought to Gillian.

"I say, Gillian that was a bit thick! She more or less implied that Hanshew killed the old girl."

"I don't think that Ralph will mind. It's too fantastic to do him any harm."

"Remember how she harped on the money," said Valerie, sitting up. "Probably she's muddled about the wills and thinks that when she tells her tale, whatever it is, she will do you out of your inheritance."

Ruth overawed Carter into driving her to the police station. Within a few minutes of her departure, Mr. Tollerman, the solicitor, was telephoning Gillian that the police had withdrawn their ban on the funeral, which would take place the next day.

"The pathologist, Sir Arthur Maenton, has certified that death resulted from natural causes," he added. "Fortunately, Sir Arthur is staying in the neighborhood—his presence should stop all scandal."

Natural causes! Gillian told Mr. Tollerman about Ruth.

"The police will not listen to her, Miss Beynon. I repeat, no murder has been committed."

Gillian related the conversation to the others.

"Of course she wasn't murdered!" said Charles. "As if two persons, acting independently, would try on the same night to murder her."

MAJ. MANIERRE TELLS RESCUE FROM GERMANS

Drops from Sky in France Before Invasion

His experiences after he was dropped from the skies into southern France several days before the allies invaded Europe and his capture by the Gestapo were related yesterday by Cyrus E. Manierre Jr. of Rose ter., Lake Forest, a paratrooper. He is a grandson of Carter H. Harrison, former Chicago mayor.

Maj. Manierre was dropped into France to organize French resistance to the Nazis, destroy enemy communications and defense installations, and blow up ammunition dumps.

Blast Saves Life

His work continued until Aug. 5, 1944, when he was captured by the Germans and interrogated for a week by the Gestapo.

"They had just about decided to shoot me," the major said, "when French resistance forces attacked and blew up the German headquarters at Lyons. The Gestapo, or those members who had not been shot, fled to Germany and the German army took command of the prison camp."

Manierre convinced the new men in charge that he was an American flyer who had been shot down and had gotten civilian clothes after his capture. Shortly thereafter, however, he was evacuated with the other prisoners when French resistance forces fired on Lyons.

At a transit camp the major met his brother, Lt. William Manierre II., pilot of a B-24 which had been shot down only a week after the major's capture.

Brothers Stay Together

Altho they were scheduled to be sent to different camps, the major traded places with another prisoner and managed to be sent to stalag luft I with his brother. They were together for the first time in two years and they wanted to remain together, they had decided. There were many other Americans in the camp.

The camp commandant told the Americans on May 1 that they were to be evacuated. The Americans refused to move. The commandant then turned command of the camp over to the Yanks when the Nazis fled. In little more than a day the Americans liberated a political prisoner concentration camp. They saw again the atrocities wrought by the Nazis. The Russians took command of the region on May 30.

Maj. Manierre and his brother are sons of Mrs. Edith Harrison Manierre. His brother was shot down on his 36th bombing mission for the army air forces.

NEW INSECTICIDE TAKES BITE OUT OF RATTLESNAKE

It was a 30 inch timber rattler, in charge of Pete French, a St. Louis drug importer whose hobby is collecting snakes for zoos and laboratories. Deftly handling the snake with reshaped coat hangers, French held the reptile while Dr. Homer E. Whitmire, St. Louis chemist, demonstrated the killing effects of rotenone. The rattler's stomach was rubbed with rotenone, an insecticide derived from South American plants, and two hours later the snake died of paralysis.

Dr. Whitmire explained that snakes are used in laboratory tests to determine the effectiveness of insect dusts and sprays. From snake tests in his laboratory he has developed a rotenone liquid which can be painted on screens of homes and barns to paralyze flies and other insects several months after application. He also has developed rotenone powders and sprays for applying to the clothing of soldiers in the Pacific to kill ticks and other insects on contact.

Indicted by Federal Jury on Shipment Theft Count

Hyman Platt, 25, of 920 Wilson av., was indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday on a charge of larceny from an interstate shipment of goods. Assistant United States Atty. George G. Kelly said Platt stole two cases of hosiery and one case of children's apparel, valued at a total of $984, from an interstate truck April 26.

SEES SHORTAGES DELAYING RURAL ELECTRIC WORK

Two hundred million dollars has been appropriated by congress for rural electrification projects for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1946, but shortages of labor, wood poles, and mechanical equipment may prevent use of all the funds before that date. That was the prospect outlined to the board of directors of the National Rural Electric Coöperative association yesterday in the Palmer House by E. J. Stoneman, Platteville, Wis., president of the association. Stoneman said 1,250,000 farms have been electrified since the start of the rural electrification administration in 1935. At present there is not enough material to supply the farmers' demands for extensions of the service.

Dr. Mildred Kemper's Troth Announced at Winnetka Tea

BY JUDITH CASS

At a tea yesterday afternoon in their Winnetka home, Mr. and Mrs. James Scott Kemper announced the engagement of Mr. Kemper's daughter, Dr. Mildred Kemper, to the Rev. Menter Bradley Terrill II., son of Mr. and Mrs. Holman H. Terrill of Dallas, Tex. Dr. Kemper was graduated from the Westover school, Smith college, and the medical school of Northwestern university. A specialist in pediatrics, she has been practicing in Barrington since completing a residency at Children's Memorial hospital.

Mr. Terrill attended the Woodbury Forest school in Virginia and received his master's degree from Southern Methodist university. He recently was graduated from Seabury Western Theological seminary in Evanston. No date has been set for the wedding.

Chicagoans who followed the operatic and concert stage career of Margery Maxwell in the years when she appeared with the Chicago Civic Opera company and the Ravinia company will be interested to hear of her marriage July 3 to James G. Hodgkinson. The bride, widow of the late surgeon, Dr. Frederick Brown Moorehead, and Mr. Hodgkinson were married in the Chicago Athletic club, Mr. Hodgkinson's former home. Judge John A. Sbarbaro, a family friend, performed the ceremony, which was followed by a wedding dinner in the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Maxwell.

Mr. Hodgkinson and his bride are not taking a wedding trip at this time because of her duties as head of the volunteer nurses' aid corps at the Presbyterian hospital. They are living in the Webster hotel.

Service News

The cablegram which Mrs. Irving Odell received yesterday brought the news that Col. Odell has arrived at an army base in the Pacific with the troops which he has transported there directly from the European theater of operations. Col. Odell is a transport commander in charge of troops aboard ship.

One of the Odells' sons, Lt. Irving G. Odell of the army, recently received the bronze star "for meritorious service against an armed enemy." He is stationed in Czechoslovakia with the 3d army and has had two opportunities to visit his brother Maj. Malcolm N. Odell, who is stationed in Paris. Another brother, Warrant Officer John J. P. Odell II., is in South America with the army air forces' emergency rescue squad.

When Lt. George Isham was wounded in Germany a few months ago he was transferred from one hospital to another in France and England before being sent home. He now is with his parents, the Henry P. Ishams in Lake Forest on a 30 day convalescent leave, but must report next week to an army hospital in Oklahoma. His brother, Pvt. Henry Isham, is serving in India with a service squadron of the army air forces, and another brother, Corp. Robert Isham, is with the army field artillery in Germany.

Capt. Henry P. Wheeler of the marine corps reserve is spending a three week leave in Lake Forest with his mother, Mrs. Clarence C. Prentice, and Mr. Prentice. He recently completed a course at a marine school in Quantico, Va., to which he was assigned following two and a half years in the South Pacific. Early in June the Prentices went to Portsmouth, N. H., for the commissioning of the new submarine on which Mrs. Prentice's other son, Lt. Leslie Wheeler of the naval reserve, is serving. Lt. Wheeler now has gone to sea.

Here and There

Back in civilian clothes after three years of duty with the army is Robert N. McCreary, who has returned to his home in Lake Forest. His son, Corp. Pierce McCreary, is with the ground corps of the army air forces and just has been transferred from Texas to Camp Martin, Cal. While on the west coast he hopes to have a visit with his sister, Miss Adelaide McCreary, who is doing dramatic work in San Francisco.

When her husband received orders to report for temporary duty in Boca Raton, Fla., Mrs. Charles F. Glore and their young son, Charles, came to Lake Forest yesterday from Boston, Mass., where they had been living while Lt. Glore was stationed at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Young Mrs. Glore and the baby will visit his parents, the senior Glores. Another visitor in the Glore home this summer will be Mrs. Hixon Glore, who will arrive next month. She is living with her parents in Kansas City, Mo., while Pvt. Glore is serving with the army in India.

Following a short visit in Lake Forest with her parents, the Robert Piersons, Mrs. Lathrop Milman has returned to Fort Sill, Okla., where Lt. Milman is in training with the army and where they are living.

Ensign Laurence Dawson, who came home on a brief leave two weeks ago to meet his new son, John Collins Dawson, for the first time, has returned to Charleston, S. C., to await the departure of the newly commissioned small attack transport on which he is stationed. If he stays in this country long enough, his wife, the former Ruth Burrows, may go to see him in Charleston.

Fanciful Future

"Our post-war plans"—that well known phrase—
Is heard thruout our office days. . . .
If stenos, typists had a vote
Are these the items they would vote?
Black carbon that will never smear,
A ribbon that will last a year,
Some automatic letter files,
A boss that's carefree—always smiles,
A clock that's set for shorter hours,
And on each desk, our favorite flowers.
But—after work, our post-war plan
Will definitely be—a MAN!

Woman's Inhumanity to Woman

In reply to an article in the WCG column about women bosses: Marge from Missouri never worked for the one I worked for. This former boss of mine used to mistreat any one if she had so much as a new dress or a pair of new shoes . . . was jealous of those who were working for her . . . no girl in her department was given a chance at promotion because she couldn't bear to give any one a break . . . and no one remained any length of time because of the boss' attitude.

Clara Parker, women's counselor for United Air Lines at Chicago, celebrates her 10th anniversary today and —sshh, it's a secret—is going to receive a pretty gold pin set with a diamond. . . . Rufe Pickett, our favorite R. R. conductor, who hails from the south, insists [just to start an argument] that "you-all" is plural. . . . And R. C. [to start another argument] suggests we inaugurate a campaign to elect the most handsome boss in Chicago. Her nominee is Wilson Killough, and this will plunge us into plenty of hot water!

An airplane company sounded the call for an exhibit of hobbies the other day and discovered the war was responsible for many interesting collections of curios—stamps, rare herbs, military shoulder patches, coins, crosses, and wax dolls. Many companies might sponsor similar exhibits and thus encourage the employes whose husbands and brothers are still in the fight. . . . Several phone calls have asked the why and wherefore of some cute pups in a near north side Michigan av. window last week, but our WCG noon hour scouts so far have failed to discover why the shop was "putting on the dog."

Fashion Originals in Current Showings of New York Dress Institute

Originals from Trigere collection for fall and winter, presented in current press week showings of New York Dress institute and sketched by Margot, who accompanied Rea Seeger, Tribune fashion editor, to New York to bring latest fashions to Tribune readers.

1. Original black velvet sheath dress, superbly fitted and detailed, with just a suggestion of flare to the skirt for distinctive contrast and a bow tied at the side waist thru a narrow belt. The bow is embroidered in bow knot motifs outlined with seed pearls.

2. Dramatically slashed bodice of an otherwise severely simple dull black floor length dinner or evening gown. The slash runs from the shoulder down half way thru the bodice. A similar slash defines the back half of the bodice. There are tiny enamel arrowhead pins in both front and back.

3. New suit costume achieving unusual contrast with a cleverly designed and detailed black and white fitted jacket which tops a slim one piece dress in dull black wool. Note the side slant closing of the jacket and the huge button trim repeated on the rather loose straight sleeves.

4. A subtle combination of thin black wool with wide black lace, particularly effective in this very different theater dress. The lace banding is fastened, scallop to scallop, in the skirt and in slanting lines in the virtually sleeveless bodice. There are matching lace mitts.

5. The vestee blouse, Trigere's smartest new dressmaker extra in the entire collection. This one is made of contrasting colors, raspberry and beige, and is as painstakingly fashioned as a costume blouse. The high and flattering neckline shows in the deep vee-line of all suit jackets.

6. Claret red velvet town coat with long loose straight silhouette, having for the only trim the deftly tied bow of velvet high on the left shoulder. Under the coat is a simple cocktail or short evening dress of gray and black plaid surah. The dress has very short sleeves and high neckline, slit in front.

Models sketched and others will be available later in Chicago stores.

Suave Elegance Marks Trigere Fall Creations

BY REA SEEGER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, July 17—Pauline Trigere originals for fall and winter of 1945 definitely bear the stamp of this dynamic personality's genius. Dresses, coats, and suits in her display at the New York Dress institute's fifth annual press week showings are smooth perfection. Those definitely diagonal seams, the same clever bias or slanted cut of fabric, the same suave elegance of workmanship, and the inimitable subtle combinations of color and materials that made her first showings sensational again are evident in the current display.

This year there's a somewhat serpentine curve to insets or drapery, and if the serpentine flavor sounds distressing, the swag line of drapery is just as descriptive. Still operating within the legal yardage limits, Trigere cuts with a released flare in skirts, invariably a front flare only, from the knees down. This makes for a new silhouette, even tho the sleeves and bodices remain as simple as before. The famous shoe buttons of last season are changed in color only, and there are more decorative affairs such as tiny little shimmering silver buttons, or those combining fabric with metal rims.

Smart simple all-black day time dresses, so difficult to describe and so hard to find, are Trigere's masterpieces. Each is a flawless example of superb detail and fitting, a classic model of flattering simplicity. Typically French are exquisite dresses of black lace and dull crepe or thin black wool. Suave and handsome are the beautiful dresses of brocade and surah and the special beauty, a flared skirted dress of rustling black peau de soie, with quaintly puffed three-quarter length sleeves.

Dress parade clothes of velvet were outstanding, prophetic of a new "dress-up" era to come. And the floor length evening clothes, together with the exciting new long evening coats, were significant reminders of a new wave of interest in evening fashions.

Rev. Robert McEwen Is Named President of Blackburn College

Dr. William H. Hudson, for 33 years president of Blackburn college, Carlinville, Ill., yesterday announced the election of his successor, the Rev. Dr. Robert McEwen, professor of philosophy and religion at Carleton college, Northfield, Minn.

Dr. Hudson, who developed Blackburn from a school housed in four railroad cars to a 2 million dollar institution with 300 students, many of them on a self-help basis, resigned at the age of 73 to head the committee on college finance.

Dr. McEwen, formerly minister of Flossmoor Community church, was graduated from Macalester college in 1927 and received his bachelor of divinity degree from McCormick Theological seminary and a Ph. D. from the University of Chicago. After leaving Flossmoor he was on the faculty of Hanover college for four years. Mrs. McEwen, a graduate of the University of Kansas, will teach French at Blackburn and be acting dean. The McEwens have two daughters, Mary, 15, and Joan, 12.

Two Ravinia Newcomers Ride Two Warhorses as Thousands (More or Less) Cheer

Two newcomers rode into Ravinia on two war horses last night and were greeted by an audience that ran to extra chairs in the pavilion, but whose exact size I cannot tell you because the management, formerly on the counting job to the last elusive customer, has grown surprisingly coy about giving out figures. Anyway, several thousand people turned out to hear Alfred Wallenstein conduct Tschaikowsky's "Pathetique" with the Chicago Symphony orchestra—his first appearance with that group since he was its first cellist about 16 years ago—and to discover what Jakob Gimpel could do with Rachmaninoff's Second Piano Concerto, which he originally had been scheduled to play under the direction of the ailing George Szell.

It is my unfailing Ravinia custom to give a new conductor the benefit of the doubt. He has to adjust himself to acoustics, to a strange orchestra cut to summer size, and to the trains which last night passed in puffing succession. But at the moment, my admiration for Mr. Wallenstein with baton does not match my earlier impression of Mr. Wallenstein with cello.

His "Pathetique" was undistinguished on the whole, rather muddled and fuzzy with a tendency toward dragging out the slow sections and forcing the brilliant ones, until occasionally it suggested a flabby man indulging in violent, tho hopeless, bursts of exercise. His attention was centered on the strings, which dug deep to produce the demanded volume, but the detail of the winds straggled in like orphans of the orchestral storm. I rather wished Mr. Wallenstein would concentrate on a score and not on virtuosity that didn't come off.

The best I can say for Mr. Gimpel's way with the Rachmaninoff C Minor is that he was a pianistic pygmy hammering away lucklessly at a giant's forge. His playing was inadequate in technique and dull in tone, and even the song of the slow movement was snarled in nervous knots. No vestige of the grand style came to his rescue, or to Rachmaninoff's, and while the sustained pull of the strings sometimes suggested old times, this was scarcely less than a shockingly bad performance. It was no place for people to whom that concerto is forever haunted by the memory of giants. Perhaps Mr. Gimpel fared better in an encore I was unable to hear, but which was reported to me as variations on the Marines' Song.

Symphony No. 6, B minor, "Pathetique".....Tschaikowsky
Concerto for Piano, No. 2, C minor.....Rachmaninoff

A rich, even suntan is beautiful, but one that is blotchy or peeled is repulsive, Miss Estelle Compton, models bureau head, said yesterday in demonstrating the correct way to acquire a smooth, bronze finish. Her demonstration was given at the Oak st. beach. Explaining that models have lost jobs—even beauty titles—because they were not evenly tanned, Miss Compton suggested choosing overcast days for the first two appearances on the beach; spending the same amount of time in tanning the sides of the body and legs as is spent on the front and back; pulling the bathing suit straps down under the arms to permit full tanning of the back if a low cut dress is to be worn; applying a protective to the skin before getting on the beach, and wearing il soaked cotton on the eyes to avoid white wrinkles under the eyes.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 17—Lloyd Bacon at last has caught up with his life's ambition. He's gotten around to producing and directing "Barnstorming," an original screen play based on the life of his famous father, Frank Bacon, of "Lightnin'" fame. Lloyd would like to get Spencer Tracy to play his father, and if he succeeds he'll make the picture at M. G. M. Lloyd and his sister, Bess, have been working on the script for two years. . . . Warners inaugurated a world wide story department with headquarters in Washington, D. C. There are a thousand more featured writers in that city, so the hunting should be good. Ted Todd will be the boss man with his headquarters within a stone's throw of the diplomatic set. They'll have story departments in every key city in America, also in Europe. With such a set-up they should get hold of some tall tales.

Big Three in One Picture

Now I know why Warners are rushing "Ethan Frome" for quick production. Looks as if their big three, Bette Davis, Joan Crawford, and Paul Henreid, would go into it. . . . Susan Hayward and Shirley Temple land together in "Suddenly It's Spring." That's going to look like a sister act. . . . Joe Pasternak pulled the lucky number out of the hat—got "Big Ben" to direct at Metro. That's Clark Gable, Irene Dune, and Esther Williams, and a ready made box office before the cameras turn. Joe can get anything he asks for these days. He's a big boy at Metro, and should be when he can turn out the sort of honeys he's been making. . . . If Bill Cagney talks Frank Capra into making Thorne Smith's "The Stray Lamb" I'll be surprised.

Kid Stuff and It Works

Kid stories are right up Sally Benson's alley. She's at 20th Century writing "Anna and the King of Siam" at present, but she's Metro's choice for "Huckleberry Finn." It's a musical with Ralph ["Trolley Song"] Blaine doing the tunes. Sally's found the girl for it—14 year old Barbara Whiting who now holds a $1,500 a week contract after her first picture, "Junior Miss." . . . It may be back to the "big street" for Lillian Gish. Lawrence Lagner's out here trying to talk her into a Theater guild production of "A Winter's Tale." Ian Kane of the Stratford-on-Avon players comes over to stage it, and Stewart Cheney will do sets and costumes. . . . With Lupe Velez's name still in the news since her sister is trying to break her will, there comes this story from Mexico. It seems after Lupe's funeral nobody even thought of removing the wilted flowers from her grave. Two weeks after she was buried, Cantinflas had five peons clear off the dead blooms and put fresh ones in their place. It is his thoughtfulness and money that keeps fresh flowers there.

Wag's Department

At Tom Breneman's Hollywood, I heard this one: "Is she cold? Why she's got Arctic circles under her eyes!" . . . While we're on the subject of Arctic, Herbert Yates threw a birthday party for Vera Ralston at the Troc opening of "Rhythm on the Ice," because he met her at a rink. . . . But it was Bill Gargan who said, "It's easy to get in the movies, but how do you get a seat after you're in?" . . . When our Mary Pickford began worrying Charley Koerner about the rights to "Miss Hargreaves," she didn't have to go out and look for a star for it. She had one right at home—herself. Yes, Mary's got that feelin' to go back before the cameras once more. Being a producer ain't the same.

Potatoes continue to come into the market in skimpy supply . . . summer apples, including the sauceable transparent and duchess, are generally available . . . watermelon is plentiful and moderate in price; honeydews and cantaloupes, tho quite plentiful, are selling at ceiling prices, as are all of the berries. Peaches retail at less than ceiling prices.

Manufacturers of jar rubbers had a difficult time in the first war years, because reclaimed and synthetic rubbers often held an odor and gave an unpleasant flavor to fruits canned with them. Their troubles have been overcome, and homemakers shouldn't have any unhappy experiences with the new jar rings. However, there may be a few old ones still in circulation, and to be on the safe side, these should be boiled for 15 minutes in a quart of water containing a tablespoonful of baking soda. If the rings you plan to use have a strong odor, give them the soda bath on the day before canning. No, it won't injure the rubber.

Margarines have been fortified with vitamin A for some time. The food and drug administration standard is 9,000 units, formerly considered the average vitamin A content of butter. A new survey shows the A average of butter to be approximately 15,000 units to the pound. Now we have a margarine manufacturer stepping forward immediately to announce that his brand of margarine has been stepped up in vitamin A potency to the 15,000 unit level. Other manufacturers probably will follow.

Salad oils are so high in red ration points that many women hesitate to buy them. Good salad dressings may be made without oil. Take the cole slaw dressing of vinegar, cream, sugar, and salt, for example. A fine flavored vinegar seasoned with some sugar and condiments is capable of making a green salad or a mixed raw vegetable salad taste pretty wonderful, even with no oil to help. And try this one on a fish or vegetable salad.

Tomato Soup Dressing

Frost-Nipped Peaches Make Bumper Crop

BY EUGENE GRIFFIN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Benton Harbor, Mich., July 17—Chicago's fruit basket, as the farmers here call this 80-mile wide region of berry fields and orchards ripening along the side of Lake Michigan, will be filled with peaches this summer, if with little of anything else.

A bumper Michigan peach crop of 2,790,000 bushels, grown in Berrien, Van Buren, and Allegan counties, was predicted this week in a new summary by the department of agriculture of reports received from the growers. The forecast reflected their anticipation of an even heavier yield than the June prediction of 2,340,000 bushels.

The peach crop now being predicted would be 485,000 bushels more than the 1934-1943 10 year average of 2,305,000 bushels, altho it still will be less than last year's record-breaking crop of 3,600,000 bushels.

Peach sales on the Benton Harbor market totaled 1,063,030 bushels last year, the third time in history that sales reached a million. Benton Harbor is believed to have the largest open air fruit market in the country.

Growers received an average price of $2.53 a bushel. The office of price administration ceiling price was $3.66.

"Not too many growers expect to get the ceiling price this year," said L. A. Zillman, assistant farm agent for Berrien county, called the richest fruit county in America. "For one thing, the sugar shortage problem may cause quite a difference in sales for canning purposes."

But L. A. Boyd of New Troy, Berrien county, a director of the Michigan Fruit Sponsors, said the excellent quality of Michigan peaches will take care of their sales.

"Our peaches have more sugar content, more delicious flavor, and better color because they are left on the trees longer," Boyd said. "You just can't beat 'em for eating, canning, or preserving. We're not worrying about sales or prices."

Michigan peaches will arrive on the market about Aug. 15 and will continue thru September. Some Red Birds, a novelty peach that won't stand shipping, were brought to market this week. Following will come Orioles, Golden Jubilees, Rochesters, Havens, Elbertas, J. H. Hales, Fertile Hales, Elbertas [the heaviest planted late variety], Big Reds, Gold Drops, Smocks, and Lemon Frees.

The size of the crop has come as a surprise to the growers, who had feared that late spring freezes and frosts would be ruinous. A temperature of 22 degrees was recorded in Michigan in the last week in April, and there was another freeze May 1.

Altho the fruit belt was protected somewhat by the tempering influence of the lake on the weather, nearly all fruits except peaches were damaged seriously.

"We thought everything was lost," said Kenneth Johnson, veteran grower on the Hillandale rd., in the Pearl grange north of here. "The wonderful warm weather in March promised an early crop, but it was hurt in the late April freezes. When we cut the little peaches open in the spring and examined them under the microscope at Jim's [James J. Jakway, a grower across the road] the chits [sprouts] were black or brown. That's usually a sure sign that the peaches will be lost. But it looks now like we're going to have a bumper yield."

When the trees were heavy with fruit, the farmers had another worry: Not enough help to hire to thin the boughs properly, so the peaches would have room to develop. A good peach should be 2 to 2¼ inches across. They will not grow to this size if too many are left on a branch.

The thinning problem was solved for the growers last month by nature. Many of the overcrowded young peaches fell from the trees almost overnight, like a green rain, in a phenomenon called the "June drop." The "drop" this year was especially propitious.

"It was a God-send," Kenneth Johnson said. "The drop came late in the season, and some of us thought it might not come at all this year, but when it did come it was just right. I won't have to touch the thinning stick to most of my trees."

Johnson said he believes the peaches were saved in the spring freezes because they were "in shuck." That is, the drying calyx had not yet dropped away from the young fruit.

Other fruits suffered serious losses.

The predicted pear crop will be 303,000 bushels, compared with 1,193,000 last year and a 1,114,000 average for 10 years; grapes will be 8,800 tons, compared with 34,000 tons last year; sweet and pie cherries will be 9,300 tons, compared with 54,600 in 1944, and apples will be 1,750,000 bushels, compared with 7,625,000 last year.

Raspberries will be about 25 per cent of normal, it is predicted.

The canneries, however, which normally put up 6 million pounds of raspberries, are not canning any this year. Growers are allowed 25 cents a pound by the OPA, which has ordered canners to reflect not more than 13 cents of this in their prices. So all of the short raspberry crop is being sold on the fresh market or in puree form for industrial use in such products as ice cream.

PWs to Aid Cherry Harvest

Sturgeon Bay, Wis., July 17 (AP)—The first 500 of an expected group of 2,100 German war prisoners who will help harvest the Door county cherry crop arrived today. An additional 500 are expected before the end of the week, representatives of the Fruit Growers Coöperative said.

Coöperative officials said the request for war prisoner aid was made because of lack of sufficient civilian workers. A material improvement in crop conditions, together with the shortage of civilian labor, makes it questionable whether the entire crop can be harvested, they said.

Guard Baby's Food During Long Journey

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS
[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

After having devoted a number of articles to preparations for traveling with a baby, and after making suggestions for certain details, such as reservations, stop-overs, methods of achieving cleanliness, and so forth, I want to devote some articles to the subject of the baby's food en route. If I went into every detail, there would be dozens of these columns, but I will take up the most important aspects of feeding while traveling.

[1] First, carry a mild antiseptic to use on your hands, when you have to handle the baby quickly and cannot get your hands washed at the moment.

[2] Don't depend on a thermos or other vacuum bottle for the baby's sterile drinking water for the trip. It is important to know that water, tho sterile when poured into the bottle, does not remain sterile in these containers after 24 hours.

[3] Be sure to carry a can-opener. Also a small funnel, if possible.

Milk of course is the first consideration, if yours is not a breast-fed baby, or if he is on supplementary feedings, or has already been weaned.

Since the war, it is not practicable to use formulas based on fresh cow's milk during a long train journey, due to difficulties of sterilization and refrigeration. So there are two products you can resort to, unless your doctor has other advice to give. These are powdered milk or evaporated. If you use evaporated milk, try to get the half-size cans [tho you may have difficulty now], since a can, once opened, must not be used again for the baby.

The powdered milk is excellent for this purpose, as it can be prepared [and so simply] immediately before each feeding and will not sour if bottles cannot be kept on ice.

Announce Betrothal of Capt. McAfee to New York Minister

Wellesley, Mass., July 17 (AP)—The engagement of Capt. Mildred H. McAfee of the naval reserve, president of Wellesley college and director of the WAVES, to the Rev. Dr. Douglas Horton of New York City was announced tonight. The Rev. Dr. Horton is minister of the General Council of Congregational Christian churches and chairman of the American committee for the World Council of Churches. Miss McAfee is the daughter of Mrs. Cleland Boyd McAfee and the late Rev. Dr. Cleland Boyd McAfee. A graduate of Vassar college, she received her M. A. degree from the University of Chicago. Dr. Horton at one time was pastor of the United Church of Hyde Park, Chicago.

Thru the Looking Glass

A summer love popped up again the other day with its luster undimmed. This is a most unusual cologne, in the fragrance of ferns.

It may be that some won't be too mad about it because the scent isn't like the things they're used to, all sweet or languorous or exotic. This cologne smells just as you'd expect one with the name "fragrant fern" to smell. It's a beautiful, serene blend of fresh ferns in cool glens, and we love that in a cologne translation just as much as we'd love it if we were lucky enough to have a cool glen within walking distance of the typewriter and could hike to it every hot day!

This is, as you might expect, the very tiniest bit sweet, but the sweetness isn't the dominating note; that's rather a woodsy note that we find beautifully refreshing and even a little exhilarating in hot weather. It's the kind of a fragrance you'll enjoy using when you want to look and feel cool—when you wear your white dresses, for instance, or your filmy summer evening clothes.

It's also the kind of a fragrance that's something of an elegant pickup in itself. When your working day is done and a reviving bath is in order try a rubdown with this afterward. You'll feel as fresh as a flower and that demoralizing, wilted feeling will have vanished.

We keep our own bottle of this in the refrigerator. Somehow, having it ice cold seems to triple its effectiveness as a refreshant. You might try this little trick and see how you like it.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	2 clubs	2 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of spades.

The bidding, as given, appears normal in all respects. But West's action is open to question. "I knew my partner would play me for a very good hand when I made a vulnerable overcall at the level of two," was his contention. The better tactical move is to double with this hand. It might well develop that a better contract can be uncovered for the hand. It is not at all remote that the club suit will be banked against the declarer and that he might incur a loss on a hand in which hearts or diamonds could be safely played.

West did not find the opening lead a privilege and to avoid the risk of losing a trick decided to open the deuce of trumps. The bidding plainly indicated that such a lead would not embarrass partner. Declarer won this trick in his own hand and in an effort to establish dummy's diamonds for club discards, laid down the ace and another diamond. West clattered up with the king and now might just as well have packed his bag and taken the next train home. "Declarer's bidding was so strong, I was afraid he had the queen of diamonds and was trying to pull a fast one," was his explanation. This was a very fanciful notion. Things don't happen that way in real life. If South had the ace, queen, and another diamond, it would be silly of him not to pull trumps and take the diamond finesse. East was surely marked with the queen and should have been permitted to win the trick in order to fire back a club.

However, South could have made the hand without contributory negligence on the part of West. The proper play was as simple as it was sound. The first trick should be won in dummy and a small diamond led. If East plays low the eight is played from the closed hand and West is in with no killing lead available to him. Declarer will then cash the ace of diamonds, enter dummy to ruff a diamond and since the suit breaks, two good diamonds will be established for club discards. Declarer will lose in all, a diamond, a heart, and a club.

BY E. L. (CURLY) LAMBEAU
Coach, Green Bay Packers

Green Bay, Wis., July 17—In my temporary role as a sports writer, before I have to devote all my time to preparing the Packers for the College All-Star game, I plan to write in particular about three veteran Packers. These are Don Hutson, who also is an assistant coach; Larry Craig, and Charley Brock.

Curly Lambeau

Later I will discuss the problems faced by the professional champions in playing the All-Stars and I assure you we will have plenty of them the evening of Aug. 30 in Soldiers' field.

Says Brock Is Best Center

Hutson's name and deeds have been splashed over the sports pages for more than 10 years, yet I think I will have some comments to make about him which never before have been in print. Craig and Charley Brock, to my mind, have been vastly underrated players, at least in the public eye.

Charley, who will be captain of the Packers in the All-Star game, and thruout the season, is the best center in professional football. In making this statement I include Bulldog Turner of the Bears, now in the army.

Why is Brock tops? He is on the ball all the time. He is aggressive and untiring. He has no peer at intercepting passes. In fact, National league teams haven't thrown in his defensive territory the last two seasons. And he's tops as a ball thief. By this I mean grabbing the ball from a player on the other team.

Don Hutson Charley Brock Larry Craig

Has Abundant Energy

He has a great physique, with 210 pounds spread over a 6 foot 1 inch frame. He has abundant energy and always remains on the field at least 10 minutes after practice to take a few extra laps, along with Larry Craig, who never seems to tire, either.

Now, I have a great deal of respect for Bulldog Turner. He is fast, too, but does not maneuver with the skill of Brock, who has the coordination of a half back. Turner may hurt you more than Brock does when he slams into you, but for all-

Favorites Win 1st Round of Women's Golf

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

The medalist, the defending champion, and the 1944 runner-up yesterday advanced in steady fashion thru the first round of match play in the 14th annual tournament of the Chicago Women's Western Golf association at the Northmoor Country club.

First to report in the championship flight was Rena Nelson of Exmoor, 1934 holder of the championship, who scored a 6 and 5 decision over Jane Nelson of Hinsdale.

In this morning's second session of the event, which will close with Friday's title match, Miss Nelson will meet Mrs. Harold E. Foreman Sr. of Lake Shore, mother of the state men's champion these last two years. Mrs. Foreman advanced by eliminating Virginia Bartock of Park Ridge, 3 and 2.

Titleholder Plays Today

The second match in the championship bracket today sends the titleholder, Mrs. Lawrence H. Selz of the home club, who won the 1944 tourney at La Grange, against Mrs. Frank Mayer of Lake Shore. Mrs. Selz had her troubles before she could wrest a 3 and 1 argument from Mrs. H. P. Steele of Skokie. Mrs. Steele held the champion even thru the first nine, but Mrs. Selz played the last eight holes in two over par. Mrs. Mayer gained the second round with a 4 and conquest of Lillian Townsend of Evanston.

Virginia Nilles of Rolling Green, runner-up to Mrs. Selz last year and a finalist in the state tournament last week, brought off a decisive triumph, 7 and 5, over Mrs. Howard Greene of Skokie.

Miss Nilles Meets Mrs. Sherman

Today Virginia encounters Mrs. Harry Sherman of the home club, who took a 4 and 3 match from Mrs. Harry Corman of Twin Orchard. The fourth match brings together Mrs. Harold Sims of Evanston, a 6 and 5 winner in the first round over Mrs. E. B. Hall Jr. of Medinah, and Mrs. Charles Dennehy of Onwentsia. Mrs. Dennehy, president of the Women's Western Golf association, eliminated Virginia Ingram of Sunset Ridge, 5 and 4, playing out the bye holes for a good 42.

MORE POWER FOR ALL-AMERICA

BY EDWARD PRELL

A couple of fellows who have been making yardage against the Japs for two years in the Pacific paused in Chicago long enough yesterday to sign contracts with John L. Keeshin's Chicago All-America Football conference eleven. They were Lt. Walter Williams from Boston university and Lt. Claude [Peck] Pieculewicz, one time star at Fordham.

The business of signing for his debut in pro football was incidental in the case of Lt. Pieculewicz. He left last night for Boston where he will wed Thelma McCarry. And his best man will be Lt. Williams. Both youngsters played sandlot football in the Boston district.

Played for Pat Hanley

At Boston university, Williams played under Coach Pat Hanley. With the Chicago All-Americas his boss will be Pat's brother, Lt. Col. Dick Hanley of the marines. At Fordham, Lt. Pieculewicz was coached by Jim Crowley, who now is functioning as commissioner of the All-America conference.

Pieculewicz was the Rams' regula quarter back in the seasons of 1939, 1940, and 1941. As a member of the Fordham team he played in the Cotton bowl in 1941 and in the Sugar bowl the following New Year's day. He has just returned to the United States on rotation leave after 28 months in Pacific hot spots and this is not to be misconstrued as meaning night clubs. He was a member of an anti-aircraft battalion.

They're Both Husky

Lt. Pieculewicz is 26, 5 feet 11 inches tall, and weighs 185. Lt. Williams is 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 195 pounds and also is 26. Williams followed the Bears' Gary Famiglietti as Boston U.'s full back and he didn't suffer in the comparison.

Williams' top thrill in college football was a 72-yard quick kick which sailed over Charley O'Rourke, Boston college safety man who later played with the Bears. In his first intercollegiate game, Williams completed passes of 55 and 60 yards for touchdowns against Franklin and Marshall in Fenway park.

He won nine letters at Boston and would have made it 11 except for cutting short his college career to join the marines as a private a few days after Pearl Harbor. Two years later he was commissioned a second lieutenant and in May, 1943, he went to the Pacific with an infantry platoon.

AILING NELSON MAY PASS UP ST. PAUL MEET

Rochester, Minn., July 17 (AP) — Byron Nelson, Toledo, O., national PGA champion, told country club officials here he has not yet decided whether he will play in the St. Paul Keller open golf tournament which begins Thursday.

Nelson, who says his back has been bothering him, will undergo an examination at Mayo clinic tomorrow morning.

Chandler Asks Inter League, All-Star Play

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Chandler today advanced an idea for three feature major league performances in future years.

They are permanent establishment of interleague charity games in July, restoration of the All-Star game in an August setting, and the world series in October.

The big leagues recently played interleague games for war relief in place of the annual All-Star game, and Chandler termed them "tremendous successes in stirring up great local interest."

In Boston alone the meeting of the Red Sox and Braves grossed $74,000, he said.

"I'm going to ask the two leagues to give serious consideration to making provision for playing these three big features next season," the new commissioner told a reporter.

"When the war is over the interleague games could be played for local charities. The All-Star game should be revived as soon as possible because it has become a national institution and is a powerful incentive to the players."

Sox Hope to Avert Skid in Boston Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Boston, Mass., July 17.—The White Sox, who aren't winning many ball games but at least are learning things about war time travel, are scheduled to go to work against the local Red Sox tomorrow. Taking on that gang is, on past performances, a short cut to a spot lower than fifth place, which James Dykes' boys now occupy.

Their precarious state, with the Yankees and Tigers awaiting them in turn after the visit here is completed, is indicated by the slim gap now separating them from the Browns and Indians. Of course, taking the more optimistic view, the Sox are not a vast distance from the first division, but are not thinking about that.

The boys spent seven hours today in a day coach tour from Philadelphia to this place, but that was easy. The tough part after a double header the evening previous was getting out of bed in time to catch a 9 a. m. train, this being the only one that offered seating prospects. Much more of this and our highly strung athletes, accustomed as they are to comforts, will take to the sanatoriums until the war's end.

WADE LEAVES ARMY; TO HEAD DUKE ATHLETICS

Durham, N. C., July 17 (AP)—Wallace Wade, who compiled an outstanding college coaching record at Duke university, will return there shortly—but not as head coach, the university said today.

Wade, a lieutenant-colonel in the army, returned to this country July 5 after 15 months overseas. Duke announced his discharge from the army today and said he soon will resume his duties as director of athletic and physical education.

BY EDWARD BURNS

The New York Giants beat the Cubs, 2 to 1, yesterday in Wrigley field—and it was precisely the screwy kind of a game you'd expect to cool off a sizzling ball club.

The Cubs' lone run off Bill Voiselle, only pitcher to shut them out this season, was unearned, but that isn't saying the league leaders didn't give him some tough moments. Of the five hits the Chicagoans made off Voiselle four were doubles and tnree of these were lead-off doubles. The lone single, however, was the only hit that figured in the Cubs' skimpy and spurious production.

Erickson Walks Three in 4th

Paul Erickson was the losing pitcher, and his one fit of wildness deprived him of his sixth victory. Paul also yielded five hits, all singles, and only one of them figured in the production of the Giants' two runs.

With one out in the fourth George Hausmann drew Erickson's first pass. Whitey Lockman supplied the second out with a fly to Harry Lowrey. Mel Ott walked, then Hausmann and Ott advanced on a wild pitch. Ernie Lombardi drew Erickson's third and last pass of the inning and game, loading the bases. Danny Gardella ran the count to three balls and two strikes then singled thru the box into centerfield, Hausmann and Ott scoring.

First Double Wastes Away

The Cubs wasted their first double in the second inning, after they had taken a 1 to 0 lead. Phil Cavarretta got to second at the start of the second inning when his grounder rolled between Gardella's heels into right. Phil got to third on Andy Pafko's infield out, then a pitch hit Lowrey's bat as Peanuts tried to pull back from the plate. Paul Gillespie singled to center, scoring Cavarretta. Len Merullo doubled to right, Gillespie stopping at third, whereupon Erickson walked, loading the bases. Hack flied to Treadway.

After the Giants had gone ahead in the first of the fourth, the Cubs opened their own span of wasting leadoff doubles. Pafko started the home fourth with a double off the center field wall. Lowrey fouled to Lombardi and Gillespie walked. Then Merullo grounded into a double play.

Opens 5th with Double

Erickson opened the fifth with a line double to the left field wall and Hack walked. Then Don Johnson fouled to Lombardi. Nicholson was out, Gardella to Voiselle. Cavarretta was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. Pafko fanned.

The third straight leadoff double was propolled by Lowrey to get the sixth inning under way. Gillespie was called out on strikes, Merullo flied to Lockman, and Erickson fouled to Reyes.

The Cubs will meet the Dodgers this afternoon in a double header. Lon Warneke will make his first start for the Cubs in two seasons in one of the games and Ray Prim, who shut out the Braves with four hits last Friday, will share honors with Lon.

Paul Derringer yesterday was released from Illinois Masonic hospital where the veteran pitcher was taken Saturday with a severe cold.

AMONG LASSIE FAVORITES

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

THE rich Arlington Lassie stakes this afternoon at Washington Park will be a highly significant occasion in the annals of Mrs. Elizabeth N. Graham's racing establishment. . . . Mrs. Graham will watch her potentially great filly, Beaugay, attempt to vindicate the efforts which she made last summer to assemble one of the strongest racing stables in the country. . . . In the course of those efforts she expended approximately $250,000 on yearlings.

On the evening of Aug. 1 last summer, two aristocratic looking fillies were led into the Keeneland sales ring from the consignment of Arthur B. Hancock, perennially the nation's leading breeder. . . . They were to be auctioned off with the unusual stipulation that the successful bidder would take his choice, because Hancock thought so much of them that he wanted to retain one for breeding stock.

Leslie Combs II., who was Mrs. Graham's agent at the sales, went to $22,000, where the bidding stopped. . . . Combs was faced with a momentous decision—a choice between these two youngsters, one a daughter of Stimulus and Risk, the other a daughter of Sir Gallahad III. and Sun Gamonia. . . . Picking a yearling is a precarious process. . . . Combs must have remembered at that moment how he had eased off just in time the previous season when bidding for Mrs. Graham against William Helis with the colt Pericles on the block. . . . Helis took him for $66,000 and has never yet been able to get him to the post, tho he's now 3 years old. . . . So Combs took a last look at the two fillies and picked the daughter of Stimulus and Risk, which later was to go to the races under the lilting, happy name of Beaugay.

This is the day which will show whether his choice was just a good one or a stroke of genius. . . . In performances to date, Beaugay has demonstrated that she's worth the price. . . . While dominating the eastern competition in her division she has won Belmont's Fashion stakes and has set a track record of :58 for five furlongs in winning Delaware's Polly Drummond stakes.

Her sire, Stimulus, died this year after producing foals which won nearly $2,000,000 in the course of their racing careers. . . . Among his progeny was Risque, which won the Arlington Lassie stakes of 1930. . . . Risk, the dam of Beaugay, is a daughter of the celebrated Sir Gallahad III. . . . She is one of the very best mares in the famous Hancock establishment. . . . She has produced some fine looking colts and fillies—but Kentucky horsemen agree that none has ever had the looks and finely lacquered finish of Beaugay. . . . When Chicago's racing fans see this filly come prancing out from the paddock this afternoon they'll know they're looking at a genuine aristocrat.

Your Guiding Star

[For a war time bridal pair]

Undefined, the pattern of your lives,
With drums of Mars still rolling in the night;
But love's unhampered permanence survives
The darkest hour and greets the light
With upturned face. And, tho you cannot see
What trials the future holds, what joy portends,
There is a star to lead your destiny
And bring you safely home when tumult ends.

And love can touch you softly from afar
If faith is ever there to take your hand.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Fourteen of the fastest 2 year old fillies in the nation have been listed to start today in the $46,920 Arlington Lassie stakes, the richest prize for this class of thorobreds on America's 1945 turf program.

The celebrated Beaugay, the colorful Enfilade, and the sensational Honeymoon, Avenue Belle, and Aladear top the field, but among the nine other probable starters are several which could turn the trick and add $37,900 to their owner's bank roll, the amount which will go to the winning stable.

Beaugay, pride of Mrs. Elizabeth N. Graham's New York racing establishment, has held the edge in the east against the spirited opposition of Col. C. V. Whitney's Enfilade. In California, Louis B. Mayer's Honeymoon has shown worlds of speed and set a track record of 1:05 for five and one-half furlongs at Santa Anita.

Stiff Competition Promised

During the Arlington Park meeting, A. C. Ernst's Aladear, Calumet farm's Avenue Belle, and Mrs. Louise Donovan's Breezy Louise have shown enough to indicate they will be in contention from start to finish of the six furlong sprint.

Johnny Adams, who has ridden Beaugay to victories in Belmont's Fashion stakes and Delaware's Polly Drummond stakes, again will ride the Graham star.

Enfilade and Aladear have improved in recent tests. Enfilade, for instance, raced a field of colts and won by a neck in Belmont's National Stallion stakes. Aladear has demonstrated her improvement by running the fastest five furlongs of the Arlington meet, :59 3-5.

Ben Jones Special

Then those who like a Ben Jones special will have their eyes on Avenue Belle, a full sister of Some Chance, winner of the 1941 Belmont futurity.

The Lassie went to the Greentree stable's Expression last year. Calumet's Twosy was second and Blue Alibi, owned by Diana Ranch of California, was third.

Mrs. A. M. Creech, Little Bengy [$9.80] and J. W. Rogers' Task Force [$10.20] provided a $51 daily double yesterday. A. L. Fay and Kempton Knott were the winning jockeys.

S. D. Sidell's St. Jock, a 2 to 5 favorite, won the $3,000 Montferrat purse, the day's feature in which only six started.

Yesterday crowd was 17,000 and the mutuel handle for the eight races totaled $1,072,512.

GUNDER HAGG BREAKS RECORD FOR MILE RUN

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 17 (AP)—Gunder Hagg, the long striding Swedish runner, smashed the world record for the mile run today, beating Arne Andersson in their first meeting of the season, in 4:01.4.

Andersson, who holds the accepted record of 4:02.6 for the mile, also bettered the old standard as he was timed in 4:02.2.

All contestants will report at 1 p. m. on the day they have selected to take their 100 yard swimming tests. As soon as they have been placed in qualifying races by the clerks the first trial will start. This starting time may be as early as 1:30 p. m. As far as possible, contestants from the same club will be listed in separate qualifying events. Each contestant completing his 100 yard test will receive a souvenir bronze button. Qualifiers for the 10 championship races will be awarded gold medals.

Bob Ballard, coach of the Lake Shore club, which is defending champion in the girls' division, has entered 25 boys and girls for the sectional meets. They are divided between all four sections in order to qualify as many as possible for the championship races July 29.

Former Champions in Class E

In the group of girls from Lake Shore are three former champions who now are entered in class E for those 19 years of age or over. They are Marilynn Billquist, class D champion in 1942; Jeanne Wilson, class D champion in 1944, and Frankie Rose, who won the Chicagoland championship in 1939. While previous winners acannot defend their titles, they may advance to higher age divisions.

Twenty girls from the Jewish People's Institute—all in the first four age classes—will compete in the trials in Whealan pool. The team entry was submitted by Emil Gollubier, physical director of the J. P. I.

The Telephone Girls' Recreational association, which has a class now being instructed in life saving, will enter 14 members in the trials Sunday in California park. I Am Not Lonely

I do not need to be with you,
In the same room, or anywhere,
For I can never be alone
Knowing, dear one, how much you care.

I do not need your lips on mine,
Nor the sound of your voice, my dear,
For the breeze brings every kiss you send
And your voice, both sweet and clear.

O, Death, Where Is Thy Sting?

Ten years ago when I was 40 years old, I shot a snappy 40 on the first nine and another snappy 40 on the second. Yesterday, celebrating my 50th birthday, I shot a snappy 50 on the first nine and duplicated it on the second. Of course, I'm extremely interested in living to a ripe old age, but how I dread the day I become 75. —My Fifth Try

WOODCOCK NEW BRITISH CHAMP; WINS IN SIXTH

BY JAMES SLOAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 17.—Britain tonight hailed a new empire heavyweight boxing champion, 24 year old Bruce Woodcock of Doncaster, Yorkshire, who knocked out Jack London in the sixth round of a scheduled 12 round bout before a crowd of 38,000 at Tottenham football grounds.

Woodcock, fighting his 21st professional contest, supplied a thrilling surprise climax to what until the middle of the sixth round had looked like an easy victory for London. The dethroned champion, who won his crown by a 15 round decision over Freddie Mills last Sept. 15, had gained a slight lead on points in the first five rounds.

In the early minutes of the 5th round, the 32 year old London used his 215 pounds to good advantage in a clinch from which Woodcock emerged with a badly bleeding nose. As London started to move in the young challenger caught him with his most solid blow of the battle, a crushing right cross to the stomach which sent the faltering champion to the canvas.

PACKER CENTER PRO FOOTBALL'S BEST—LAMBEAU

around ability, I really mean it when I pick Brock.

His teammates call him "Pea Head." That's because his head is small for the rest of his body. We have a stock saying on our team: "If you want to know where the ball is, look far Charley."

His most notorious act of ball thievery was committed in Comiskey park in 1942. Half way in the fourth quarter the Cardinals were out in front, 13 to 10.

Steals Ball Against Cards

The Cardinals were on their own 20 yard line with the ball. Their big full back, Bob Morrow, ploughed into our line. It seemed like everyone crashed together. All of a sudden, Charley dashed out of the mass, the ball in his hand, and loped over the Cardinal goal line. Don Hutson kicked the point and we won the game, 17 to 13. I've often thought that was one of the reasons Jimmy Conzelman, the Cardinal coach, left the pro league and joined up with the Browns. In baseball the hidden ball trick isn't nearly as costly as a stolen ball in a football game.

When Brock joined the Packers in 1939, an All-America from the University of Nebraska, our regular center was George Svendsen. That year they shared the assignment. I used Charley in bad weather or for backing up the line. This will be Charley's third All-Star game. He was with the Collegians in 1939, but the next year, in Soldiers' field, was on our side when we won, 45 to 28.

Bob Flowers, our No. 2 center, is rough and rugged. In 1943 he filled in nicely when Brock was laid low by appendicitis. Our third center, Forrest McPherson, has been used sparingly. I plan to use him at right tackle in the All-Star game and during the regular season.

'It's an Act' Now Praise to Canzoneri

BY FRANK MASTRO

Tony Canzoneri, who won almost a million dollars in purses in his 14 years' career as a boxer [1925 to 1939], during which he won the featherweight, lightweight, and junior welterweight championships, is in the midst of a new success, that of a straight man for a comedian at the Oriental theater.

Canzoneri, who last fought in Chicago when he beat Bobby Pacho of Los Angeles 10 years ago, receives $750 a week for four shows daily and five on Saturdays and Sundays.

Being a Straight Man Is Hard Work, Tony Says

Martin Luck, telephone executive and president of the Veteran Boxers' Association of Illinois, said Canzoneri is the most promising straight man he's seen since James J. Corbett, the old heavyweight champion, was performing on the stage 45 years ago.

Canzoneri started his vaudeville career five years ago when Joey Adams, co-star in his act, saw him play a role in "They Should Have Stood in Bed" in New York five years ago.

When Adams, the comedian, was a member of the boxing team of the City College of New York, Tony was his idol. After he learned the popular, little fighter was weak financially, he offered him a bit in his show and they've been doing well ever since.

Adams Recalls Act's Modest Start in Astoria

Adams recalled he and Tony started their act in a small theater in Astoria, L. I., for $50 a week. Adams appeared at the theater two hours before he was to go on so as to rehearse, but there was no rehearsal that day. Canzoneri showed up only five minutes before their curtain call.

Adams was furious. He sputtered, "Aren't you nervous about your first appearance on the stage?"

Canzoneri scoffed:

"Listen, Joey, I've had 250 fights. In my time I fought Barney Ross twice for the lightweight title, once in Chicago Stadium and once in Madison Square Garden, both in 1933. I received $45,000 for each of those battles. Ross could hurt one with a left or right. I've got nothing to fear today. There are 20 people in the audience and we're getting only $1.25 a performance."

WHOSYOURGAL IS A SWEETHEART TO HANDICAPPER

Whosyourgal, a 4 year old filly owned by H. G. Knott, was a sweetheart to the followers of the Tribune race selections at Washington Park yesterday. The thorobred was picked by the Tribune race handicapper as the best bet of the day and won at odds of $22 for $2. The winner was one of four selected by the handicapper on the eight race program.

The others were Task Force in the second at $10.20, Knockdown in the fourth at $3, and St. Jock in the sixth at $2.80. The four winners yesterday brought the total to eight in the last 16 races at the Homewood track.

Hunters Still Plagued by Shell Lack

BY BOB BECKER

The civilian who wants to buy some shotgun shells this fall won't detect much if any improvement in the shortage that has existed in past years. That's the latest dope on the outlook for shotgun ammunition this fall from E. W. Whitehouse, of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett and Co., who knows all about allocations of materials to manufacturers of cartridges and shells.

The breakdown on what may happen in the ammunition business is this:

The first quarter allocation of materials to manufacturers for shells was cut to two-thirds of the original figure. The second quarter was cut in two. The third quarter allocation has gone thru.

If the government tells the manufacturers very soon that they can go ahead on the fourth quarter production so that shells can be turned out in time to reach the consumers before the end of the year, Mr. Whitehouse believes that we will have between 40 and 50 per cent of a normal year's production of ammunition. This means another shortage this fall for the 1945 ammunition output will only be about 300,000,000 shells.

FIGHT OVER OCD WAGED BY KELLY AND ALD. WALLER

Mayor's Acts Challenged in Stormy Session

Continuation of Chicago's office of civilian defense was assailed at a meeting of the city council yesterday by Ald. Waller [43d], who also opened fire on Mayor Kelly's radio "messages of the day"—one minute broadcasts supporting salvage drives and the like.

Waller's action came after introduction by Ald. Bowler [25th], chairman of the council finance committee, of a report that the OCD in Chicago is essential to the war.

"The national OCD is disbanded," Waller shouted. "The state is conducting its organization on a voluntary basis. But the city, which has squandered $85,000 on the OCD so far this year, wants to keep on spending money.

Waller Tells City Needs

"We need trucks to collect garbage. We need rat extermination. We need ambulances. We should use the unexpended part of the $200,000 OCD appropriation for those things.

"Why, even the money spent on the mayor's messages of the day would pay for a lot of garbage collecting work."

This brought Mayor Kelly to his feet. "Apparently, Alderman," he said, "you aren't well informed on the OCD. Chicago didn't become the most patriotic city in the world by accident."

He listed the service centers, free rides for service men on street cars and buses, and other morale building factors attributable to the OCD.

Mayor's Statement Challenged

"And the only cost of my messages," he said, "are for a girl to type them up."

"Listen, Mr. Mayor," Waller retorted. "Before I was elected alderman I was a block captain. I know something about the OCD. And your messages are farmed out to an advertising agency."

The mayor shook his forefinger at Waller. "That's not true!" he shouted. Finally, however, Waller drew an admission from the mayor that his messages cost $75 a month.

Confirmed the appointments of Joseph W. Cremin and Bernard L. Majewski for four year terms on the school board.

Appointed Sveinbjorn Johnson of Champaign to represent Chicago in the quo warranto suit brought to test validity of the act creating the metropolitan transit authority.

Referred to committee a motion to annul an ordinance that Waller said established a taxicab monopoly in Chicago.

Finally, the aldermen enacted an ordinance setting Sept. 4 for election of aldermen to fill vacancies in the 31st, 36th, and 50th wards. Waller moved that the first Tuesday in October be selected.

"Lay his motion on the table," Ald. Kells [28th] pleaded. "He would change the Ten Commandments if he could."

MAXWELL ST.'S UPROAR CALMED BY SYMPHONY

'Blessing,' Cop Calls Boys' Club Concert

The tumultuous Maxwell st. district was quiet last night, calmed by the music of Bach and Beethoven.

The occasion was the first symphony concert of the Chicago Boys club given for the Maxwell st. district in the Old Town Chicago Boys club. The audience included Scots, Germans, Jews, Czechs, and Italians who leaned from their windows to hear the open-air performance or dragged their own chairs to sit before the improvised stage at 1300 Newberry av.

Child Violinists Applauded

Traffic from Maxwell st. to Roosevelt rd. was blocked off for the occasion, and long before the 8:30 performance began, groups of five to 10 residents of the neighborhood arrived, trailing boxes, kitchen tables and streamlined steel kitchen chairs on which to sit.

The audience proved as appreciative as the sedate high paying symphony goers. Renditions by violinists Vaughan Parker, 10, Negro, of 5003 Champlain av., and David Duncan, 14, of 5941 Leader av., were greeted with applause and demands for more. While soloists played and the 30 voice Negro chorus sang, quiet reigned on the street where noise and confusion were first since the early 1900s.

Irish Patrolman Tom Callahan, who has walked the Maxwell st. beat for years, described the concert as a "blessing."

"It's the quietest night I've had in 10 years," he said. "At least there's peace while this is going on."

Marine Prospect, 14, Critical

But Rudy Ortiz, 14, of 1932 Newberry av., was critical.

"That kind of music's o. k.," he said. "Me—I prefer the 'Marine's Hymn.' That's what I'm going to be."

From the rest of the audience of some 300 persons, Ramon Girvin, music director, learned its attitude toward Maxwell st. concerts when he was forced to reprimand four rowdies in the front row.

"If we can't have quiet here, we'll have to stop playing," he warned. "Do you or don't you want it?"

Arthur J. Sikora

Military intelligence, police, the coroner's office, and the federal bureau of investigation last night expressed the opinion that the death of Arthur Joseph Sikora, 39, chief engineer for the Lockland [O.] plant of the Wright Aeronautical corporation, in a plunge from a 20th floor window of the Palmer House yesterday was accidental.

Military authorities and the FBI entered the investigation on the possibility that Sikora might have possessed secret plane engine plans. Officials of the Lockland plant said, Sikora's trip was routine. He was with Charles C. O'Daniels, an expediter for Wright, in a bar at the Palmer House until 1:30 a. m., when he went to his room. His body, clad in pajamas, was found a few minutes later on the roof of a six story offset.

Plant officials said Sikora had been with the company 15 years, was happily married, with two children, and had bought a new home in Cincinnati's suburban Roselawn district four days ago. An inquest will be held at 425 Plymouth ct. today.

BABY SCALDED IN SINK; MOTHER GETS SIX MONTHS

Baltimore, Md., July 17 (AP)—The young mother of a 4 year old boy was sentenced to six months' imprisonment today for placing him in a sink full of scalding water while attempting to punish him.

Judge J. Abner Sayler, however, acquitted the mother, Mrs. Carla Schauermann, of a charge of assaulting the boy by burning him with cigarets, in which she was jointly accused with Carl B. Sadler. The cases against Sadler were postponed.

Mrs. Schauermann, 21, said in court the water was hotter than she intended it to be. Little Walter James Schauermann's feet and buttocks were injured. Asst. State's Atty. Thomas N. Biddison told Judge Sayler that Mrs. Schauermann left her husband last May 9 to take an apartment with Sadler. Both the boy and his sister, Linda, 2, now are living with their father, George Schauermann, a railroad employe.

HEAVY SELLING CAUSES STOCK MARKET BREAK

Result of Big Allied Blows at Japan

New York, July 17 (AP)—The stock market today experienced its largest break on average since Nov. 8, 1943. Heavy selling was attributed to the belief that the big allied smash at Japan may bring a quick surrender and result in a temporary domestic upset of reconversion and economic programs.

Prices declined from the start but liquidation was more or less orderly until the final half hour, when a deluge of offerings put the high speed ticker tape as much as three minutes behind actual floor transactions.

Many Off 1 to 3 Points

Closing losses of one to three points were widespread. There were a few declines of four to five. Turnover of 1,560,000 shares compared with 790,000 Monday and was the largest since June 29.

Besides far eastern developments, pessimism again was based partly on apprehension over more anti-speculation moves. Slow sales in some recent low interest bond refundings were a factor.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was off 1.6 points. The market was broad, with 980 issues traded. Of these 815 were down, 55 up, and 110 unchanged.

Leaders on the decline included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Santa Fe, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Delaware and Hudson, Baltimore and Ohio, United States Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union A, American Water Works, Anaconda, General Electric, du Pont, Eastman Kodak, and Johns-Manville.

BOND PRICES DECLINE

Declines among the more active rails of 1 to 3 or more points were widespread at the close. Industrials and utilities, particularly the higher priced issues, showed strength but losses were far in the majority.

Sales expanded to $8,452,000 from $4,570,000 Monday. The Associated Press average of 20 rails was down ½ point at 100.5, the largest drop since March 26. Other components were down 0.1 to 0.4 point.

Heaviest losers included bonds of the Baltimore & Ohio, Milwaukee, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, New Haven, St. Louis, San Francisco, Southern Pacific, Morris & Essex, North Western, Monon, Commonwealth Edison, Rio Grande Western, and Hudson & Manhattan. United States government bonds were relatively steady along with some higher priced corporates.

CHICAGO LIST FALLS

Prices on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday broke with 104 issues showing losses ranging from fractions to 4⅞ points. Turnover was 44,000 shares. Chicago and North Western lost, 4⅞, Central and South West Utilities preferred, and United States Steel 3, and Montgomery Ward 2⅝.

Other stocks down a point or more were Chrysler corporation and New York Central 2¼, Parker Pen 1⅞, Chicago and North Western preferred 2⅝, Republic Steel 1⅝, Texas Company 1¼, Swift & Co. and Nachmann corporation 1⅛, Westinghouse Electric 1⅝, General Motors 1⅛, Chicago Flexible Shaft, A. M. Castle, St. Louis Stockyards, and Doehler-Jarvis 1.

Market Points Up Failure to Plan for Peace

BY THOMAS FURLONG

Yesterday's break in stock prices served to emphasize the unexpectedly slow progress made toward getting industry back into civilian production.

Before the end of the war with Germany it had been assumed that substantial reconversion would start when fighting stopped in Europe. The interim between the defeat of Germany and the fall of Japan was referred to in Washington as "period 1," when the transition from a full war economy to a civilian economy would get underway.

Lack Peace Output Materials

But most industry today is unprepared for the shift. The cancellation of war orders in many cases would mean an almost complete stoppage of operations because plants are withcut materials for civilian production.

The government has not announced definite wage or price policies for the reconversion period. All information emanating from Washington, however, emphasizes that the government will continue to impose economic controls for a long time after the end of the war. The manufacturer is in the dark about the wages he will pay or the prices he will get for his products.

The rush to sell stocks yesterday made clear the widespread belief that the government is not prepared for a sudden end of the war. It was pointed out that the government itself has evolved no clear cut over-all program for speeding the shift to civilian production nor have individual manufacturers been permitted to make their own plans.

Difficult to Make Plans

The tax outlook is not clear. Many unanswered questions make it extremely difficult to make definite business plans. Not all these uncertainties can be eliminated by government action, but manufacturers believe that some of them could be reduced.

The selling that developed in stocks yesterday was credited to reports that a Japanese peace offer would be considered at the Berlin conference. Developments earlier in the war that held the promise of peace induced similar market behavior. The capitulation of Italy, the rapid march of American forces thru France, and the first crossing of the Rhine river each brought on a period of unsettlement.

LABOR DISPUTES KEEP 40,000 OFF JOBS IN NATION

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

New strikes included an "unauthorized" one by 780 electrical workers at the Hoosier ordnance plant, Charlestown, Ind., where rocket powder was being produced.

At Toledo, O., 400 were made idle when workers at the Pure Oil company refinery refused to pass a picket line of CIO workers of the company's Newark, O., refinery on strike protesting the discharge of two veterans workers.

At Hamilton, O., 300 moulders at the General Machinery corporation quit work and a union spokesman said the stoppage was in sympathy with 50 chippers who left their jobs Friday in protest against a war labor board wage decision.

Nearly 2,000 at the United States Rubber company plant in Detroit were made idle in a jurisdictional dispute between the CIO United Rubber Workers and the independent Mechanics Educational Society of America over discharge of 12 employes under the maintenance of membership clause.

PREDICTS BARGE OIL MOVEMENT WILL INCREASE

The capacity of the inland waterways system of the United States will permit handling an even larger volume of petroleum and its products in the next six months than were handled in the first half of the year, when approximately 1 million barrels daily were transported a total of 65 billion barrel miles, the office of defense transportation said yesterday.

"Since the average refinery capacity is about 5 million barrels daily, the magnitude of this year's waterborne total can be easily realized," said Lawrence C. Turner, ODT's waterways transport director.

Among the principal waterway petroleum movements are more than 30,000 barrels daily of 100 octane aviation gasoline from midwest refineries to gulf coast areas.

To augment existing floating equipment in handling the petroleum load, the ODT since the war began has sponsored the building or conversion of 240 steel tank barges, 43 tug boats, and 21 tow boats, all now in service on inland waterways, Turner said.

TRUMAN URGES SINGLE HEAD OF SURPLUS SALES

Believe St. Louisan Likely Choice

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP)—President Truman today asked congress to abolish the three man surplus property board and entrust the job of selling an estimated 100 billion dollars of excess goods to a single administrator.

William S. Symington

William Stuart Symington, St. Louis manufacturer who was sworn in as board chairman only yesterday, was regarded as the President's likely choice for the world's greatest merchandising task.

In asking congress to wipe out the board it created last October, Mr. Truman termed it undesirable to "dilute responsibility" for a disposal effort requiring "quick and decisive action."

Recalls Gillette Disputes

The chief executive thus implied his recognition of disputes which split the board under Symington's predecessor, former Sen. Gillette [D., Iowa].

Gillette's disagreements with other board members delayed action for weeks on some policy decisions, he admitted, and led to his resignation. Resigning, Gillette advocated the single administrator plan.

House leaders said the reorganization probably would not reach the stage of congressional action until early October.

Reaction to the plan was lacking, for the moment, from the two board members held over from the Roosevelt administration—Lt. Col. Edward H. Heller of California and Robert A. Hurley, former Connecticut governor.

In reopening a surplus disposal battle which seethed in congress for weeks last fall, Mr. Truman said in his message that the administration of surplus sales—now nearly 50 million dollars a month—"becomes increasingly difficult as the rate of surplus declarations rises."

Agrees with Byrnes

Mr. Truman recalled that last year State Secretary Byrnes, then director of war mobilization, urged the single administrator plan.

Harking back to Byrnes' advice, Mr. Truman told congress: "I think experience has proved him right."

The board has frequently been a target of criticism in congress, mainly on grounds that it was too slow in setting its machinery in motion.

In March the senate war investigating committee reported the board's administrative organization "extremely confused" and predicted its delays might result in "as chaotic conditions as we had at the end of the last war."

SUPERIOR OIL'S EARNINGS RISE IN NINE MONTHS

Superior Oil Company of California yesterday reported net profit was $6,172,788, or $15.87 a share, in the nine months ended May 31, including an $8.54 per share gain on the sale of property totaling $3,611,161. This compared with net profit of $2,661,512, or $6.29 a share, a year ago.

Cash proceeds from the sale of capital assets during latest period were used in part to redeem $4,165,000 of 3½ per cent debentures.

LUGGAGE, RAIL CAR AND ENGINE OUTPUT CONTROLS REMOVED

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP)—The WPB today lifted all controls covering the manufacture of trunks, traveling and overnight bags, and a variety of other luggage items. It attributed the move to a good supply of such materials as brass, zinc, and copper alloys for buckles, hinges, and other fittings. However, it said producers may have difficulty finding leather, wood, and fabric.

WPB also removed controls over production of new locomotives and railroad cars. Orders may be accepted and scheduled by manufacturers without prior clearance.

Except in cases of military necessity, which might require rescheduling, full responsibility for the scheduling of new production will rest with the manufacturer.

25 YEARS—PLUS—OF DIVIDENDS

A tested yardstick of investment value is a record of continuous dividend payments. Our Research Department has just completed a list of common stocks with dividend records of from 27 to 131 years and with yields—based on dividends paid during 1944 and current quotations—from 2.70% to 6.43%. To the conservative investor this list should be attractive.

10 Pct. Fewer Women Seek Chicago Jobs

The total of women seeking jobs thru the 18 United States employment services in the Chicago area has decreased 10 per cent since the removal of hiring and ceiling controls on women June 20, Lester Brown, Chicago area war man power commission director, said yesterday.

Total traffic in the USES offices continues high, however, he said. Job seekers went to the USES at the rate of 126,000 a month in May and June and reports up to July 15 showed no slackening.

Place 417,212 Full Time

One reason for the continued high traffic rate for both men and women job seekers is that workers regard the USES as a clearing house for new job opportunities, Brown said. In the last 12 months the USES in the Chicago area placed 417,212 workers in full time jobs and more than 156,000 in part time or short term jobs.

Also, many employers insist on referral by USES even tho it is not required by WMC regulations, because they wish to take advantage of the assistance offered by USES, he asserted. And altho the total of workers released in the Chicago area because of production adjustments has not been large, most of the released workers come to USES offices for new jobs, Brown explained.

No Limit on Women Workers

Total ceilings on all employers of eight or more persons in Cook and Du Page counties were lifted June 20, meaning they may hire as many women workers as they wish. Also women no longer were required to obtain USES referral cards to be hired, and the right to grant statements of availability to women workers leaving essential jobs was restored to employers. These controls remain in effect for men employes.

CIVILIAN RADIO SET CLEARANCE EXPECTED SOON

Benjamin Abrams, president of Emerson Radio and Phonograph corporation, yesterday predicted at a distributors' meeting in the Drake hotel that the radio industry would receive WPB clearance for civilian production in about a month.

Emerson expects to turn out 300,000 radio sets in the last quarter of this year, equal to its pre-war manufacturing rate, but will utilize only one-third of its war expanded facilities, he said. By early 1946 the company plans to have on the market such special products as improved hearing aids, television sets, and "walkie-talkies" for automobile use.

Radio sets resistant to water and corrosion should be available within a year after production begins and stimulate foreign trade, he said.

CIVILIAN JEEP'S USES ON FARM WILL BE SHOWN

TOLEDO, O., July 17—[Special]—Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., tomorrow will demonstrate the adaptability of its civilian version of the military jeep to farm uses, the company said today. Production has begun on a schedule which provides for about 20,000 of the peace time units this year.

Charles E. Sorensen, president of Willys-Overland, said that besides farm and other uses, the new vehicle will be used as a truck tractor for road hauling, road construction, and dock and railroad repairing.

EARNINGS RETAINED

Please review United Drug, Inc. What are the prospects for a dividend?—R. B.

Except for dividend payments of 75 cents a share in 1936 and 50 cents in 1937, profits shown each year since United Drug, Inc., was formed in 1933 have been retained in the business. The company was organized to acquire the properties of the former Drug, Inc.

Largely thru profits, subsidiary capital obligations ranking ahead of United Drug stock have been reduced and net working capital increased from $24,145,000 in 1937 to $33,671,000 in 1944. Book value of the stock meanwhile has grown from $5.28 a share to $15.43. Earnings a share on approximately 1,352,000 shares were: 1944, $1.62; 1943, $1.76; 1942, $1.70; 1941, $1.87; 1940, 82 cents; 1939, 79 cents; 1938, 38 cents.

Recent refunding, involving the issuance by United-Rexall Drug company, the principal manufacturing subsidiary, of debentures and a bank loan for the redemption of higher coupon debentures and higher dividend preferred stock, further improves the position of United Drug shares.

Apparently the company is in a position to resume dividend payments. However, because of expansion plans and outlays in connection with the subsidiary's refinancing, payments may not be in immediate prospect.

Post-war outlook for the company seems reasonably promising. Whether all the gain in consolidated sales, from $89,357,000 in 1939 to $147,793,000 last year, will be retained is problematical, but repeal or reduction of the excess profits tax would benefit earnings.

GRAIN FUTURES MARKET DIPS ON HEDGING SALES

Grain futures prices on the Chicago Board of Trade rallied quickly yesterday after an early break, but hedging pressure increased later to cause a decline and the close was near the bottom. Wheat futures were ⅜ to ⅞ cent a bushel lower, May corn declined ½ cent below the ceiling with other futures at the maximum. Oats were off 1⅜ to 1⅞, rye 2 to 2¾, and barley ⅜ to 1⅞.

Board of Trade directors ordered that beginning today trading in July corn futures shall be limited to liquidation except for short sales by persons having deliverable grain.

Sen. Thomas [D., Okla.] disclosed the senate agricultural committee is preparing to investigate rye trading on the Board of Trade as a result of complaints from farmers in rye producing states.

FOOD DEALERS TRAIN VETS AS STORE OWNERS

Chicago Group Aid Offered to All

[This is the 10th in a series of articles on employment and business opportunities for discharged veterans.)

BY ANTHONY WIRRY

A comprehensive training and advisory program has been set up by the Food Retailers of Greater Chicago for the benefit of war veterans planning to go into business for themselves.

The service is under the supervision of John J. Tunzer, field secretary of the organization, and becomes available to the veteran virtually as soon as he leaves the discharge center.

In most cases the first step in the program is training or apprenticeship beginning with a job in a meat market in the Chicago area. This is usually followed by several months work in a grocery store to gain experience in the handling of staple goods and fresh fruits and vegetables.

Average Time 16 Months

Altho the length of the training period varies with the individual, the average is about 16 months, Tunzer said.

"The training does not make the veteran a graduate retailer, but it means he knows what the score is and has the fundamentals for a start," Tunzer said. "We want to educate him so he knows all the lines in a store."

At the end of the training period, the program contemplates that the veteran will select a site for his own enterprise. Before he enters into any contractual obligations, however, the organization makes a study of the location's desirability and presents its recommendations.

If it appears that the location offers reasonable assurance of success, the organization offers to lay out the store and introduce the veteran to and make arrangements with wholesale suppliers.

Combination Stores Urged

Tunzer said his organization discourages the establishment of separate meat markets or grocery stores and urges the veteran to set up a combination of the two.

Tunzer favors a modification and combination of the serve-yourself and personal service store. He believes that self-service is an efficient form of merchandising but should not crowd out the personal and friendly side of retailing. He suggests that the proprietor stay on the premises and keep in close, friendly association with customers.

The average initial investment needed to establish a modest sized combination meat market and grocery is estimated at about $5,000. This will cover fixtures and a small inventory of stock, Tunzer said. About 200 regular customers are needed to maintain proper volume.

Publisher Group to Study Europe Newsprint Outlook

50 Million Rail Issue Fails to Attract a Bid

The proposed 50 million dollar marketing of Delaware and Hudson railroad first and refunding mortgage bonds failed to draw a bidder yesterday, the first time in months that a new issue of a widely known company failed to be sold on schedule under competitive bidding. Large scale corporate financing has been renewed in the last two weeks after it was held to a minimum during the 7th war loan drive.

Terms of the sale, to have provided funds at a lower interest rate to retire all publicly held debt of the railroad, provided that the bidder pick the interest rate and that no bid below 98 would be considered.

No Plan for New Offering

J. H. Nuelle, president, said the Deleware and Hudson's only near-by maturity was a 10 million dollar subsidiary issue due in 1946 and that it had no current plans for another offering of the new bonds.

Two investment banking groups, one headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co. and the other jointly by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., First Boston corporation, and Kidder, Peabody & Co. withdrew from bidding prior to the hour for the sale. It was understood members of both groups could not "see their way clear" to bid for the new bonds on a basis that would have netted the railroad any material saving by comparison with the cost of outstanding debt.

Ten million dollars of Skelly Oil company 20 year 2¾ per cent debentures will be offered today at 101¾ and accrued interest by Eastman, Dillon & Co. and associates. Proceeds will be used to redeem 10 million of 3 per cent debentures.

Mellon Wins Housing Issues

A group headed by Mellon Securities corporation was awarded $1,995,000 of New York City housing authority refunding bonds, due Feb. 1, 1946-'91, on a bid of par. The bonds carry interest rates of 1½ per cent to 6 per cent and will be reoffered immediately at prices to yield 0.25 to 1.70 per cent.

Nu-Enamel corporation, Chicago, registered with the securities and exchange commission 50,000 shares of 60 cent cumulative convertible preferred stock to be offered to shareholders at $10 a share. Any unsubscribed shares will be publicly offered later by a group headed by Floyd D. Cerf company. Anchorage Homes, Inc., home prefabricator, filed a statement covering 505,000 shares of class A stock and 250,000 shares of class B convertible stock.

BILLION RUSSIAN AID REASONABLE, SAYS CROWLEY

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP)—Foreign Economic Administrator Crowley told the senate banking committee today 1 billion dollars is a reasonable figure for Export-Import bank aid to finance post-war trade with Russia. He also disclosed restrictions in lend-lease shipments to France under the recently negotiated 2 billion 575 million agreement for aid to that country.

Crowley testified in behalf of house legislation to increase from 700 million to 3½ billion the lending powers of the Export-Import bank, of which he is chairman. The 2 billion 800 million increase was a "conservative amount" of what is needed to finance foreign trade for the next 12 months, he said.

Regarding France, Crowley said in reply to questions that all commitments are being turned down that call for deliveries after Dec. 31, 1945.

DEALER BATTLE FLARES ANEW IN FISH MARKET

Tie-in Sale Charged to Wholesaler

BY JACK WEIL

The price battle between Chicago fish wholesalers and retailers was renewed yesterday despite last Saturday's arbitration meeting at which retailers ended a five day boycott against one of the market's leading wholesalers, trade sources reported.

Buying progressed peacefully enough until one large wholesaler began mixing an inferior grade of fish with the No. 1 grade, said both retail and wholesale spokesmen. Retailers asserted they were forced to accept this "tie-in" at prices "too high" for the quality received.

Arguments Sharp at Parley

Retailers complained to Max Granat, business agent of the Chicago Retail Fish association, who carried the complaint to E. M. Concannon, president of the Chicago Wholesale Fish Dealers association. A meeting was called and was attended by Granat, Concannon, retailers, and the wholesaler accused of "tie-in sales.

During sharp arguments Concannon supported the retailers, it was learned. The wholesaler, about whom the arguments centered, said after the meeting:

"Let's get this straight once and for all. There is no ceiling on these fish [referring to fresh water Great Lakes fish] at present, and we can charge what we wish."

Yesterday's new controversy followed a week of bitterness in the fish market during which the office of price administration announced that all fish caught in the Great Lakes would be placed under ceilings in a few weeks. Salt water fish have been under price control.

Wholesaler Breaks Retailers

A leading wholesaler spokesman, expressing disgust, said: "The retailers are justified in taking any action they wish. Tho the wholesalers at last Saturday's meeting agreed to try and hold down prices, their actions are the reverse.

"The retailers at present need fish, and they are forced to swallow any grievances. When the supply of fish improves, however, it may be a different story."

Granat reported that three retailers already had been forced to shut down as a result of short fish supplies.

CATTLE SUPPLY FALLS; PRICES MOSTLY HIGHER

Chicago receipts of 5,500 cattle yesterday were second smallest of the year for a Tuesday and compared with 7,612 a week earlier. Hog receipts dropped to 11,500 from 13,664 last Tuesday. Only 1,000 sheep and lambs arrived, among the lowest Tuesday totals on record.

Lively competition between local and eastern interests sent most steers up 10 to 15 cents a hundred pounds. Some rose 25 cents.

RIDDLE SCHEME TO PUT BILLIONS IN WORLD BANK

investigating committee recommended better use of American bargaining power, and that the department accused the committee of overestimating that power.

"If the state department is right," Brewster raid, "it's wise for us to conserve whatever bargaining power we have."

Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.] called attention to the bewildering complexities of the plan with questions on American commitments that went unanswered or partially answered.

His questions brought the disclosure that Russia has a special privilege under the plan: While other nations are required to report their gold increases and set aside part of the increase to pay their debts, Russia is exempted from accounting for the gold she mines in the next five years.

BILLION FOR RUSSIA

Washington, D. C., July 17 [Special]—Russia is likely to receive foreign trade credits totaling from $700,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 during the next year out of the $2,800,000,000 of increased lending authority which the administration is seeking for the Export-Import bank of Washington, Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator and chairman of the bank's board, indicated under questioning before the senate banking and currency committee today. The house has already passed the bill doubling the bank's increased lending authority.

Of the $1,800,000,000 balance of additional lending power, Crowley indicated also, there might not be available enough to take care of "any great amount of aid" to Great Britain. He expressed hope the bank could "find some way" to advance credits to Poland for the purchase in our markets of machinery and equipment.

The questioning came as the FEA administrator, declaring that the bank was "entirely out of funds," or lending authority, urged immediate lending power expansion to cope with an approaching "extremely critical period" in the financing of foreign trade.

"We have no application from Russia for a loan, but insofar as the management of the bank is concerned," Crowley said, "it will finance trade with Russia the same as with any other country."

Sen. Taft, R., Ohio] intervened to say that he had learned that a loan agreement with Russia already had been made. He suggested that the committee go into executive session so he could disclose the source of his information.

Billion for Russia

"Certainly," Crowley interposed, "there is no tendency on the part of the Export-Import bank to withhold loans to Russia to finance export trade. I would say that in working out the proportion of credits it would be fair to assume that from $700,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 would be a reasonable amount to expect them to get out of this allocation."

"I would say that $1,000,000,000 is a fair amount to be used in the next year to finance trade with Russia."

CALUMET GROUP TO BATTLE FOR AN FCC LICENSE

The Calumet Broadcasting corporation will file exceptions this week to the federal communications commission's findings on the corporation's application to establish a new standard broadcasting station in Hammond, Ind., it was announced yesterday. The FCC last week disclosed its intent to deny a license on the ground that the "principal stockholders have been reluctant, evasive, and guilty of a lack of candor in making prompt, fair, and full disclosure of information relating to stock ownership."

The FCC also cited other alleged irregularities.

The Calumet corporation's officers are Doris Keane, president; the Rev. George F. Courrier, a Methodist minister, vice president; and his son, George W. Courrier, secretary. Miss Keane and the Rev. Mr. Courrier bought physical equipment of WJWC at a court sale in September, 1943.

The station had been operated by the Hammond Calumet Broadcasting corporation, controled by John W. Clarke and Marshall Field III., who gave up its license because of "constant and regular operating losses," according to a statement filed with the FCC. They acquired the Hammond station from a company controled by the Rev. Mr. Courrier and Miss Keane, and changed the call letters from WHIP to WJWC.

6 IN PLANE CREW TO HONOR FLYER KILLED IN REICH

Six crew members of the bomber in which Staff Sgt. John R. Miller made his last mission over Europe will attend memorial services for him at 7:30 p. m. Sunday in the First Mission Covenant church, Artesian and Albion avs. He was the husband of Mrs. Arlene Miller, 6305 N. Oakley av., and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Haywood Miller, 1321 Rosedale av.

Sgt. Miller was engineer-gunner on a plane which was shot down over Germany July 21, 1944. The crew bailed out. Nine of the members were taken prisoner but Miller was killed in landing.

SPECIALIST RUNS INTO OPA CRISIS ON COW'S HEADS

Samuel D. Salkin, operator of the Biological Research Products company, 3915 W. 19th st., said yesterday that he may be forced out of his business of supplying preserved animal parts for laboratory study because the office of price administration here will not allow him enough meat ration points. His appeal to the OPA in Washington, D. C., has been denied.

"Take a cow's head," he said, "as an example. It will weigh 65 pounds when I buy it from a slaughter house, and the OPA wants me to pay red points for it. But I can't collect red points after I preserve it in alcohol or formaldehyde and sell it as a laboratory specimen."

Salkin meets the same problem with hearts, livers, tongues, and tracheas, he said. He needs 10,000 red points for fall orders and has been granted only 1,400. Most of his specimens, he said, are used in army and navy medical study.

HIP FRACTURE FATAL TO WOMAN, 87

Mrs. Jennie Meyers, 87, of 3238 N. Keeler av., died yesterday in Belmont hospital where she had been since July 14 with a fracture of the right hip suffered in her home.
